

Chapter 491 Why Are You Here

As Isaac said those words, he appeared deep in thought.

No amount of time could erase the memory of that day.

It seemed Camila had sensed something.

She stared at the box in her hand, anticipation gleaming in her eyes.

Slowly, she lifted the lid and gasped in surprise!

Wasn't this the jade pendant of Maitreya Buddha she had lost?

A keepsake from her grandfather, she had donned it since she was a year old.

So she recognized it instantly.

She was certain this pendant was hers.

It wasn't completely green, but a frosty green hue. The sculpting of Maitreya Buddha was vivid. She lifted it from the box and held it in her hands.

Unaware of her actions, Isaac was engulfed by his own emotions.

From that incident onward, he had developed a fear of water!

But who was he?

How could he let fear dictate him after one incident?

The only solution was to conquer his fear!

"A little girl saved you, didn't she? But she wasn't alone. If her grandfather hadn't arrived just in time, both she and that boy might have drowned in that pond."

Isaac's eyes widened in surprise at her words.

How did she know?

He was puzzled himself. The young girl he remembered could not have been older than him. Despite being a good swimmer, pulling him ashore would've been a challenge for her.

But the details she mentioned..

And she even mentioned the girl's grandfather.

Isaac recalled that Camila's grandfather, who had been his grandfather's driver, had access to the Johnston family's estate.

It seemed he had figured it out. The one who had saved him was Camila.

Otherwise, she wouldn't have known such intricate details.

In a low, raspy voice, Isaac confessed, "I had been searching for you for so long."

"My grandfather likely knew you were set up and, to avoid trouble, didn't let me say anything. He himself remained silent too."

Their eyes locked.

Camila smiled.

However, a complex mix of emotions reflected in Isaac's face.

He probably hadn't expected that his connection with Camila was destined long ago.

He was delighted.

It was her.

It had always been her.

Hopping down from the desk, Camila held the jade pendant and remarked, "I wish to give this pendant to Joe. My grandfather probably never anticipated I'd end up with you."

Isaac seized her hand, drawing her into his embrace.

"Had I known earlier, I would have shown you sooner."

"It's not late yet," Camila responded with a smile, looping her arms around his neck.

After all, they were still young.

Their journey together was just beginning.

Isaac smiled, placing a tender kiss on her cheek.

"Do I owe you a life?"

"Just one life? Think again," Camila said, leaning her head against his shoulder. "You can repay me with your lifetime!"

She gazed at the ceiling light. "From now on, you must treat me well."

Isaac smiled and posed a teasing question. "And what will you do if I don't treat you well?"

After a moment of contemplation, Camila replied with a mischievous grin, "I'll make your life a living hell."

"Do you intend to torment me?" Isaac inquired.

"Absolutely!"

Camila chuckled. "Do you think I'm capable of that?"

Isaac responded, "I do, but I won't give you the chance."

"Let's go see if Joe is asleep."

Camila held his hand.

They left the study together and headed to the bedroom, where they found Joe, freshly showered and playing on the bed.

Camila perched on the bed's edge and Joe leaped into her embrace. She held her son and showed him the jade pendant. "Do you like it?"

Joe, with his big round eyes, looked at the pendant in bewilderment, uncertain of what it was.

Then Camila fastened the jade pendant around his neck.

She hoped her grandfather's aspirations for her could be passed on to Joe.

And in the future, Joe could pass it down to his own children.

As it grew late, Isaac suggested she get some rest.

The next morning Camila was abruptly awakened from her sleep.

"What are you doing?" She rubbed her bleary eyes.

As her vision cleared, she spotted the figure by the bed.

She was both surprised and shocked!

"Why are you here?"
