

223 The fight against a prince

No self-respecting teacher hates questions they hate stupid questions, in this case, Kayden's wasn't one of them. 1

"In most cases, the spell will destabilize and break, only some elements can come together easily, for example, water and ice have a certain similarity to each other, but if you try something like water and fire you will just explode."

Kayden easily understood the issue of balance and thanked the woman with a bow following local customs, after which he began to try to make the mana be shaped using small rays.

In practically all of Kayden's attempts he failed, lightning was an unstable element, when it was launched the next spell had to come together quickly, even if a few milliseconds of delay were enough for the spell not to be stable.

Unlike him, the two princes had already learned this and were just practicing their spells, Thomas was a fire mage and Yuri was a wind mage, Kayden lost track of time as he continued doing his spells one after the other.

"I hope everyone was able to learn something from this, but unfortunately the class ends here," with the woman speaking, one of the guards came floating over and took her away easily, Kayden finally woke up from her stupor and looked around.

"I hope you haven't forgotten our fight, Count Kayden," Yuri said with a smile, he had already shared the small exchange of advice with his friends and spread it to even more people.

"I haven't forgotten, Your Highness, whenever you want," with Kayden's speech the platform began to move, and in just a few minutes they flew to a large platform with a transparent bubble.

There was nothing more than that on the platform, around several people were talking and interacting, Kayden recognized that this was a kind of ring for the people in this gym.

"A teacher stays in the air invisible whenever someone is battling in the arena, he stops anyone from getting seriously hurt," Thomas explained before Kayden and Yuri entered the arena.

The surroundings were full of people, everyone heard about Kayden, the foreign genius, and his deeds were all detailed by Yuri's friends, in fact, this situation was set up to be a stage for them.

Kayden wasn't an idiot and he had already realized that he saw the looks and the fingers pointed at him, besides, he didn't like Yuri from the beginning, and with all these factors he decided to take this fight seriously.

After the two positioned themselves in the center of the arena, a silence permeated the entire place, after they bowed the fight officially began, and...

BOOM!

Lightning struck exactly where Yuri was, and the boy managed to escape at high speed using advanced wind magic, he felt a rapid flow of mana over him and if he hadn't reacted instantly he would have been fried.

The prince was surprised by the strength of the lightning, this was far above the fifth level that Kayden was demonstrating with his aura, so the prince decided to take it seriously and show why even though he was a black sheep he was still part of the royal family.

"Kayden! Come with everything, I will show you my path, feel honored to be able to witness it, my path is the master of the wind," with Yuri's sentence the wind around the arena began to become chaotic and rushed towards everyone's sides.

An apprentice would be torn to pieces just by the remnants of the region's biting wind, Kayden had to use his katana to break some random cuts that could hurt his skin.

"Typhoon," Yuri uttered the name of his spell, and the chaotic wind began to gather in front of him in just a few seconds a typhoon formed, its high-speed wind was pulling everything around it into its maelstrom.

Kayden had to use mana to stay on the ground, he had to admit that it was a really strong spell, and for every meter, he got closer to him the strength increased, he couldn't fly, and his mana expenditure would be stratospheric to stay in balance on the ground. air.

Activating his path to the maximum Kayden began to run and go around the typhoon, the pulling force was ridiculously strong, his mana expenditure was bizarrely high, and it was not a mana pool that any mage should possess, he would have reached Yuri in seconds if the prince hadn't started throwing some wind cuts at him.

It seemed that not all of the prince's attacks were pure brute force, his cuts were thin and practically invisible, the only thing that helped Kayden notice them was the variation in mana in the environment, a mana barrier was enough to break them. in mid-air.

BOOOM!

Another lightning struck and again Yuri managed to dodge, his speed was ridiculously high, and Kayden could not keep up with him directly, in fact only if he used all the mana available around him to support his speed.

BOOOM!

That's why his lightning continued to fall to put the prince where he wanted, Yuri had to maintain the typhoon in a futile attempt to trap Kayden and at the same time throw several different attacks at him, thus causing him to be easily caught by the boy's trap.

SWISH!

Practically at close range, Kayden threw an aura cut using a large amount of mana, at that moment his sixth sense began to scream that something was wrong and his feeling became even worse when a smile appeared on Yuri's face.

BOOOM!

The loud sound was from Kayden putting more than half of the mana he had at his disposal to push him back at high speed, the speed was so fast that he had difficulty stopping and ended up going almost 50 meters out of the arena, Fortunately, this was not grounds for disqualification.

The smile on Yuri's face disappeared and a slight frown appeared.

"How did you detect my wind domain?" -kayden felt his entire body being cut a little after exploding in flight, in fact, he didn't detect anything and left before receiving the attack.
