

Chapter 87

Sophia could not sleep much last night. Her mind kept going back to the words that Bryan had said. The thought of where Bryan might take her was going through her mind.

She was awake, as she was smiling while looking at the ceiling.

The alarm kept ringing since she had set the time on her phone last night. She turned her head and reached out her hand to get her phone, which was on the nightstand.

She turned off all of the alarms and yawned as she sat up in the bed.

"I couldn't sleep last night," she murmured.

She got out of bed and walked to the window.

The weather was cold, and the chilly breeze hugged her body the moment she stood by the window.

She sneezed as a cold wind entered her nostrils suddenly. She rubbed her nose and closed the window glass hurriedly.

She walked to the mirror on the dressing table and looked at herself.

"Thank God I didn't get to see a pair of dark circles under my eyes. Otherwise, how would I have gone to the party with that face?"

She glanced at the clock. She still had time for university. So she took time to shower and then got ready to go to the university.

When she left her room, she noticed her mother setting up the table for breakfast.

She could not talk to her last night. Therefore, she thought to do that right now.

After she had finished helping her mother, the two of them sat down at the table and began eating breakfast together.

"Mom, I have to tell you something," Sophia said to her mother.

Her mother gave her a nod to continue.

"Mom, I will come home late tonight. So don't worry about me and sleep in time, okay?"

"Why? Are you going to Sara's house today?"

"No, Mom. We have a celebration party tonight. So Alpha said we might have some work after the party."

"What work?"

Sophia tried to gather her thoughts, as she could not say that they were going out.

"Some office stuff, like signing papers and all. You know a CEO has so much work to do, and as his secretary, I have to stay beside him."

Her mother thought for some time, then nodded her head in agreement. "If you will be with Alpha, then I don't have to worry."

Sophia smiled at her mother when she saw how much she believed in Bryan.

She wondered how she would react if she learned that Bryan was her mate. She assumed her mother would be really happy.

After having breakfast with her mother, Sophia left her house.

When she was heading to the bus stop from her house, she noticed a familiar car was moving toward her.

She stopped walking and looked at the car. The car stopped right beside her, and the driver came out of the car.

Sophia took a quick glimpse at the window of the backseat and tried to peer inside.

The driver stood in front of her and said,

"Alpha is not inside the car."

Sophia looked away from the window in embarrassment that the driver had caught her.

"I wasn't thinking that," she mumbled.

Bryan's driver then handed her a bag. The bag, which bore the name of a prestigious brand, caught her attention as she looked into it.

"What's this?" she asked him.

"Alpha sent it to you. He told me to deliver it to your house early in the morning since I wouldn't be able to locate you later. It's good to see that I did not have to go to your house and find you here."

"But what is inside it?"

"I don't know, Miss. It should be up to you to look into it. I have no right to know that."

Sophia nodded her head and thanked him. The driver asked her if he would drive her to the university, but she rejected his offer and told him that she could go herself.

When the driver drove off from there, Sophia opened the bag and looked inside it.

She found a stunning silk dress in a crimson color. It looked like a dress of great quality at quite an expensive price.

She noticed a small card inside. She quickly grabbed the card and opened it.

"Wear this for tonight's party. You don't have to come to the office today. See you at the party."

She stared at the beautiful handwriting, which captivated her mind.

A bright smile appeared on her face. She let out a long, deep breath as butterflies began to flit around inside her stomach.

She put the card inside the bag and proceeded to the bus stop in a good mood. She took a bus and went to the university.

As soon as she stepped onto her campus, everyone began to glance at her. She frowned at them and noticed that they were looking at her bag.

It slipped her mind that people were fond of paying a great deal of attention to well-known brands.

As she entered the faculty of business studies, she paid no attention to their stares and proceeded inside.

She called Sara and asked her where she was. Sara told her that she was in the cafeteria with Nolan. When Sophia looked at the time on her watch, she realized that there were still twenty minutes remaining until the beginning of her first lesson.

She decided to join her friends in the cafeteria.

As soon as Sophia arrived at their table, Sara jumped up from her seat and welcomed her with a hug.

"Sophia."

Nolan gave her a side hug and went back to sit on his chair. "What's up, Champion? Sara said you didn't come to the university yesterday because of a deal. Did our pack get it?" he asked.

Sophia told them how Bryan won the deal and then signed it with 70% of the profit share. Their jaws dropped as they could not believe how Bryan got more than 5% without losing a single thing in the deal.

After a few minutes, Nolan left the cafeteria when his friends came to meet him.

"So, baby, what's going on? Is your Alpha happy to get the deal?" Sara asked, wiggling her brows.

"I don't know his happiness, but he did throw a party tonight."

"Can I come, please?"

Sophia held her and replied in an upset tone. "I wish I could invite you. It's a business party."

Sara shook her head. "It's okay."

Sophia felt bad that she could not invite her friend. But suddenly, her face brightened.

"Hey, wait! I can't invite you, but I can invite your dad. Uncle is also a businessman, and I can add him to the invitation list. You can come there with his invitation."

Sara clapped her hands. "You are right!"

Sophia immediately checked the invitation list. Due to the fact that she was the personal secretary of the CEO, she had the authority to include or exclude anyone from the guest list.

"Done."

"Yes!"

Both of them chimed with contentment. Sara's eyes fell on the bag, and she asked,

"What's this? Did you buy this dress for the party? I bet you are into seducing your mate, babe. Because it's a damn expensive brand."

Sophia gave the bag to Sara to see and mumbled,

"He sent it to me to wear it tonight."

Sara smirked at her. "I see."

Sophia cleared her throat and looked away while saying,

"And he said he would take me somewhere after the party."

Sara's eyes widened, and then she broke into a bright grin.

"Oh my god! He asked you for a date, Sophia! I think he will confess his feelings and ask you to be his Luna."