

Mia is Not 211

Chapter 211: Flirtatious Ghost

Amelia corrected him. "My name is Amelia. You can call me Mia."

The little girl smiled in embarrassment. "Ah? I thought you were called Big Sister."

Another little boy touched his bloated stomach and swayed his chair. He pointed at Amelia and shouted with a smile, "Big-bellied woman, big-bellied woman, a big-bellied woman who can eat like a fat pig!

Amelia frowned. These words made her uncomfortable. She said to the little boy seriously, "It's rude to say that others are big-bellied women. I don't like it.

I hope you won't say it again."

Seeing Amelia's retort, the little boy became more and more enthusiastic. "Big-bellied woman, you're a big-bellied woman. A big-bellied woman who eats everything left behind. Hahaha!"

The other children did not know what a big-bellied woman meant. They were just infected by the little boy's laughter and laughed with him.

"What's wrong?" The female teacher patted the little boy's head and looked at

Amelia with a smile. Thinking of the conversation between the principal and Ms. Rose, the smile on her face deepened and her tone became gentler. "Mia, why are you unhappy?"

Amelia looked at the top of the female teacher's head in surprise, then turned to look at Elmer Stevens. She opened her mouth and mouthed, "Master..." Elmer Stevens exclaimed, "How rare. It's a flirtatious ghost?"

There was a female ghost coiled above the female teacher's head, and her eyes were glowing green. The reason why Elmer Stevens found it strange was that flirtatious ghosts were usually male ghosts. Although there were also female flirtatious ghosts, they were usually not called flirtatious ghosts. They were called "seductive ghosts."

There was a difference between a flirtatious ghost and a seductive ghost. Simply put, a flirtatious ghost aimed for the heart, a seductive ghost aimed for the body. Therefore, their obsession to become a ghost was different. To put it bluntly, a flirtatious ghost wanted many women or men to like them, while an seductive ghost wanted to sleep with many men or women. However, the female ghost in front of him was indeed a flirtatious ghost and not an seductive ghost. Moreover, she was possessing a woman, which was very strange.

Elmer Stevens said, "Mia, let's talk about the flirtatious ghost later. Let's deal with the matter at hand first.'

Amelia nodded and said, "Teacher, he said that I was big-bellied woman. I was unhappy and told him not to say that, but he still said it."

The little boy made a face at Amelia mischievously.

The female teacher immediately smiled and said, "I see. It's okay. We're all good friends. Ben, apologize to Mia. Mia, say it's okay. Let's shake hands and make peace, okay?"

The female teacher's words were obviously trying to smooth things over. She did not resolve the matter at all, nor did she let the little boy realize his mistake. When the female teacher spoke, she even held her throat and pretended to be cute.

Amelia wrinkled her nose subtly.

The boy called Ben was very obedient and quickly apologized to Amelia, but Amelia did not say that it was okay. She pouted and picked up her bowl without a word, placing it in the sink.

Seeing this, the female teacher followed. She squatted down and pinched the small knot on Amelia's head. "What's wrong, Mia? Why are you unhappy? Can you tell Ms. Mango?"

When Amelia heard Ms. Mango's words, she said again, "I think Ben is in the wrong in this matter. Teacher, you should tell him clearly and let him know what he did wrong before apologizing to me." He should not apologize for no reason and let her say that it was fine. Moreover, it was obvious that the little boy did not sincerely apologize. If he really knew that he was wrong, Amelia would definitely say that it was fine, but that little boy did not think that he was wrong at all!

Ms. Mango was enlightened. "Ah, so that's how it is. That was my negligence. I'm really sorry. I will remember next time, okay?"

Amelia was speechless. Why did it have to wait till next time? Then should she just let it go this time? Amelia was not too happy and did not want to bother with this Ms. Mango.

Ms. Mango touched her cheek innocently. "Aiya, did I say something wrong again? Why your my temper so bad..."

On the other side of the classroom, Ms. Rose, who had finished her work, raised her voice. "Alright, children, come over quickly. It's time to start the roll call! "

The children immediately put down the things in their hands. Some ran quickly, while others dawdled. Amelia was the one who ran quickly and instantly stood in front of Ms. Rose..

Chapter 212: Don 't Forgive Him

A smile appeared in Ms. Rose's eyes. Seeing that there were still children dilly-dallying behind her, she reminded them, "Mr. Clock has already run one round. You don't want to be mocked by him, right? Come on, Ben, Ava, Andie, come on! The children who run fast are all very good, especially our new classmate, Amelia. Everyone has to learn from her..."

The few dilly-dallying children immediately ran forward. Even the little boy, Ben, quickly ran up. After all, regardless of whether they were adults or children, they liked to be praised.

Ms. Rose smiled and said, "It's still the same old rules. When I say children, you have to respond and let me hear who has the loudest voice!"

Ms. Rose: "Children, children."

Amelia was enlightened. So that was how it was. Hence, when Ms. Rose shouted "children" for the second time, Amelia roared, "Hey! Hey! Hey!"

The sound was so loud that the sparrows outside the window flew up and flapped their wings to escape. The teachers were also stunned. The corners of Elmer Stevens's mouth twitched.

Ms. Rose held back her laughter and praised, "Wow, Mia is the loudest. Let's reward her with a sticker, okay?" As she spoke, she pasted a "you're awesome" sticker on Amelia's forehead.

Amelia's eyes widened. She reached out and touched it. Aiyo, she had received a reward! Kindergarten was so fun!

Ms. Rose began to take attendance. Amelia watched seriously to see how the children answered. Then, when it was her turn, she still shouted loudly, "Here!"

The other two teachers could not help but laugh. This Amelia was too cute. She was so serious and cute!

Ms. Mango could not help but say, "What an adorable girl. She makes me want to give birth to such an adorable daughter."

Ms. Mango said shyly, "What nonsense are you talking about? We're not married yet."

After a while, Ms. Rose finished counting and asked Amelia to introduce herself. Amelia said the words her grandmother had given her last night. "Hello, everyone. My name is Amelia. You can call me Mia. I'm four years old this year. I'm very happy to be friends with everyone." She enunciated clearly and did not have stage fright. After saying that, the teachers took the lead to clap, and the children followed suit.

At this moment, the little boy called Ben pointed at Amelia again and shouted, "Big-bellied woman! Her name is Big-bellied woman! Hehe! Big-bellied woman!"

Amelia:

Ms. Rose's tone became very stern. She said to Ben, "Ben, it's very impolite to give others nicknames. You'll hurt Mia like this. Quickly apologize to Mia."

When the children saw Ms. Rose become serious, the noisy voices slowly weakened, and they all looked at Ben. Ben felt embarrassed, and his expression became awkward as he reluctantly apologized.

Amelia: "Hmph!" She did not want to forgive him!

Amelia looked at Ms. Rose and said, "I don't want to forgive him. When we were eating just now, he said that I was a pregnant woman. Ms. Mango asked him to apologize. He was very insincere."

Ms. Rose glanced at Ms. Mango and said to Amelia, "It's okay. If Mia doesn't want to forgive, then don't. When you think Ben has done well, you can forgive him, okay?"

Amelia was happy and nodded vigorously!

Ms. Mango felt very aggrieved. She had also educated them like this, but the two children did not listen to her. What could she do?

Next, Ms. Rose introduced a few teachers to Amelia and the teachers introduced themselves. Star Brilliance International Kindergarten was a famous kindergarten. Originally, there were only ten children in a class. Later on, when there were more students, it could only be changed to twenty children in a class. The teachers also changed from two teachers and two assistants to four teachers and three assistants. This meant there were four main teachers and three assistant teachers.

The main teachers were in charge of teaching, maintaining the order of the class, developing the students' potential, language development, and so on. The assistant teachers took care of children most of the time, such as children needing their help in changing their clothes or going to the toilet...

Other than Ms. Rose, who was called Ms. Rose directly, the other three main teachers were called fruits. They were divided into Ms. Mango, Ms. Grape, and Ms. Pomelo to facilitate children's memories. The assistant teachers were named after cute animals. They were divided into Ms. Cat, Ms. Rabbit, and Ms. Sparrow. They could be differentiated from the main teachers..

Chapter 213: Fight!

Ben sat on the small chair unhappily and kicked the child's chair in front of him from time to time. He was very restless.

The little kid in front turned around and said angrily, "Why did you kick me!"

Ben: "No, I kicked the stool, not you."

The children looked aggrievedly at Ms. Mango, who was standing behind Ben and maintaining order in the classroom. Ms. Mango quickly said, "What's wrong, what's wrong? Ben, you have to listen well in class. Ava, you have to listen well too. You are all the best children!"

Hearing this, Ava could only turn around. Amelia happened to be sitting beside her.

Ben was obedient for a while before he felt bored again. This time, he stared at Amelia's two little hairpins. Amelia's hair was black and soft. Her grandmother had braided it into a braid and tied it up. She even clipped two rabbit hairpins, making her look even cuter.

Ben mischievously stretched out her hand and pulled hard! The little rabbit hair clip was forcefully pulled off, and even a few strands of hair were pulled off.

Amelia's scalp hurt and she exclaimed. She turned around and saw that it was

Ben again. She said angrily, "What are you doing!"

Ms. Rose, who was doing an exercise routine on the podium, turned around in confusion.

Seeing that Amelia was angry, Ben felt that it was even more fun. He reached out and grabbed the little braid on her head. As he pulled, he said, "Others have braids. Why do you have a bun? I'll help you pull it off!"

Elmer Stevens was also angry this time. "Mia, tell Ms. Rose! We won't spoil this brat!"

Amelia was also angry, and it was the kind that she could not take anymore! She stood up and politely moved the small stool away. Then, she walked in front of Ben and reached out to grab his hair!

Ben was in pain and subconsciously wanted to wave his hand to hit Amelia. Amelia was not to be outdone. As she blocked with her small hand, she did not idle her feet and kicked Ben's knee!

Ben was kicked back a few steps and fell to the ground with a bang.

All of this happened very quickly. By the time Ms. Rose reacted and walked up to Amelia and Ben, Ben had already been kicked out.

Ben: "Boohoo, Teacher, she hit someone! She's an idiot. She dared to hit me, she'll die a horrible death!"

Ben was crying so hard that he was out of breath. He was cursing out all kinds of vulgarities, and no one knew who he had learned it from.

Amelia puffed up her cheeks and looked at Ben, her face filled with stubbornness and unwillingness to admit defeat. She was fierce.

Elmer Stevens was stunned. He did not expect his little disciple to fight someone on the first day of kindergarten. This...

The classroom instantly fell into chaos. Ben cried loudly and cursed as he cried. Amelia felt a little pain on her face. She raised her hand and touched it. It was bleeding. Ben must have scratched her face when he was scratching randomly.

Elmer Stevens's expression instantly turned cold. "Who are the parents of this child? I'll look for them tonight!" A child's wrongdoings was a reflection of the parents! This child was full of vulgarities. It was obvious that he had learned it from the adults! If Amelia beat up the younger one, he would beat up the older ones! Not only did he have to beat up the older ones who were still alive, but he also had to find the deceased Ben's elders and ask them how they produced the next generation to produce such a bastard thing!

Old Madam Walton never dreamed that the kindergarten would call her as soon as she arrived home.

"What? Mia fought?" Old Madam Walton hung up the phone and hurriedly returned to kindergarten with Old Master Walton. On the way, she did not forget to call George.

George was also stunned. "What? A fight? Is Mia injured?" However, Old

George immediately abandoned the meeting and rushed to kindergarten.

On the way, George called Alex again.

Alex: "What? My daughter fought? Did she win?"

George: . He was wrong. How could he expect Alex to have a normal train of thought?

After Alex hung up the phone, he snorted. He knew that kindergarten was filled with children. Fighting was just a small fight. There was still the teacher watching, so there wouldn't be any big trouble. Since there was no safety problem, of course he had to ask if she had won. If she hadn't won, he would get revenge for his daughter and hit the other party's parents! In any case, his daughter couldn't suffer!

The Walton family's driver stepped on the accelerator quickly, and George's assistant, Erik, also drove as fast as possible. Alex's off-road vehicle was even more impressive. It rushed over from the outer ring and rampaged all the way!

Chapter 214: It's Reasonable to Hit Someone

The kindergarten principal: "... " He really wanted to cry. Indeed, the more he was afraid, the more it happened!

Alex and the others met Amelia in the office, as well as another little boy who had fought with her.

There were a few red marks on Amelia's face. She was bleeding. The teacher had treated her simply and applied disinfectant iodophor. The yellowish-red iodophor was smeared on a large area. At first glance, it looked a little serious.

The little boy, Ben, was also injured and had been wiped with iodophor. From time to time, he would cry and point at Amelia to scold her. Amelia sat on the sofa with her small hands on her knees. She faced Ben's curses with a straight face. "Cry, cry, cry. You only know how to cry. If you have the ability to hit someone, don't cry!"

Ben choked up. "Just you wait, I'll get my grandma to beat you to death!"

Amelia snorted and turned to see Alex enter. She immediately pouted aggrievedly. "Daddy!" She did not feel aggrieved just now, but when she saw her father and grandparents and Eldest Uncle, she felt aggrieved.

Alex took a few steps forward and hugged Amelia to examine her carefully. "I heard that you fought?" Amelia felt guilty. "Yes..."

Alex: "Did you win?"

Amelia's eyes lit up. She waved her small fists. "I won!"

The principal: "..."

The other teachers:

Ben's parents had yet to arrive. When he saw that Amelia's father was so tall that it was scary, he did not dare to cry.

Alex looked around and sneered. "Daughter, remember this. We won't take the initiative to bully others, but if others bully us, we have to let them know that we're not to be trifled with, understand?"

Amelia: "Yes, yes! Got it!"

"What's going on?" Old Master Walton asked with a straight face. His face was already quite scary when he was serious. Now, when he asked sternly, people were so frightened that their livers trembled.

The kindergarten principal's legs and stomach were about to cramp. He stammered, "Um, listen to me... No, Ms. Rose, tell me..."

Ms. Rose was also afraid! However, since the principal had spoken, she could only brace herself and say, "Ben was mischievous in class. He grabbed Mia's hair clip and hair. Mia got angry and hit him."

Ms. Rose wiped the sweat off her forehead. Actually, Amelia could not be blamed for this. Amelia endured it three times before she could not take it anymore and attacked.

Before Ms. Rose could finish speaking, an old woman with a head of silver hair pushed open the door and entered with a bang. She happened to hear Ms. Rose's explanation and started scolding without a word, "You started hitting people after they touching your hair and hair clips? Who is it? Come out and let me see which uneducated child is so fierce!"

When Ben saw that his backer had arrived, he immediately ran over. "Grandma! She was the one who hit me! Boohoo, she even kicked me. My knee hurts..."

The old woman scolded angrily, "How dare you hit my precious grandson? How can you be unreasonable? How did your parents educate your child!" Alex hugged Amelia and looked down at the old lady, who was less than 1.5 meters tall. "Come, educate me. Let me know how to educate children."

Initially, Alex felt that if the other party's parents were reasonable, he would reluctantly reason with them. After all, they were children, so it was normal for them to fight. Unexpectedly, before the other party's parents could figure out what was going on, they said that their Mia did not have a good upbringing and even pushed the blame to their Mia. Alex could not tolerate this.

The old woman raised her head with difficulty and saw the very tall Alex. Yes, unfamiliar faces. Instantly, she became even angrier. "You're acting reasonable when you hit someone?"

Ms. Rose hurriedly explained, "It's not like that. Ben's Grandma, you've misunderstood. At first, during breakfast, Ben made fun of Mia. Later, when Mia introduced herself, he also caused trouble. Later, he even pulled Mia's hair, so Mia couldn't take it anymore and hit him."

Ben's grandmother paused for a moment before getting even angrier. "What's wrong with making fun of her? What kind of ugly words can a child say? You want to hit someone just like that? You're too petty! Besides, which boy isn't naughty when it comes to pulling hair? It's not a big deal even if your hair is pulled. Is there a need to hit him?"

Ms. Rose: "... As a teacher, she should be impartial. Only then could she resolve the conflict between the two parents. However, perhaps it was because Amelia was too obedient, or perhaps it was because Ben's Grandma's words were too infuriating, Ms. Rose took out the little rabbit hair clip in her hand and said to Ben's Grandma, "Ben was not gentle at all."

Chapter 215: Just Stay Alive

There was still a small strand of hair wrapped around the little rabbit's hair clip. One could imagine how much strength Ben had used at that time and how painful it was for Amelia.

Alex's expression turned ugly. Old Madam Walton, Old Master Walton, and George also felt a chill run down their spines.

The principal felt a headache coming on. He hinted, "Ms. Rose..." He wanted Ms. Rose to turn the problem from a big one to a small one and not cause any more conflict.

However, Ms. Rose did not. Instead, she stated expressionlessly, "During breakfast, Mia had a good appetite and ate a little too much. Ben made fun of Mia and said that she was a big-bellied woman who ate everything." Ben's Grandma:

Ms. Rose continued, "Mia is a transfer student. Today is the first day she reported for class. When she introduced herself, Ben called her a big-bellied woman in front of the entire class."

Ben's Grandma: . ' So what if she called her a big-bellied woman? Children were innocent and did not beat around the bush. On the other hand, Amelia was bothered by her grandson on her first day of school. Amelia must have done something wrong. Otherwise, why would her grandson criticize her instead of others?

Hearing Ms. Rose's words, Old Madam Walton was already furious! What was even more infuriating was that the other party's parents still had a nonchalant attitude!

Alex handed Amelia to Old Madam Walton and said coldly, "Tell me, how do you want to resolve this matter?"

Ben's grandmother's face stiffened, and she immediately said unyieldingly, "What do you mean by how? Didn't you hear what the teacher said? It was your child who hit someone first! Is there a reason for hitting someone?" Ben's grandmother snorted, not feeling that there was anything wrong with what her grandson did.

Alex sneered. "If your child didn't speak ill or touch my daughter, how can my daughter hit him?"

Ben's grandmother was getting impatient. "Didn't I already say it? It's not a big deal for children to pull each other's hair. Which little boy doesn't pull a girl's hair? Instead, it's you guys who should reflect on yourselves. Why didn't my grandson pull other people's hair? It must be because your child is vain and even wears a hair clip to school. She swayed in front of my grandson, causing my grandson to not be able to focus on class." After saying that, she still felt that she made a lot of sense. She pulled Ben and asked about his well-being, asking him where he was injured and if it hurt. She even said that she wanted to go to the hospital for a checkup and asked Alex and the others to pay the medical fees!

Old Madam Walton was so angry that she trembled! What kind of person was this?!

George's expression was also very ugly. If it was an adult that fought, he could have called the police to arrest the other party and educate him well. However, the other party was a child now. He could not call the police. It was useless even if he called the police. At most, he would be taught a lesson and fined a few yuan, but did the Walton family lack money?

Suddenly, there was a slap.

This sudden slap stunned everyone. Ms. Rose looked at Alex in a daze. There was no emotion in Alex's eyes. Not hitting women or elderly? It did not exist with him! He was protective! He would hit anyone who bullied his daughter, regardless of gender or age!

Ben's grandmother was so angry that she was trembling. She covered her face and said, "You... you actually dared to hit me!"

Alex was expressionless. "Why wouldn't I dare? You have to think carefully.

There are so many people here. Why wouldn't I hit you without hitting others?" As he spoke, he turned his wrist. "Also, your skin is too thick. My hand hurts from hitting you."

Ben's Grandma:

Old Master Walton and Old Madam Walton opened their mouths, not knowing what to say. George, who was about to make a call, stopped. How should he put it? It had to be Alex!

Although it was quite immoral to hit an old lady, it was really satisfying!

Alex's eyes were cold. "If you want to go to the hospital for a checkup, you still want us to compensate for the medical fees, right? Come, Mia, Daddy will give you a million yuan. Beat him up with all your might and just leave him alive. It doesn't matter if he falls into a coma. Daddy will treat him for the rest of his life!"

Amelia: She was stunned.

Ben's grandmother was also stunned. "You, you..."

Everyone...

George couldn't help but want to laugh! Alex was really unpredictable!

Ben's Grandma was so angry that she was about to vomit blood!

"Just you wait, just you wait..." Ben's grandmother's head was buzzing. She had never been bullied like this before! She was wondering why the other party would hit someone over a small matter.. It turned out that they had learned it from their parents! With such parents, children would grow up crooked sooner or later!

Chapter 216: Apologize

Ben's Grandma was furious as she glared at the principal and Ms. Rose. "You don't care, right? Fine! Just you wait, I'm going to expose you!"

The principal: "... He wanted to interfere too, but did he have the chance to speak? Didn't you keep nagging and make the Walton family angry?

Seeing Ben's grandmother so irritable, Old Madam Walton finally felt relieved. George put away his phone and said to Erik, "Go and check which family this is from.'

The principal smiled. "Mr. Walton, take a seat first. Everyone, calm down..."

Ms. Rose also panicked. "Yes, it's just a small matter. Everyone, let's discuss it..." Boohoo, she had also calmed down now. She knew that she had been too impulsive just now. She kept feeling that Ben's grandmother was too much and was so shameless. She was afraid that Amelia's parents would suffer. Now that she looked at it, Alright, Amelia's family was the real powerful one! She was no longer worried about Amelia. Instead, she was worried about Ben's family. If this matter blew up, it would not be good for Ben's family. Ms. Rose did not want the children in her class to end up in a big family's grudge because of an argument. In the end, the children would still be affected.

Unexpectedly, while the principal and Ms. Rose were trying their best to suppress the resentment of the Walton family, not only did Ben's Grandma not appreciate it, she even glared at them and said, "What, you still want to threaten me?" She often read celebrity magazines, but she had never seen

George. As for Alex, she had never even heard of him. Therefore, in Ben's

Grandma's eyes, they were just a little rich. Who didn't have a little money?

Ben's grandmother pointed at the Walton family and shouted, "Let me tell you, it's not just your family that has people. Our family also has people! Do you know about the Burton family in Buffalo? That's a big family that works with our family! You're finished. Let me tell you, you're finished!"

George, Old Madam Walton, and Old Master Walton all looked at Alex.

Alex: "... Haha." It was the Burton family again. In the past, the Burton family disdained dealing with businessmen the most. Did they start interacting with businessmen after being warned last time?

After Ben's grandmother finished speaking, she saw that the Walton family and Alex did not move and thought that they were afraid. She raised her head and was about to leave with Ben when Alex suddenly said, "Wait."

Ben's Grandma sneered: "Why, now you want to apologize?"

Alex curled his lips and his eyes were cold. "Yes, you haven't apologized to my daughter."

Ben's Grandma: 'I???' No, she was the one who was beaten up. Why did he want her to apologize?

Alex looked at Ben and said indifferently, "As a man, you should apologize for your mistakes."

Ben was so frightened that he gripped his grandmother's walking stick tightly.

Alex said, "On account of your young age today, I'll give you a chance to turn over a new leaf. If you still don't recognize your mistake, then what happened today won't be settled so easily."

Ben did not know what was going on, but his heart felt inexplicably heavy. He subconsciously wanted to say "I'm sorry", but at this moment, his grandmother pulled him and scolded Alex angrily, "Are you human! How dare you threaten a child like this! What did Ben do wrong? You're going too far with your words!"

When Ben heard this, he immediately felt righteous again. That's right, he didn't do anything wrong. Why should he apologize? He don't want to apologize! Then, he held Grandma's hand and left aggressively.

The principal wanted to cry, but he had no choice but to squeeze out an ugly smile. "I'm sorry, Mr. Walton, Mr. Burton. It's all because our school didn't manage it well..."

Outside the door, Ms. Mango stood uneasily. Just now, she had been standing outside the door and did not dare to enter, but she had seen everything. Seeing Ms. Rose come out, Ms. Mango said with a long face, "Ms. Rose, I'm sorry. It's all my fault. I was clearly the closest to Ben and Mia, but I was frightened and did not stop them immediately... If they had not fought, none of this would have happened. Boohoo..."

Ms. Rose was exhausted. She didn't want to speak anymore.

At this moment, Ms. Mango said, “By the way, Ms. Rose, Amelia’s parents look very impressive, but I don’t think I’ve seen them in magazines...”.

Ms. Rose walked away. Before she left, she said, “Those who can be in magazines are indeed very powerful, but those who are really powerful don’t like magazines.”

Ms. Mango’s eyes flickered. She secretly looked at Alex.. This man was so tall and handsome! Most importantly, his unruliness and wildness made her heart race...

Chapter 217: Just a Thank You?

Ms. Mango secretly watched for a while, and her heart was pounding. Mia’s father was really charming, making it difficult for her to extricate herself. Her face was hot, and she felt that she was in love.

Ms. Mango did not notice that a male teacher was rushing over from not far away. This was the school’s PE teacher. Typically, there were very few male teachers among the junior teachers, except for private kindergartens like Glorious Star International Kindergarten. Every class here was matched with a male teacher. This male teacher was Mr. Blair, one of Ms. Mango’s targets.

Mr. Blair was a PE teacher. He was warm and cheerful and was a very kind person. He went over and patted Ms. Mango. Ms. Mango was shocked and smiled. She patted her chest and said coquettishly, “It’s you. What are you doing? You scared me to death.”

Mr. Blair: “Come here, follow me.

Ms. Mango hurriedly said, “Where are we going?”

Mr. Blair brought Ms. Mango all the way to a remote place before sizing her up nervously. “Are you alright? I heard that two children in your class fought and even called their parents over. I heard that you were the one who looked after those two children.”

Ms. Mango bit her lip and blamed herself. "It's all my fault. I was in a daze for a while and didn't pay attention..."

Mr. Blair patted her and comforted her. "It's okay. You don't want to either. You have to be more careful when you work in the future. Children are quick." His a little helpless. He knew Ms. Mango's problem. Sometimes, she liked to be in a daze and couldn't react in time.

Ms. Mango sniffed. "I was thinking about you at that time."

Mr. Blair asked gently, "Then have you thought it through? Will you choose me or him?"

Ms. Mango immediately looked pained. "Brother Jack, don't force me anymore.

I'm really in pain... I love you very much, but Tom is also very good to others.

He treats me very well and likes me so much. Without me, he'll break down. Although I don't like him anymore, I can't bear to hurt him..."

Ms. Mango added, "Give me a little more time. I'll let Tom slowly accept it..

Jack nodded.

Ms. Mango added, "By the way, do you know who Amelia's parents are? Especially her father. I just stole a glance. He's so tall and fierce. I was frightened..."

Jack said, "Amelia is Emma's sister. Amelia's grandfather is from the Walton family. As for Amelia's father, I'm not too sure."

Ms. Mango was secretly shocked. The Walton family... was actually that very low-key aristocratic family, the Walton family! She thought of George, who had not spoken much and was wearing a suit. So he was the CEO of the Walton family!

Ms. Mango felt tempted again.

After the fight ended, Amelia did not go home with her father, grandparents. Instead, she insisted on finishing today's class and only returned after school.

After school, Emma saw the wound on Amelia's face and knew that she had fought with someone. She immediately gritted her teeth. "He actually dared to bully you! Why didn't you come to me?! I'll beat him up too!"

Amelia was conflicted. "Sister, I didn't have time to call you back then." Emma paused. "That's true. Don't let me see that boy next time, or I'll hit him every time I see him!"

Emma was so angry now! When she went out, she promised her family that she would take good care of Mia. In the end, Mia was injured on the first day of school.

Emma's face fell as she pulled Amelia onto the school bus.

The school buses left one by one. Parents who came to pick up their children from school also picked them up one by one. The lively kindergarten returned to silence.

Not long after, a man appeared at the entrance of the kindergarten with a box of bento in his hand. Ms. Mango ran out in small steps and rubbed his hands coquettishly. "Tom, why are you here again? Didn't you say not to look for me in the kindergarten?"

Tom Sterling handed the bento to Ms. Mango and pursed his lips. "I'm afraid you'll forget to eat again and have a stomachache."

Ms. Mango took the bento and said gratefully, "Thank you, Tom. You're really too good to me..."

Tom said, "Just a thank you?"

Ms. Mango said shyly, "Then what else do you want?"

Tom pointed at his cheek. Ms. Mango's face instantly turned red. She looked around and quickly kissed Tom's face. Then, she stomped her feet and said, "How annoying!" With that, she hugged the bento box and ran away like a frightened bird.

Tom looked at her back and could not help but laugh. He said in a low voice,

"How cute."

What no one knew was that the flirtatious ghost wrapped around Ms. Mango's head had an intoxicated expression and was entangled even more tightly with Ms. Mango..

Chapter 218: It's Wrong to Hit Someone

Old Madam Walton stood at the door and waited. Finally, Amelia returned. She hurriedly reached out to catch Amelia, who had gotten out of the car, and said with heartache, "Mia, come over quickly. Come and let Grandma take a look. Does the wound on your face still hurt?"

Amelia shook her head. "It doesn't hurt anymore!" However, the wound was covered in iodophor. It looked red and a little scary.

Old Madam Walton felt stifled. The last time Alex took Amelia away, she injured her forehead and applied a large amount of iodophor. Now that it was her first day in kindergarten, her face was also covered in iodophor.

Amelia did not care about the wound on her cheek. Instead, she stretched out her hand to show off to Old Madam Walton. "Grandma, look, I got a lot of rewards!" There was a "You're so awesome" pasted on her forehead, and two thumbs-up on the back of her left hand. There were two Elsa stickers on the back of her right hand.

Amelia acted as if she had won a grand prize and showed them to her family one by one. She did not even let go of the parrot, Seven. "Seven, look. I got a lot of stickers. Do you know? Only children who perform very well have this sticker. I'm amazing, right?!"

Seven flapped his wings and praised, "Impressive, impressive!"

Amelia was extremely happy. She could not bear to tear off the sticker when she was showering. In the end, Alex brought a notebook over and specially collected stickers for her. Under each sticker, Amelia had to explain, "This was because I was the loudest when the teacher called out names. Ms. Rose rewarded me."

Alex held a pen and made a note under the sticker. "Loudest during roll call. Reward: one sticker."

Amelia added, "This is for finishing lunch first and clearing the plate. Teacher rewarded it."

Alex hummed and wrote, "First place in the meal. Reward."

Alex: "Teacher's good helper..."

The father and daughter lay on the desk, one talking and the other writing. They were extremely serious.

In the blink of an eye, it was nighttime. When Alex coaxed Amelia to sleep, he asked in a low voice, "Mia, do you think Dad did the right thing today?"

Amelia thought for a moment and said, "It doesn't seem right to hit someone." However, she had also hit someone. She couldn't ask her father to do something she hadn't even done, right?

Alex patted Amelia's head and said in a low and pleasant voice, "Yes, Mia is right. It's wrong to hit people. However, you have to have different methods for different people. Some people have to use other methods if you can't reason with them. People can't be too inflexible and be controlled by all kinds of rules, understand? You have to learn to be flexible.'

Amelia nodded as if she understood.

Alex did not expect Amelia to understand too much now. He was someone who had crawled out of the darkness. He understood better than anyone how dirty the back of this bright world was and how complicated human nature was. He hoped that his precious daughter would have the consciousness to protect herself while being kind. She would not take the initiative to bully others, but she would not be bullied either. She just had to be a straightforward and happy little girl.

Elmer Stevens, who had been resting with his eyes closed in midair, opened his eyes and said, "You said that you were worried about Mia's father. Have you seen him now?"

Elmer Stevens: "Are you relieved? You can reincarnate now, right?"

Helena discussed with Elmer Stevens pitifully, "Brother, Brother! Can't we discuss it anymore? It's fine if you let me transmigrate with my memories. If not, we can start with the fertilized egg!"

Elmer Stevens: "... He was so angry that he was about to laugh!

Helena: "But when I was alive, I didn't believe that there were ghosts in this world either. But look, aren't there ghosts?"

Elmer Stevens:

Helena said pitifully, "What did I do wrong? I'm just a pitiful mother who wants to be with her daughter."

Elmer Stevens:

Helena: "You're too bad. You're a bad ghost. You didn't even give us a chance to meet Mia and her daughter!" Her eyes flickered with tears. She blinked her eyelashes and tears fell. "Boohoo... I'm so pitiful. Mia is so pitiful... Boohoo..."

Chapter 219: Slapping Helena to Death

Elmer Stevens said, "Besides... this is Mia's first time taking a plane. Didn't I let you meet when she flew from Bradford City to the capital?" He didn't even give her a chance. He was simply lying through his teeth.

Helena raised a finger. "Then this is the last time. Let me see Mia one last time. Big Brother, I beg you!"

Elmer Stevens was about to vomit blood. "Stop, I'm not your brother. Your brother is George. If you want to look for your brother, look for him!" He had finally seen through it. The last time Helena said was not the last time at all!

Why hadn't he seen that she had such a persistent personality in the past? Could it be that after a person turned into a ghost, their personality could change?

Helena's eyes lit up. "Really? Can I look for my brother now? You agree?"

Elmer Stevens was speechless. He reached out and a small booklet appeared out of thin air. He flipped open the page that belonged to Amelia and said,

"Everything about Mia will be recorded every time a major change happens. Therefore, it's not that I don't want you to meet. I can only tell you that Mia is experiencing a very critical test in this life. Everything recorded in this booklet will be presented one by one after her training ends. Then, it will be calculated one by one." This thing was equivalent to Amelia's life record. Everything she experienced was fixed and arranged. Her meeting with Helena and Helena's meeting with the Walton family were not planned.

It was against the rules to let Helena meet Amelia. If Elmer Stevens used his authority to help Helena meet Amelia, this would appear on Amelia's life record.

Elmer Stevens said, "This will affect whether Amelia's training can succeed. Do you understand?"

Helena stared at the booklet. The booklet's leather was simple, but the pages were golden. However, she could not see the words on it, but she also knew that Elmer Stevens would not lie to her. There were some things that she could not know.

Helena felt lonely, but she still forced herself to act shameless and muttered, "Alright, but are you sure you're not fooling me? There's no words on it at all. If you want to reject me, there's no need to make up such a complicated lie!"

Elmer Stevens closed the booklet angrily and patted Helena's head. "Behave yourself and hurry up and reincarnate!"

Unexpectedly, there was a problem with this light pat! A bolt of lightning suddenly flashed by the window, and thunder sounded in the sky. Helena was smashed into pieces by the booklet. Like fireflies, she flew away uncontrollably.

Helena:

Elmer Stevens: "... Her soul dissipated?! With a pat, her soul dissipated? Elmer Stevens was stunned. He hurriedly wanted to gather Helena, whose soul had turned into fragments, but he could not.

Helena's eyes were filled with shock. Before her soul completely dissipated, she still instructed, "Lord Stevens, please take good care of Mia. No matter..." Before she could finish speaking, Helena's soul instantly disappeared, leaving not a trace.

Elmer Stevens: "... He was so frightened that he broke out in cold sweat. He had slapped the mother of the miniature King of Hell to death? Was it over for him?!

Elmer Stevens hurriedly stood up and flew out of the window with a whoosh. He had set up an inescapable net. As long as it was a soul within a hundred miles, it could not escape. However, he carefully checked the souls that were gathered. There was no Helena. She seemed to have really dissipated in the world.

"It's over..." Elmer Stevens's already pale face turned even paler. "It's over, it's over. It's completely over..."

Helena had used all her luck to give birth to Amelia, the Little King of Hell. That was why she died young. She had contributed a lot and would definitely be able to reincarnate well after her death. In her next life, she would be rich and noble. She would not have to worry about food or clothes for the rest of her life and would enjoy life. But now, she had been slapped to death by his book!

Elmer Stevens: "... He had a headache. He searched for the entire night but could not find Helena's soul. He even forgot to settle the score with Ben's Grandma.

It was almost dawn.

Amelia woke up feeling energetic and full of energy. She got up and changed her clothes. She brushed her teeth and washed her face. She packed her small bag and carried it out happily.

Compared to Amelia's energy, Emma looked like she was still half-asleep. She kept yawning. "Uh, Mia, you're up so early.. Let's go..."

Chapter 220: Daddy Will Be Good at Home

Because she was going to kindergarten with Amelia, Emma woke up very early.

Old Master Walton put away the newspaper and asked, "Is everything packed?"

Amelia: "Yes, yes!"

Emma: "Yes..." As she spoke, she yawned. Then, she subconsciously opened her bag to check. Amelia looked over curiously and saw that Emma's small bag was actually filled with a night lamp and a smelly sock?!

Alex had just finished his morning exercise when he saw Emma and Amelia leave. He asked, "You're going to kindergarten so early?"

There were two school buses for Glorious Star International Kindergarten. One was at half past seven, and the other was at eight. Yesterday, Emma and Amelia took the eight o'clock bus. Alex thought that it would be the same today. Amelia nodded. "Yes, yes! I'm going to kindergarten! Daddy, be good at home!" Alex:

Amelia waved her hand. "No need, no need. I can go to kindergarten for breakfast!"

This was how children were. They were curious about school. Even the kindergarten food was especially tempting.

After Emma and Amelia, the other three boys of the Walton family also got on the school bus to the elementary school.

On the school bus, Emma tilted her head and lay on Amelia's shoulder to catch up on her sleep. Amelia turned around and looked around before seeing Elmer Stevens slowly floating over. She was stunned and lowered her voice to ask, "Master, what's wrong? Did you do something bad last night? Why do you look so tired?"

Elmer Stevens: "... You might not believe it, but I slapped your mother to death with a book.

Elmer Stevens's lips twitched as he tried his best to calm down. "Ah, it's nothing. I worked overtime yesterday and was too tired."

Amelia stared at Elmer Stevens for a while and suddenly said, "Master, are you hiding something from me?"

Elmer Stevens: "... He paused for a second and shook his head decisively. "No, how is that possible? I can't hide anything from you!"

Amelia looked at Elmer Stevens suspiciously. She kept feeling that he looked guilty. She had never seen her master go to work, let alone work overtime. Therefore, overtime must be a lie. However, Amelia was considerate and did not ask further. Her master would not harm her. If there was anything, he would tell her directly!

Seeing that Amelia did not ask further, Elmer Stevens heaved a sigh of relief. Then, his head hurt even more. He really could not find Helena. What should he do?!

When Amelia arrived at school, she realized that the little boy who had fought with her yesterday, Ben, did not come to kindergarten. A little girl ran over with a bowl of rice and sat with Amelia, looking at her with sparkling eyes. It was the girl who had been kicked by Ben yesterday.

“Mia, you’re amazing!” The little girl said, “My name is Ava. Do you still remember me?”

Amelia nodded as she ate. “I remember!” Her memory was super good!

Ava said excitedly, “I heard from my mother that Ben was hospitalized by you!”

Amelia was stunned. “What?”

Ava immediately leaned over and whispered to Amelia, “Ben’s grandmother sent a message in the class group chat yesterday. After scolding the teacher, she scolded the school and even scolded your father. Then, your father scolded her back.”

Amelia was speechless. There was such a thing? She had not heard of it. Her father and Eldest Uncle had not told her.

Amelia asked Ava seriously, “Then how did you know?”

Ava said, “My mother said so. Ben’s grandmother even sent a photo of Ben being hospitalized. I saw it.”

Amelia was shocked. Oh my god, he was hospitalized just like that? She was very puzzled. She hadn’t used any strength yesterday. Why was Ben hospitalized? Were boys so fragile?

However, Ava was very happy. In the past, Ben often gave her nicknames. Ben even pulled her hair and pulled her face. She always warned him not to do this, but the angrier she was, the more Ben went overboard. Then, she went home and told her mother that her mother had gone to talk to Ben’s

Ben's Grandma said loudly, "You said that it was our Ben who pinched your daughter's face. Did you see that? I even said that your daughter was lying and deliberately framed our Ben! Moreover, your daughter is fine and her face isn't swollen.. Why are you complaining!"
