

Chapter 499 Kill You And Me

She wasn't sure when Forrest had arrived.

His expression turned dark, and he issued a warning "Stay away from Laura!"

Aldrin wiped his lips and responded with a faint smile, "Stay away from her? Why should I listen to you?"

Forrest gave Aldrin a meaningful glance.

He turned to Laura and questioned, "Will you go with me?"

Oddly enough, Laura couldn't muster the courage to meet his gaze.

She hesitated and avoided making eye contact.

"Laura," Forrest called out to her again.

After a moment of hesitation, Laura walked toward him.

Aldrin stood by, sneering at Forrest, "Laura fell in love with me before she lost her memory. Even if she doesn't remember it now, her subconscious love for me hasn't completely vanished. So, you can't interfere with our silent understanding"

Forrest didn't respond.

Instead, he turned around and headed towards the car.

Laura also climbed into the car.

Once seated, Laura stole a glance at Forrest and clarified, "I was a bit shocked earlier, so I didn't reject him right away."

Forrest didn't say anything.

He felt downcast.

Because he had overheard the entire conversation between Aldrin and Laura.

He hadn't expected that... Laura had been aware of his mother's attempts to harm her.

He didn't want to believe the suspicions his mother and Camila had cast on Laura before!

Now, it appeared that the fire incident was not an accident!

Laura used to work as a forensic doctor, having witnessed various crimes.

Even if she had forgotten everything, she would possess more knowledge than an average person when it came to committing a crime without leaving any evidence, right?

This time, there wasn't any deliberate evidence left behind in the fire, was there?

Based on the investigation, it was simply an accident.

Upon their arrival home, Hana had already instructed the servants to prepare dinner. She had yet to eat and was waiting for Forrest and Laura.

Greeting their arrival with a smile, she declared, "Dinner's all set. Clean up and join us."

Hana appeared very kind now.

She held suspicions but could pretend as if nothing had happened.

"Shouldn't you be in the hospital?" Forrest inquired.

"The doctor said I can stay at home. I don't like the smell of disinfectant in the hospital. Plus, I'm in a wheelchair and can't touch the wound. Your wound hasn't fully healed yet, so you need to be careful..."

Forrest impatiently interrupted, "Fine, if you want to stay at home, then stay."

With that, Forrest held Laura's hand and headed towards the bathroom.

He remained silent throughout the entire way.

Laura believed he had heard what she said to Aldrin.

But as he held her hand, she felt that he was still the same as before.

He was in a bad mood, likely due to his displeasure at witnessing Aldrin kissing her!

She felt relieved at last.

The two returned to the dining table. Hana swiveled her wheelchair and told Forrest, "Come with me. I have something to discuss."

Forrest didn't immediately get up, and instead said, "What's the matter? You can talk about it here."

Hana pursed her lips uncomfortably.

Laura glanced at Hana and nudged Forrest gently with her elbow. "Go ahead. She might have something important to share."

Forrest reluctantly stood up.

Hana looked up at Laura and smiled. "You go ahead and eat."

Laura returned the smile, saying, "Alright."

In terms of acting, the two of them were equal.

Once inside, Hana shut the door and voiced earnestly, "I have evidence that our house fire wasn't an accident, but a deliberate act. She was plotting to kill you and me!"
