

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 2484

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 2484 – Stella glanced at Jaylene and said calmly, “Whatever you prefer.”

Jaylene smiled politely, “If it’s disrupting your conversation, we can switch tables. I just don’t feel comfortable sitting over there with people I don’t know well.”

Molly frowned, “Why are you even asking her? She’s not from the Kane family. Do we really need her permission to choose where to sit?”

Felicity immediately snapped, “What’s wrong with you? Stella said it’s up to you, isn’t that clear?”

Molly’s face turned red with anger, “Who are you insulting?”

Felicity shot back, “Whoever feels insulted! If you don’t like it, go sit somewhere else.”

Just as Molly was about to explode, Jaylene quickly pulled her aside and whispered, “Stella and I aren’t on great terms. Miss Tang is just reacting to me, and you’re getting caught in the middle. The banquet’s about to start, let’s just sit down.”

Molly glanced at Stella and sneered, “You’re acting all high and mighty now, huh? But your mind hasn’t caught up with your new status.”

Felicity was about to retort, but Stella gently held her hand under the table. She looked up at Molly, saying, “You know I’m not very smart, yet you still want to get close to me. So, do you actually like me, or do you just enjoy being petty?”

Molly was about to respond when Stella continued, “By the way, I heard the male model you were with is in a tough spot now—selling drinks in a club with a lame leg. For someone so kind, you’ve sure treated him harshly.”

Molly’s face darkened, clearly hit where it hurt.

Jaylene tried to step in, “Stella, we just wanted to find a seat. There’s no need to dig at someone’s sore spot.”

Before Stella could reply, Felicity couldn’t hold back anymore.

“You’re such a hypocrite! When Molly was badmouthing Stella, were you deaf? Now that Stella claps back, you want to play the victim. You live off the Saun family, yet instead of defending Stella, you’re stirring the pot. Where’s your loyalty?”

Jaylene’s face flushed red. Vermont tried to diffuse the tension, saying, “That’s not entirely fair. Sure, Jaylene lives off the Saun family, but she’s not their biological daughter. She even gave up her own closet for your best friend to live in, and bought her clothes. Even though they didn’t fit, it was a kind gesture, right? You can’t expect her to treat Stella like a real sister, can you?”

Felicity, thinking Vermont was siding with Jaylene, softened when she heard the rest of his comment. She gave him a knowing smile.

Jaylene hadn’t expected Vermont to twist things like that. With so many people overhearing, everyone started giving her side-eyed glances.

Jaylene clenched her teeth, her expression shifting between denial and frustration. She felt humiliated.

Seeing Jaylene falter, Molly quietly left, unwilling to further embarrass herself in front of the crowd.

Jaylene bit her lip and muttered, “I didn’t mean any harm. I just forgot to ask Stella’s size when I bought the clothes. I’ll remember next time.”

She then took two glasses of wine from the table and handed one to Stella. “Stella, I wasn’t thoughtful before. I apologize. Please accept this drink as my apology.”

Felicity was about to speak, but Vermont shoved a date in her mouth, cutting her off.

Stella looked at the glass of wine but didn’t take it. She smiled gently and said, “Mr. Snyder was just joking. If I drink this, it would seem like you really did something wrong.”

She paused and added, “Don’t take friends’ jokes too seriously, Jaylene. I know how you feel about me. Today is Aurora’s engagement banquet. Let’s not cause a scene and embarrass our family.”

Jaylene, unable to press the issue further, gave a tight smile and sat down.

Felicity, still fuming, muttered to Stella, “Why did you let her off so easily? She was clearly trying to cause trouble, using that idiot Molly as a pawn. You should’ve put her in her place!”

Stella whispered back, “It’s a Kane family event. I don’t want to stir up drama with Molly here—it’s bad luck.”

Vermont gave her a thumbs-up. “You’ve got the bigger picture in mind!”

Felicity smacked his hand away. “Men should stay out of women’s business!”

Vermont joked, “Then I’m not a man right now.”

Felicity was left speechless. Why did she end up with such a clown?

Just then, Keegan arrived. Before Stella even saw him, Jaylene stood up and called out, “Mr. Kane, over here!”

Keegan’s gaze briefly flickered to Stella, but he quickly looked away, greeting everyone with a reserved expression.

Vermont asked about his grandmother’s health and inquired about his seating arrangement.

Before Keegan could respond, Jaylene jumped in, “Mr. Kane, please sit here with us. Aurora and the others will be joining soon. It’ll be easier for you to move in and out from here.”

Keegan felt Stella’s eyes on him and replied coolly, “No, my seat is up front. It’s convenient enough. I may not be able to entertain everyone, so I appreciate your understanding.”

Vermont, sensing an opportunity, smiled and said, “Keegan, my cousin wants to attend the Kane family’s grand event too. Can you have two more sets of tableware added?”

Keegan raised an eyebrow. “Two sets?”

Vermont nodded. “Yes, for her and her girlfriend.”

Keegan shot him a curious look but agreed. “I’ll ask someone to arrange it.”

“Mr. Kane,” Jaylene called out again, unwilling to let him leave. She whispered, “After the ceremony, could you come sit with us? Dr. Stone hasn’t been able to visit recently. Let me know how you’re feeling so I can talk to him about adjusting your medication.”

Keegan hesitated before nodding. “Okay, thank you.”

Felicity, hearing this, scoffed. “Typical fake friend.”

Jaylene’s face stiffened, but she pretended not to hear. She glanced at Stella, who calmly sipped her tea, showing no reaction.

Jaylene’s gaze shifted to Stella’s belly, her eyes flashing with jealousy. She poured Stella a cup of tea and offered it with a smile.

“Stella, Dad mentioned you haven’t been feeling well lately, and Mom asked me to look out for you. Let me know if there’s anything you’d like to eat, and I’ll get it for you.”

Stella glanced at the tea and smiled. “Thank you, Jaylene.”

As she reached for the cup, a sweet voice called out from the side, “Cousin, why didn’t you come greet me? It took us forever to find you!”

 PREV POST

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted