

Chapter 78

Sophia let out a moan when Bryan bit her earlobe lightly. She immediately put her hands on his shoulder and clutched his shirt to stop herself from moaning loudly.

Her moan made Bryan tighten his hands around her waist. He tilted his face as his mouth let go of her neck and shifted to her neck.

Just the moment his lips brushed on her neck, a ringtone began to echo throughout the room.

Bryan arched his eyebrows when he realized it was his phone.

Sophia's body jolted up in response to the ringtone, and she tried to move away immediately.

His touches almost caused her to become lost and possessed. His touches were like magic, making her go insane.

His grip loosened as she took a step back from him. She lowered her head and tucked the strands of her hair behind her ear.

The fact that Bryan let out a long, deep breath was an indication that he was not happy with the unexpected phone call.

He walked over to his desk and grabbed his phone. He wanted to cut the call to whoever had called him, but when he noticed the number, he glanced at her, and then he received the call.

"Abraham."

Sophia looked at him the moment he heard him let out her brother's name.

"What happened? Give me a valid reason to disturb me," Bryan asked. His eyes never left Sophia.

She looked away from him and walked to the door.

Bryan stopped her as he asked her, "Where are you going?"

Sophia glanced at him and replied in a low voice so that her brother could not listen to her from the other end of the phone.

"I need to check your schedule," she replied, opening the door. Bryan did not stop her this time.

Sophia thought her brother had something important to talk about with Bryan. So, she did not want to disturb them in their conversation.

While she was leaving, she heard Bryan saying,

"Don't worry about it. I will train you myself."

She smiled while closing the door after leaving his cabin. She was happy that he was treating his brother well.

'Train my brother himself?' she thought, moving toward her cabin.

The thought of what he would look like while training others made her cheeks flush. She shook her head and went to her cabin.

She sat down and checked Bryan's schedule for today. He had no meeting today. But tomorrow he would have to attend a meeting in a hotel, which was really important.

She went to get a cup of coffee for him and went to his cabin after an hour.

She saw him talking with another Alpha on his phone, so she did not disturb him, put the cup on his desk, and left the cabin quietly.

As she returned to her cabin, she began to work on some projects.

After a while,

She heard a knock on the door.

"Please, come in."

A man entered the cabin with a small bouquet of red roses.

"Miss Sophia, this is for you," he said, handing the bouquet to her.

"For me?" she asked with a surprised look as she got to her feet.

"Yes."

"Who sent it?"

"Don't know. Someone left it for you."

"Okay."

Sophia grabbed the bouquet and thanked the man. When the man left, she sat in her chair again.

The thought of something surprised her. It was not the bouquet that Angelina gave Bryan, but a new bouquet of roses.

Did Bryan send it to her because she refused to take that bouquet?

She smiled and sniffed at the smell of the fresh roses. Suddenly, she heard a tone coming out of her phone. She grabbed her phone and checked the message that popped up on the screen in the notification bar.

"A bouquet of roses for a beauty."

Sophia blinked her eyes as she stared at the message. She could not believe Bryan called her beautiful.

Something caught her eye as she was stroking her fingers at the roses.

She found a small card inside the bouquet.

She opened it and saw what was written inside.

'A small apology to upset you,' —Your admirer, B.M.

Sophia chuckled as she gently stroked her thumb over the letter B.M.

"Bryan Morrison, why do you suddenly start to behave so romantic? You kissed me last night; you tried to get close to me an hour ago, and now, when you saw that I refused to take someone else's bouquet, you sent this to me. You even realized that I was upset by overthinking about you and your friend," she said while looking at the card.

But she did not include those in the message. Because if Bryan wanted to flirt with her anonymously, she would like to continue it.

'Admirer' was the name she chose to save the unknown number.

She began to type to say something in reply,

"Thank you. I like roses."

He replied in a few seconds, as if he were waiting for me.

"I want you to place them in the flower vase on your desk so that it can give you refreshment when you work."

Sophia raised her brows. He knew every detail of her cabin.

Of course, he knew. After all, he was the CEO of this company.

"Okay."

She waited for another message, but when she noticed she did not get any reply, she stood up and put the flower in the vase. Then she continued to work.

She did not need to go to Bryan's cabin again. The whole day, she concentrated on her work without any disruption.

When it was time to leave the office, she left her cabin and turned in the direction of Bryan's cabin.

She noticed that Bryan was also coming out of his cabin. She gave him a nod and headed to the elevator together.

She smiled sheepishly as she thought about the flowers he had sent for her today. His messages were killing her inside with devotion.

As soon as they entered the elevator, she lowered her head and did not engage in any conversation with him.

When he turned his head to face her, he asked,

"What is my schedule for tomorrow?"

She looked at him and replied, "You have a meeting tomorrow morning."

"With whom?"

"With Alpha Simmon."

He gave her a nod and switched his attention to the door as it opened. They exited the elevator and made their way to the entrance of the company.

As they came out of the company, Sophia noticed Delta Edger.

Edger gave her a kind wave before approaching them.

"Hi, what's up?"

Sophia greeted him with a grin and remarked that she was doing well. While Bryan was looking at him, he inquired about the cause of his sudden arrival.

"You need to come with me," Delta Edger said to Bryan.

Sophia let the Alpha and Delta talk to each other as she bowed her head to Bryan and said,

"Alpha, I'm leaving."

Bryan frowned at her. "Where?"

"To my house."

Wasn't it obvious? Why did he even ask? She realized that he might have wanted to drop her off.

"It's late. My driver will drop you off at your house," Bryan said, motioning to his driver, who was standing outside his car, waiting for him.

His driver opened the back door for Sophia.

She glanced at Bryan's car and asked him,

"Aren't you going with Edger?"

Edger raised his brow as he noticed them talking.

"I will go with him in his car. You can go with my car. I don't think it's safe for you to go alone."

In a surprised expression, Sophia parted her lips. Bryan had demonstrated his concern for her in a straightforward manner.

She blushed and got in his car. The driver closed the door and proceeded to the driver's seat.

Bryan lowered himself to the window and looked at Sophia.

"Don't go to the university tomorrow."

"W-Why?" She asked while looking at his handsome face.

"You must come and pick me up from my house in the morning. My secretary should be with me in the meeting."