

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 2485

Mr. Kane Got Blacklisted Chapter 2485 – The voice was clear and pleasant, like birds chirping in the morning by a mountain stream, bringing a sense of joy even without seeing the person.

Jaylene turned towards the voice and saw a beautiful woman in a knee-length off-white skirt, walking with a man in front of her.

Her eyes widened, not because the woman was extraordinary, but because the man beside her was Aaron, whom she hadn't seen in a long time.

When Aaron's eyes met Jaylene's, he pressed his lips together, quickly looked away, and lowered his gaze.

Jaylene's attention shifted to his hand, which was tightly holding the young woman next to him.

Jaylene pressed her lips together.

Since their families had set up an awkward blind date, she hadn't been this close to Aaron.

She and Aaron had studied abroad together, and they shared mutual friends. Even though they hadn't spoken much since, Jaylene still heard from their friends that Aaron hadn't been doing well after their fallout.

She knew Aaron's family had arranged another blind date for him, which he had been against. She also knew he secretly checked her social media late at night, and that he whispered her name after drinking with friends.

Jaylene wasn't bothered by it—in fact, she enjoyed it. Aaron was so easy to control, so devoted. Even if it were a dog, after so many years, you'd develop some affection, right?

Sometimes she would post things on her social media that were indirectly related to Aaron, keeping him trapped in this emotional tug-of-war, unable to move on.

So, when she heard that Aaron had a new girlfriend, she didn't believe it at first. But after seeing a picture of them together that Aaron had posted, she realized the “dog” she had trained was slipping from her grip—especially when she called him, and someone else picked up. That nearly drove her crazy.

Jaylene didn’t take Aaron’s new girlfriend seriously. She messaged him on WhatsApp: “If you have a girlfriend, we should probably keep our distance.”

Based on her knowledge of Aaron, she expected him to call right away and explain. But by the end of the day, he had only replied with a brief “Got it.”

“Got it!”

Jaylene was furious. She couldn’t openly confront Aaron, so when Tatiana added her on WhatsApp under the guise of asking for help with Aaron’s birthday gift, Jaylene accepted.

She looked into Tatiana’s background: ordinary family, two working parents, a pediatrician still in training, not yet established in her career. Of course, she’d want to hold onto a wealthy man like Aaron if she had the chance.

Jaylene didn’t think much of a woman trying to marry into wealth, but she knew how to make her back off.

She told Tatiana all about Aaron’s preferences and even hinted at the lavish gifts Aaron had given her in the past. All of them were expensive.

If Tatiana had any sense, she’d realize how insignificant she was to Aaron and give up.

Jaylene had used this tactic to get rid of other women who were interested in Aaron, and it always worked. No woman could stand knowing the man she loved had someone else he treated specially. Jaylene assumed this time would be no different. But Tatiana turned out to be surprisingly clueless.

She posted all the expensive gifts Aaron had given her and even said, “I used to think Mr. Keller was too good to be true, like a player using sweet gestures to charm women. But after seeing how generous he is to his friends, I realized I had judged him unfairly. Mr. Keller is loyal and values friendship, and I’m lucky to know him.”

Jaylene was so angry she could’ve burst. She couldn’t understand where Aaron had found someone so oblivious.

Everything Jaylene had shown—pictures, stories of Aaron’s past actions—Tatiana had spun as examples of his kindness and loyalty. And she often shared stories of her time with Aaron.

For example, when it rained, Aaron would pick her up and tilt his umbrella to keep her dry, getting sick himself. Or when the hospital canteen closed for a week, Aaron made sure she had home-cooked meals every day. When her mother had a minor surgery and her father was away on business, Aaron visited the hospital daily to help take care of her.

Tatiana even asked Jaylene in an innocent tone, “Sister, Mr. Keller’s family has been pushing us to get married. I really like him, but I feel like it’s too soon. My job is still uncertain, and I’m worried he’ll propose. What should I do?”

Jaylene cursed under her breath and muted Tatiana on WhatsApp, choosing to ignore her.

She planned to confront Tatiana after today’s event. But to her surprise, Aaron had brought her to the Kane family’s engagement party, and they seemed so close.

Jaylene’s chest rose and fell with anger. She tried to maintain her composure, but her face betrayed her feelings.

Vermont waved them over to sit and introduced Tatiana to everyone.

Tatiana was as sweet as her name. After making her rounds, she sat next to Jaylene, smiling with bright eyes. “Ms. Saun, thank you so much for your help with Aaron’s birthday gift. He loved it.”

Jaylene forced a smile. “You picked it, so why are you thanking me?”

Tatiana lifted her wrist, revealing a stunning blue-and-white Hetian jade bracelet. “Aaron’s aunt gave this to me for his birthday. She said she hadn’t seen him this happy in a long time and gave me this bracelet in return. I couldn’t have gotten his aunt’s approval without your help, so I’m really grateful.”

Jaylene’s mood darkened.

She recognized the bracelet. Mrs. Keller had a prized collection of Hetian jade, and this piece was worth over a million. Jaylene had once tried to acquire it for her family's jewelry store, but Mrs. Keller had refused, saying it was for Aaron's future wife.

And now, here it was on Tatiana's wrist. Mrs. Keller had given it to her. How long had they been together? Was Mrs. Keller out of her mind?

Jaylene swallowed her anger and said calmly, "Miss Tatiana, you're quite capable."

She turned away, raising her glass toward Stella. "Stella, a toast."

Stella, who had been quietly observing the scene, smiled and clinked glasses with her, downing her drink in one go.

Jaylene watched closely, her eyes glinting with hidden meaning.
