

Mistaken Marriage, Unexpected Love

Chapter 114

Chapter 114 Being In Danger Again

Camila followed him obediently

Camila knew the more submissive she was, the more the skinny man would relax

The bulky man, Aidan, was following them closely behind.

"You'd better be quick, Dillen. I'm dying to have my turn."

"After you insulted me? No way. I'm going to take my time," Dillen, the skinny man, retorted

"Let's see how long you can last," Aidan sneered

Dillen smirked confidently

He then turned to Camila and started unfastening his belt

"Hurry up and take off your clothes."

Camila began unbuttoning her shirt, but her eyes darted about frantically, looking for a weapon

Among the weeds and rubble, she spotted a sharp-edged stone. She walked toward it and stepped on it. "It might hurt if we lay down here." Dillen snickered, unknowingly letting his defences down

With a fake grin on her face, Camila suggested, "You should lay down your clothes here."

"Sure."

Dillen enthusiastically did as he was told. He was already in the process of taking off his clothes anyway
When he started disrobing, Camila reached down and picked up the stone. Suddenly, catching Dillen off guard, she slammed it into an artery in his neck. In an instant, blood began to spurt out Dillen cried out in pain and brought a hand to his neck. "That hurt, you bitch!" When he reached out to grab her hair, she ducked out of the way and ran away

The instant Aidan heard the noise, he sprinted over to where they were Camila started running in the direction of the ocean.

Thankfully, she knew how to swim

When Trudy found out that Camila had escaped, she gave the two men immediate orders. "Go after her! Don't let her get away!"

Camila's left leg began to hurt as she pushed herself to run faster. It was because she had not recovered fully yet She clenched her teeth and pushed through the discomfort. Getting caught and having her body violated was a worse fate than aggravating her injury

She continued running till she reached a cliff overlooking the ocean

With the absence of lights and only the moon to guide her, she was unable to determine if the base of the cliff was made of rocks or water

After a while, Trudy and the two men caught up to her Dillen glared ferociously at Camila. "I'm going to torture this bitch once I catch her. How dare she lie and attack me?" @

Aidan clicked his tongue. "Why did you hurt my buddy? You must be tired of living already."

Trudy directed a pointed look at the two. "What are you standing there for? Hurry up and get her!"

They came at Camila from all three sides. It was one against three. The odds were stacked against her Camila bit her lower lip. The fact that she was a competent swimmer was the only good thing about the situation. She had no room for hesitation. If they caught her, she was doomed With that in mind, she leaped from the cliff

"Fuck! Below that is the ocean," Dillen exclaimed Trudy sprinted to the side of the cliff and peered over the edge. She could not relax until she saw Camila's corpse. She turned to Dillen and Aidan and ordered, "Go down and look for her!"

"We can't swim," the two said at the same time

"Don't you want the money?" Trudy asked threateningly

The men looked at each other before Aidan said, "There's a trail over there. Let's go down and look for her."

"Hurry up!" Trudy urged

Camila was nowhere to be found by the time they reached the beach

They did not know if she was still alive or not

It was dark, and Dillen and Aidan could not swim. Instead of actually searching for Camila, they just splashed themselves with water and pretended to do so

Dillen placed his palm over his neck. The bleeding had left him feeling lightheaded. "I should go to the hospital before I die from blood loss."

Aidan thought for a while before saying, "We'll tell her that the woman is dead. We have to get the money no matter what."

"Got it." Dillen nodded in understanding

Despite their line of work, they avoided any activity that might put their lives in jeopardy

They were only interested in money and nothing else Wet to the skin, they informed Trudy that they had seen Camila's dead body in the ocean. "We left her body floating there. There are a lot of sharks in the ocean. It won't take long before she gets eaten."

"Really?" Trudy asked in suspicion

"We're not lying. If you don't believe us, you can go there and see for yourself." Both men put up their hands as though to make a solemn oath that they were telling the truth

In the end, they managed to convince Trudy to believe them

If Camila did not die after falling from that height, she certainly did so in the water

"Okay."

Trudy nodded

She then fulfilled her end of the bargain and gave them the money she promised

With a sense of accomplishment, she returned home Her son was now the Haynes family's sole heir. Everything they owned belonged to her now Trudy cackled evilly at the thought Unbeknownst to her, Camila was still alive The spot where she leaped was very deep, which provided sufficient cushioning for the impact. Thankfully, she had been a good swimmer ever since she learned how to swim as a child Camila groaned quietly. She was in an unfamiliar place, and she desperately wanted to get to land, but she did not want to return to where she came from, afraid that Trudy had not left yet
The sky had already begun to glow at this point It was then that a bright light illuminated her body, and a voice said,
"Someone is here."
Camila's eyes widened. Was Trudy there?
Despite her best efforts, she was unable to outswim the boat and was forced to abandon her attempt at escape.
Then, she heard Ryder's voice
"Debora? Is that you?" When he shone a light on Camila's face, he realized she was not Debora Ryder shook his head, showing his mild disappointment Willie and his men had left after they had spent the night searching for Debora
As much as Ryder searched, he could not find any sign of her anywhere, either

It was highly unlikely that she had made it through this ordeal alive

The thought of it disheartened Ryder

"What are you doing here?" Ryder asked Something was off. Neither the water nor the shoreline was appropriate for casual swimming. How did she even get down there?

Camila, her head exposed as she floated in the water, gazed up at Ryder, who was on the ship. He had briefly confused her with Debora, which meant he was looking for her

According to Isaac, Debora went abroad, so why was Ryder searching for her in the ocean? Someone approached Ryder and whispered, "That's Isaac's woman."

Recognition immediately glinted in Ryder's eyes. Debora once told him that Isaac had a thing for a woman named Camila Haynes Was it her?

He turned to Camila with rage in his eyes as he reflected on the fact that

Isaac had caused Debora's death

He might have lost to Isaac, but he could easily deal with a woman

Soon, he ordered his men to bring Camila to the ship

Camila wanted to swim away, but the strength had long since left her body

In the end, she did not bother struggling against her new captors. Being in the water for too long had left her shivering and exhausted. In her current state, she could not do anything, even if she tried

In any case, since she had no ill will toward Ryder, surely, he would not harm her

Once Camila was brought to the ship, Ryder gave her a thorough once-over

She was drenched from head to toe, and her clothes clung to her body like a second skin, revealing her curvy form that was neither thin nor fat

She obstructed Ryder's view of her body by ducking behind the box next to her

"Are you going ashore?" Camila asked

"Of course, we're going ashore. We're not fishermen to stay here for long," Ryder replied

He then questioned, "What's your connection to Isaac?"

Camila raised a brow at him, wondering why he suddenly asked that

She did not respond

Ryder snorted. "Even if you don't tell me, I already know the relationship between you and Isaac."

Finally, Camila opened her mouth to ask, "Do you and Isaac have a vendetta against each other?"

When Ryder said Isaac's name, it sounded like a curse

"He forced Debora to jump into the sea. We haven't found her yet. We have no idea if she's still alive. So, yes, I have a grudge against him."

Ryder's lips curled into a sneer. "But it looks like fate is playing a trick on

s. He killed my woman, but now, I have his on my ship. This must be is karma."

Camila was shocked by what he said. Was she in danger again?

If you have something against him, go and let your anger out on him. I have nothing to do with him," Camila said in an attempt to dissociate herself from Isaac

There's no point in denying it. I already know the truth," Ryder said

As the ship approached the port, he ordered, "Tie her up and take her to land with us."

Camila sighed, wondering how she could be so unlucky. She clenched her fists and held tight to the railing. There was not an ounce of energy left in her body. Throwing herself into the ocean again could result in instant drowning. Not to mention, her captors could easily chase her down with their ships

After thinking for a while, she decided to make a deal with Ryder. "You want to get back at Isaac, right? I can help you with that."

He was planning to buy time for herself to escape

Recommended for you

My Bossy CEO Husband

Isn't what she env! joined her like a plz

's marriage to come home to be. Her husband, see still, he was

Trending Stories * No.8 Read

--- The new chapters will update daily ---