

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 2483

c Chapter 2483 – “What’s wrong?” Aurora asked quietly when she noticed Aldor’s unusual expression.

Aldor shook his head and replied, “Nothing.” He gently adjusted her collar and added softly, “You get ready; I’ll go entertain the guests.”

Aurora nodded in response.

After Aldor left, Aurora looked at the ring on her hand, thinking about the kiss earlier, which made her cheeks warm. She noticed the red envelope Aldor had brought in and, having nothing else to do, picked it up.

Meanwhile, Aldor arrived at the venue, which was already buzzing with activity. Stella, Felicity, and Vermont were sitting together, while Keegan and Chandler were busy welcoming guests.

Aldor hesitated for a moment before walking toward Keegan.

“Mr. Kane,” he greeted.

Keegan waved him over and introduced him to some prominent figures from Rivera. Aldor had always been known as Keegan’s assistant, but now Keegan introduced him as “brother-in-law.” This gesture made it clear how much the Kane family valued Aldor, and everyone treated him with respect.

Aldor remained humble and polite, not letting the new attention go to his head. However, Chandler was noticeably cold towards him and refused the wine Aldor offered. Instead, he asked Keegan, “This is a big day for Aurora. Why hasn’t your mother arrived yet?”

Keegan responded calmly, “She hurt her back a few days ago and is recovering in the hospital. It’s just an engagement; her health is more important.”

Chandler frowned. “No one is answering her phone.”

Keegan replied, “Maybe it’s not nearby, or the battery’s dead.”

Chandler, irritated by Keegan’s indifferent attitude, snapped, “Keegan, that’s your mother! Are you not worried about her?”

Keegan shot back, “I’ve arranged for someone to take care of her, Uncle, but you’re being too intrusive.”

Chandler's face darkened. "We're family; I have the right to ask. And even if you don't care about Aurora, you shouldn't marry her off to Aldor like this. Everyone knows Aldor works for you. How will people see her after this?"

Aldor kept quiet, holding his drink.

Keegan's tone hardened. "Aldor is the son-in-law of the Kane family, personally recognized by Grandma. Your opinion doesn't matter. Our family approves, and that's all that counts. Aldor has been respectful toward you, but you shouldn't abuse your seniority. If this bothers you so much, you can retire and stay out of it."

Chandler was furious.

Keegan dismissed him and instructed Aldor to join him in toasting another table.

As they walked, Aldor quietly said, "Mr. Kane, there's no need to argue with him. I don't mind."

It wasn't the first time Aldor had heard such remarks. Though they used to bother him, he eventually realized they stemmed from jealousy. Still, he appreciated Keegan's defense but didn't want it to cause more issues.

Keegan looked at him and asked, "Are you scared of my uncle?"

Aldor replied, "Not really."

Keegan said, "You shouldn't be. Some things can't be ignored. If you want to embarrass yourself, don't drag me into it."

Aldor didn't respond.

Keegan then added, "Why don't you spend more time with Aurora?"

Aldor replied seriously, "Mr. Kane, I have something to discuss with you. It's about Willow Jennings."

He whispered in Keegan's ear, and Keegan's expression changed. "We'll talk after the engagement party," Keegan said quietly.

Aldor nodded.

Elsewhere, Felicity touched her stomach and was startled by a movement. She looked at Stella with wide eyes. "That was strong!"

Stella smiled and whispered, "He probably did it on purpose. Keegan doesn't usually call like that."

Felicity grinned. "That's why I'm the godmother!" She rubbed Stella's belly gently, muttering, "Good luck with the baby."

Vermont approached with a juice in hand. "What good luck are you talking about?"

Felicity jumped and swatted at him. "I've told you not to sneak up on me like that!"

Vermont looked hurt. "I wasn't that close."

Felicity rolled her eyes, and Vermont quickly apologized, "Alright, alright, it's my fault. Forgive me, little bandit."

Felicity lost her temper and whispered, "Axing's movements are so strong, it feels like it's a boy."

Vermont joked, "Great! If it's a boy, he'll be as love-obsessed as Keegan. Let's work on having a girl."

Felicity was speechless.

"You're really ambitious!" she said.

"Where's our brother?" Felicity asked Stella.

"Leighton and Nicole got swarmed by fans, so he went to pick them up."

Felicity sighed, "Even in love, top stars are still that popular."

Stella added, "They're crowding them because they want them to break up."

Felicity was shocked. "Are they crazy? Can't their idol still talk to them after breaking up?"

Stella, more relaxed, explained, "Not everyone thinks that way. Fans might want him to focus on his career. It's a common reaction when young actors reveal relationships. But why do you think they won't last?"

Stella smiled and shook her head. "I'm not pessimistic. From a career standpoint, Leighton's marrying above his station. But if they're happy and their families approve, I'll just pay my respects."

As they talked, Jaylene and Molly approached. "Is anyone sitting here?" Jaylene asked softly.

As they were talking, Jaylene gently pulled Molly over and asked, "Is anyone sitting here? Stella, can we join you?"
