

Menu 423

Chapter 423: What She Believes, is What Mortals See (2)

To eat more!

Jason, who could now contain his hunger before meals, thought very clearly.

"Are you really here to eat?"

The server was still a bit stunned.

"Hurry up!"

"Didn't you hear what 13 said?"

Kuya slapped the table.

"Okay, okay."

"ABC meals, thirty portions each."

The server immediately placed the order, and then, watching his boss and that terrifying man walk 'intimately' shoulder-to-shoulder toward the corner, the server began to question his life.

In the afternoon battle, by stepping on the reputation of the 'Sword Saint,' the 'Night Owl Court' thoroughly established its reputation as the number one mysterious organization in Ang City.

Perhaps some were still doubtful about the millennium-old organizations, but none doubted the power of the 'Night Owl Court.'

And as the first one to make an appearance, 'Claw 13' was naturally studied meticulously by all forces.

The battle at the Central Park was naturally turned over and reviewed again and again.

Soon, these Ang City organizations came to the conclusion that 'Claw 13' was an invincible opponent.

This included the 'Holy Serpent Society.'

From manager Haro to Scott, Rexus, they all marked him as an invincible opponent.

And as for Kuya?

Emmmm...

It's better not to mention it.

But regardless, 'Claw 13' was remembered by the 'Holy Serpent Society's' D-level, the mobile squad, and even lower-level subsidiary members.

However, they never thought they would see 'Claw 13' in such circumstances.

Bizarre!

It was all too bizarre!

The atmosphere in the fast-food restaurant suddenly became oppressive.

The 'Holy Serpent Society' members, who should have been leisurely eating, began stuffing food into their mouths and scrambling to leave as quickly as they could.

One after another, messages started to report to the communicators of Scott and Rexus.

"What?"

"Kuya is dating 'Claw 13'?"

"Little Kuya, nicely done!"

Scott, mingling in the club, was stunned for a moment, then burst into laughter.

Rexus also laughed.

Rexus lay on the bed, clutching the game controller in one hand while forcefully slapping it with the other.

"Hahaha, even that female tyrannosaur has..."

He laughed and laughed, but suddenly, his voice trailed off.

Even the female tyrannosaur had sweet love.

But he...

Looking down at the controller and then at the "DEAD" on the screen, Rexus didn't know why, but he couldn't laugh anymore, and inexplicably, his eyes reddened, tears spinning in his sockets.

But the next moment, Rexus cheered up.

"What's wrong with being alone?"

"I have my paper-waifu figurine, and that's enough."

"And also..."

"Go to hell, 'Wolves'!"

"Stupid game, wasting my time, ruining my youth!"

Read new chapters at empire

He jumped out of bed, ejected the 'Wolves' game disc, opened the window, and threw the disc out.

Then, he put in 'Life and Body Volleyball.'

With the right choice, games are companions for life.

Quickly, Rexus became engrossed in the game again.

As for what had just happened?

He put it behind him.

Dinner?

The instant noodles beside him would suffice.

Food just needs to meet basic demands.

That was Rexus' motto.

After all, he wasn't very rich; game discs, figurines of paper-waifus, and hugging pillows were expensive.

When it came to eating, he would save wherever he could.

It had been a long time since he had a truly sumptuous dinner.

The same was true for Emma.

After her teacher's death, Emma, who had been wandering, also lived a life of hunger and fullness by turns.

So when she saw Danfoss bring out dish after dish, Emma really couldn't stop swallowing her saliva.

"It will be ready soon."

"Just a little longer."

Danfoss liked Emma very much and said so to her with a smile.

In fact, everyone liked this good-looking, polite girl.

Pregnant Pasi even wished at that moment her child would be a girl, just like Emma.

"Emma, have some of this first."

Pasi handed a plate of fruit to Emma.

"Thank you, Mrs. Pasi."

Emma thanked her, took the plate, and picked up a grape from within.

"You can call me Pasi, and he is Stark."

Pasi said with a smile, pointing at her belly.

"Stark?"

Emma looked at Pasi's belly with great curiosity.

For a girl, facing a mother always brings about such curiosity, because they will become mothers in the future.

"You can touch him."

"After he is born, he will call you sister."

Pasi said.

"Really, can I?"

Emma asked cautiously and, after Pasi nodded again, she reached out and placed her hand on Pasi's belly, feeling the rhythm of life.

"He must grow up healthy, with a smart brain, a strong body... no, he should have a heart of steel to stand shoulder to shoulder with deities."

Emma said involuntarily.

"Deity?"

"As long as he is safe, that's enough."

Pasi didn't mind and took it as a child's blessing.

Because of such a blessing, she became even happier.

For a child's words are so innocent.

Similarly, such a blessing caught the attention of Kuituo and Luogen.

A child's innocence also has limitless, leaping thoughts.

"Deity?"

"If anything dares to harm what I protect, I'll show you even a deity can be killed," Kuituo said with a cold laugh.

Emma, seeing Kuituo who is younger but acts like an adult, couldn't help but nod, "Mhm, the protecting Kuituo is invincible."

"Warrior!"

"It's warrior!"

Kuituo emphasized.

"Alright, the guarding warrior Kuituo is an unbeatable War God!"

Emma smiled and changed her words.

Then, she looked towards Luogen.

"Luogen, what do you want?"

Emma asked.

"I'm afraid of pain."

"If I could get hurt without feeling pain, recover swiftly, sense danger in advance, be able to dodge and run fast, be strong and powerful... right, I also hope I can keep my knife inside my body so I never lose it, and if it could be even harder that would be even better!"

Luogen said his wishes, and after saying so much, he felt he was being greedy, and a shy look crossed his face.

"It will definitely come true."

Emma nodded.

Esther and Avent sat to the side, looking at the playful children, and couldn't help but smile.

That's right, it was just playfulness.

They didn't believe these things would come true.

They just saw it as a game.

Even Danfoss who kept serving dishes felt the same.

"It's a pity I'm too old, I've long since stopped making wishes."

"However, if I did make a wish, I'd make myself into a superwoman," Danfoss said.

"Superwoman?"

"It will definitely come true!"

Emma echoed again.

Of course, still nobody took it seriously.

"Dinner is ready."

"Emma, take Kuituo and Luogen to wash their hands."

Danfoss said.

"OK, Danfoss."

Emma immediately agreed.

The washroom was on the side of the hall, with Kuituo in the lead, Luogen following, and Emma walking at the back, hesitation on her face.

"What's wrong, Emma?"

Luogen asked.

Faced with such a question, Emma's hesitation became more intense.

"I have deceived you."

"I am actually a... witch."

Emma said haltingly and then, seeming too nervous to look at Kuituo and Luogen's faces, could not help but lower her head.

"A witch?"

Kuituo and Luogen were stunned.

Kuituo just smirking at the corner of his mouth, clearly not caring or believing.

Luogen, however, laughed.

"We are also members of 'Brotherhood', 'Hydra', 'Taotie Society', and the 'Night Owl Court'!"

The boy said jokingly.

"'Brotherhood', 'Hydra', 'Taotie Society', and 'Night Owl Court'?"

The girl's attention was captured by the string of organizational names.

"Yes, these are four great organizations!"

"They are..."

The boy didn't think much, and went on saying.

The girl listened intently.

She didn't think Luogen was just trying to cheer her up.

She believed it was real.

So...

Everything was about to become real.