Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1441 –When Daisy kneeled to wipe Galen’s tender little face with a towel, Galen blinked at her, and she couldn’t help but laugh.

“What’s the matter? Did you forget who I am after one night?”

“Daisy.”

“Yeah?”

“Are you leaving?” Daisy fell silent.

After a few seconds, she looked up at the child gently.

“Did your mother tell you that?”

“Yeah.”

Galen nodded.

Then he asked again, “Are you leaving?”

“Maybe!”

After thinking for a while, she slowly said, “Will you miss me?”

“Yes!”

He exclaimed with certainty as he nodded.

“Then, if I leave one day, you can’t cry!”

She tapped his nose and smiled dotingly at him.

“I won’t cry!”

He shook his head, remembering what his mother had said.

“Mommy said I’m a . . . little man!”

He was hesitant for a moment as he tried to recall the words.

This made Daisy laugh out loud.

“Yes, you are a little man. You’re a superhero! Then, little man, can you get dressed on your own?”

“Yes!”

With that, he rushed out of the bathroom and toward his clothes on the bed.

Watching the little boy try to dress brought a gentle smile onto Daisy’s face.

However, her eyes slowly began to dim.

Galen, who had changed into casual sportswear, looked very handsome.

However, he was still stumbling as he walked down the stairs with his tiny feet.

After a few steps, Daisy carried him to the dining table.

“We’ll eat breakfast first, and Mummy will bring you out afterward,” Lily looked at him and said.

This piqued his interest.

“Where are we going?”

“We’re going out to play!”

She glanced at Daisy.

“Galen and I will be out the whole day. I’ll give you a day off. You can do whatever you want. I’ve already arranged a driver for you if you need a car.”

“No, it’s fine, madam. I’m not going anywhere,” Daisy quickly replied.

“That’s your choice.”

There was no further persuasion.

Lily just wanted to let her know.

Then she turned to Galen and said, “Slow down. We’ll leave once you’re done eating.”

With that, the mother and son quietly had breakfast while Daisy stood to the side for a moment before silently walking away.

After breakfast, Lily took Galen out. She was driving, and Galen was sitting on a bean child’s seat in the back, kicking his feet leisurely. “Are we going to Grandpa’s house?”

Lily froze for a moment before putting on her seatbelt and looking in the rearview mirror at the little boy.

“How do you know we’re going to Grandpa’s house?”

She did not remember mentioning it.

“You’re driving,”” he said casually, turning his head.

Lily was surprised. It was true.

Every time she went to Dominic’s place, especially with Galen, she would drive herself.

Usually, they would have a driver to send them around. She did not expect this little boy to be so meticulous with his observations.

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1442–Galen’s words made Lily realize that if even a young child could notice, others might too.

After thinking about this, she turned and looked at him.

“Then let’s not go to Grandpa’s house. Mommy will bring you somewhere else before going there, okay?”

“Okay!”

It didn’t matter where they went as long as he could get there to play.

Lily smiled.

“You’re so adorable!”

With that, she started the car, adjusted her seat, and glanced into the rearview mirror at the front door.

No one was there, and the closed door made the house look deserted. She looked away and said, “Hold on tight!”

Then she drove off.

Lily took Galen for a morning stroll before going to the mall.

They came out with several bags of clothes and a bunch of toys. She even bought a few art pieces, filling the trunk to the brim.

Galen's mouth dropped when he saw the stuffed trunk.

"Wow!"

He couldn't find the words to say.

"Are you happy?"

Lily smiled.

"Happy!"

He nodded vigorously and pointed at the toys.

"Are you going away for along time?"

"How do you know?"

This kid was starting to surprise her. He caught on to all the small details.

"There's so many!"

However, he wasn't good at expressing how he felt yet.

Lily understood what he meant. He wanted to say that for her to buy him so many toys and food, it was obvious that they were going to go on a long trip. He was an intelligent child but was too young to protect himself.

She wouldn't have flown over if it weren't because of how strange Alexander's situation was. She needed to see for herself to feel at ease.

The situation at Burnwken was too uncertain and had the potential to be dangerous.

Therefore, she couldn't take Galen with her.

"you're right, but it hasn't been decided yet, so don't tell anyone, okay?"

Pulling the hat on his head, he softly nodded, "Okay."

He wouldn't if his mother told him not to say a word.

After a simple lunch, Galen was starting to get drowsy.

He struggled to keep his eyes open and, in the end, lost the battle.

Lily carefully looked around to ensure no one was following her before she started the car and drove toward Dominic's house.

The little guy slept in the back seat throughout the entire journey.

He was still fast asleep when they got to Dominic's place.

Ultimately, Lily had to pick him up and pop the trunk open before getting the maids to bring the things she had bought into the house.

Dominic was taking a nap, but he heard that Lily was outside.

He quickly put on his slippers and ruffled his hair before coming out. He rubbed his bean eyes and yelled as he walked, "You little b*stard, you won't even let me rest. What kind of drugs are you on to come and visit me every two days"

He stopped his words when he saw the little boy on Lily's shoulders.

"H-He...why is he here again???"

The latter sentence was said in such a shallow voice that he almost bit his tongue.

However, he hurried over to help.

"Quickly put him down. It must be so uncomfortable to sleep like that."

Galen let out a soft groan of displeasure.

"Mm...noisy..."

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1443—"Oh, oh, oh. This is all Grandpa's fault!"

Dominic slapped his own face lightly and ordered someone to carry the child into a bedroom.

Then he covered Galen with a small blanket and watched the little boy toss and turn to a more comfortable sleeping position.

Once Galen had fallen back into his slumber, Dominic waved everyone away and came out. He tiptoed cautiously and kicked off the slippers that were getting in the way. He only breathed a sigh of relief once he reached the living room.

When he saw Lily leisurely sipping on tea, he could not help but feel a surge of anger.

“Tell me, what are you trying to do?!”

“I want you to do me a favor, Mr. Fike,” She replied politely.

“You want me...”

After a pause, all his anger seemed to have dissipated.

He was not used to Lily speaking to him so politely.

“Hey, hey, hey.”

He glanced at her, speechless.

It wasn't that Lily disrespected him on purpose.

He was the one who told her to treat him as a friend.

Although she sometimes addressed him as an “old man,” he was still pleased.

Now that Lily was polite, Dominic felt a little uncomfortable.

“What can I do for you?” He asked attentively.

If Austin saw the expression on Dominic's face right now, his heart would shatter into a million pieces.

Austin had always begged Dominic for help, only to receive the cold shoulder. He had never seen this side of Dominic, who seemed genuine about helping.

Lily put down her teacup and casually said, “Take care of my baby.”

“Take care of...”

His smiling face instantly froze as he sank into the sofa with a terrified expression.

“What baby?”

Lily quietly raised her hand and pointed toward the room.

“That one.”

Dominic was flabbergasted.

“No way!”

He exclaimed.

“Impossible!”

“Really?”

Lily raised her eyebrows and asked again.

“I don’t want to!”

Dominic turned and rejected her mercilessly. He did not want to look at her, fearing that he might not be able to reject her if he did.

‘No, no, no! I won’t do it! Absolutely not!’

“Forget it, then. I’ll just send Galen to some stranger.”

Lily sighed helplessly.

“Otherwise, I’ll just bring him to Burnwken with me.”

“Bring him to Burnwken?!”

Dominic could not help but raise his voice when he heard this.

However, a sound from the bedroom quickly caused him to lower his voice again.

“What are you doing, going to Burnwken? It’s so chaotic over there with the ongoing war.

“On top of that, there’s a plague outbreak! You must’ve lost your mind! Don’t bring him there!”

“I guess I have no choice but to leave my baby at home with some stranger.”

Lily ignored what he said and shrugged as if there were no other choice. Her actions rendered the old man speechless.

“Why are you leaving your son with a stranger? Are you an evil stepmother? What grudges do you have against the child? W-What are you trying to do?!”

Dominic was so angry that he could barely speak coherently at the end.

Then he continued as he wagged his finger at her, "There are so many servants and nannies in your house. Are they all incompetent?!"

"You know about how my nanny taught Galen to pick a lock? Besides, I haven't looked into her background yet. Her resume seems clean, and there's nothing wrong with her."

Dominic did not reply. He knew about this incident and also thought the nanny at Lily's house was suspicious, but that was not a good enough reason for him to take Galen under his wings, was it?

"Then..."

After some hesitation, Dominic said, "What about his grandmother? What about your uncle? The Russells and Christians are such a big family. Why can't you find anyone you can rely on to care for your son???"

Read Novel Spoiled By Mr. Russell Chapter 1444 By Luminous Night

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1444—"His grandmother moved to the mountains to meditate and clear her mind, and the Lodge family lives too far away."

Lily stared at Dominic.

"So, you're saying I'm the only option?"

"I can bring him with me," she repeated.

She did not want to seem forceful.

Dominic did not answer.

Although he could not bear to reject her again, he needed to stand his ground.

This child had nothing to do with him, and it did not matter to him where she brought him.

'It's none of my business! Why should I care whether the child lives or dies? That little b*stard destroyed many of my things and even pulled my beard.

He deserved to suffer! He seemed to have made up his mind as he thought of those things. He clenched his fists, attempting to comfort himself, and spat, "Okay! You...can leave him with me!"

It was an unexpected turn of events.

Dominic could not just let Lily bring that child into danger just like that.

Although the “little devil” could be annoying whenever he acted out, he could be adorable when being sweet.

Dominic had no idea what favor he owed the mother and son. He felt like Lily was manipulating him, but he had no choice.

“You’re such a kind-hearted old man. Thank you so much!” Lily coaxed.

“It’s a blessing for Galen to live with you. He has so much to learn from you.”

“Yeah, yeah. Whatever!”

Dominic shook his head and sighed before chuckling to himself.

“This woman knew what would happen. She brought all these things over and planned to leave Galen with me before she even asked”

“Are you really going to Burnwken?” Dominic asked after thinking about it.

“Yeah,”

Lily nodded and continued, “It’s been ten days, and I still haven’t heard from Alex. Recently, it seems like the line has gotten cut off as well. I can’t feel at ease if I don’t go there to see for myself.”

“What can you do if you go there? If you encounter any danger...”

After a pause, Dominic continued, “I know you know how to kickbox, but there’s an ongoing war. They have artillery. You can’t outrun a bullet no matter how good your skills are.”

Lily knew this, but she had been on edge ever since she did not hear from Alexander.

Dominic rubbed his forehead and sighed softly. He felt that this trip was a bit too strange.

“What about this? Stay, and I’ll ask an old friend of mine to find out for you,” he suggested after looking at Lily’s distressed expression.

He had known her for so long, yet this was the first time he had seen her like this.

Lily had always been very optimistic, no matter what problems she faced.

Nothing could stop her.

Lily shook her head.

“The Russell family is very well connected, but the communication problem comes from their end. It won't get through. There's no news from the Burnwken branch. Even the headquarters are in radio silence.”

At this time, she stepped in to try and control the situation.

She told the company directors that Alexander had been in touch with her.

Still, the situation was so chaotic that it affected the telecommunication towers, and he wanted her to convey this message to them on his behalf.

However, the company would be in chaos if Alexander did not reach out to them after such a long time.

By then, there would be an inevitable disturbance.

It was fortunate that the Russell family's conflict happened before this.

Otherwise, the consequences would have been unimaginable.

‘Alex...Alex’

He faced so many storms and lived, so I'm sure he'll be fine.

Yeah, he'll be alright!’ The old man shook his head disapprovingly.

“You youngsters, always depending on technology. Older people like us have our own methods. This time, I think they'll be more useful than yours!”

“What method?”

Lily was curious.

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1445—Dominic stood up with a mysterious smile.

“Come with me!”

Lily obediently followed behind him, and they walked through the backyard, bypassing a promenade, and walked to a corner at the back.

The place used to be a wasteland, but Dominic had somehow renovated it and even built a hut.

When Dominic opened the door, the sounds of clucking echoed from the inside.

“Pigeons?!”

Lily widened her eyes in surprise.

‘When did he get so many pigeons?!’

“They’re carrier pigeons!”

Dominic corrected her.

“These are specially trained carrier pigeons. Don’t underestimate them because of their sizes. These birds can fly very far and know exactly where to go.”

Lily was speechless.

Then she frowned and asked, “How far can they fly? Can they fly to Burnwken?”

“Of course!”

He confidently answered, “Besides flying across the Pacific Ocean, my carrier pigeon can go almost anywhere!”

“Have you tried them?”

She was a little suspicious.

“What don’t you try? Do you think I don’t get bored sitting alone the whole day? Do you honestly think I don’t care or know about what’s happening outside?”

Dominic smacked Lily’s head with a fan.

“Do you want me to rot alone here every day?”

Once again, Lily did not know what to say to this older man.

‘Well, I misjudged him! I always thought he was only up-to-date with the news because the maids would overhear them while shopping for him’

Unexpectedly, Dominic did these things without anyone knowing.

Sure enough, he was still as intelligent as he was back then.

A master was a master, after all.

When he noticed Lily's surprise and disbelief, the older man shook his head, smacked his lips, and walked over to point it out.

"Look at these. Those birds are flying north, while these are flying south. The rest will fly west."

He introduced the pigeons, row after row.

Lily turned to the side and noticed a flock of extra fat pigeons toward the edge.

"What about these? Do they fly to the east?"

"No, no. They don't."

Dominic shook his head.

The older man glanced at the pigeons before shaking his head again.

"Those are..."

Before Lily could finish her sentence, the old man quickly interjected, "Those are for eating."

"What?!"

"It seems like each pigeon has their prewritten destiny"

"It smells here, so let's get out!"

Dominic ushered.

He feared the smell might get to her head and quickly led her out of the pigeon hut.

"So, are you convinced now?"

He puffed his chest proudly.

"I am! uw Of course, Lily would be.

The older man was something else.

She, she did not expect him to be still using carrier pigeons.

“Why don’t you patiently wait for another two days? I’ve already sent a pigeon over to inquire about the news, but it hasn’t gotten back to me yet. Let’s wait another two days before you decide whether or not to go,” Dominic suggested.

Dominic had been asking around after discovering the incident with Alexander. He knew Lily was worried about him, and he did not want his precious apprentice to be sad.

On top of that, seeing that “little devil spawn” without his father was pitiful.

Besides, Dominic was also quite curious about how severe the plague was.

Recently, the news said that it was spreading like wildfire.

Regardless of what one did, one would inadvertently get infected.

After years of studying medicinal herbs, Dominic could not help being curious about this epidemic.

Lily pondered for a moment and turned to look at the pigeon hut before hesitantly saying, “Okay...sure!”

The older man was something else.

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1446-As the two walked toward the house, Lily was moved by what he did.

Although she said nothing, she did not expect the old man to take the initiative to find out about the situation for her.

Regardless of whether he had heard anything back, she was still touched by his actions.

“Hey, old man...” She called out in a low voice.

“Yes?!! “Thank you!”

She rushed toward him and hugged him.

The old man quickly took a step back with an indescribable expression. He quickly rubbed his arms.

“All right, all right!”

Lily couldn't help but laugh.

“Thank you, old man!”

“Enough!”

He waved his hands around and spat through gritted teeth, “I'm more used to you telling me that I owe this to you!”

This made Lily laugh even more. However, she stopped teasing him.

“I know you're worried. It's natural for you to be worried when you don't hear from him, but this also means you're more prone to making the wrong decisions. Take a step back and think things through before you react. You're a smart woman. Your emotions shouldn't sway you,” Dominic said solemnly.

“Mhm.” She nodded.

He was right.

It seemed like, in recent days, she was thinking with her heart more than her head.

Although she kept telling people she was fine and was patiently waiting, the worry in her heart continued to grow.

She would often be woken up in the middle of the night, tossing and turning, checking his phone repeatedly for fear of missing his call. She would check in with Olivia every day, and after knowing that she had not heard from Edward either, Lily stepped in to comfort her.

Truth be told, Lily was the one who needed comforting.

It was just that she couldn't let her provocateurs see through her.

Therefore, she could only put up a strong front.

However, Dominic seemed to have seen through her, breaking through her defense in just a few words. Her eyes turned red as she quickly turned away, not wanting the old man to see her cry.

“Cry if you want to. Let it out. It's no big deal!”

Dominic casually turned around to leave.

“I’ll check to see if that little brat is awake and make sure he’s not messing up my room.”

Lily knew that he was doing this to give her some space so she could freely let out her emotions.

Looking at the older man’s back, she couldn’t hold back her tears any longer.

They came streaming down her face.

After all, she had been holding it in for too long.

Lily did not cry for very long.

After a short while, she quickly wiped her face.

Although crying was not wrong, she knew it would not solve any problem. She still had to face them.

Soon, a cough was heard coming from inside.

“Cough! Cough!...Let’s go see what your mother is doing!”

The old man’s voice indicated that Galen was already awake, and the cough he let out was a warning to let her know that Galen was coming, allowing her to tidy herself up so as not to let her son see her cry.

Despite his domineering persona and darkened face, Dominic was actually quite thoughtful. She noticed the old man walking out with Galen on his shoulders two minutes later.

Dominic held onto Galen’s hands, and Galen’s legs were tightly clamped against his head.

The boy was giggling.

“Galen, come down, quick! You’re so heavy!”

Lily hurriedly spoke, urging Galen to come down.

Read Novel Spoiled By Mr. Russell Chapter 1447 By Luminous Night

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1447-“It’s fine. He’s not heavy!”

Dominic spun around twice to show that the child wasn’t heavy.

“Aren’t you afraid of hurting your back?”

“My back is fine. I’m way stronger than you young people!”

The old man grinned happily.

Although he would often complain about Galen, he secretly loved Galen from the bottom of his heart.

Otherwise, he would not have protected Galen over and over again.

Shaking her head, Lily had no choice but to let the two play.

Dominic noticed that she seemed better and did not ask any more questions.

Instead, he walked around the house and into the backyard with Galen on his shoulders.

Lily, worried that Dominic might hurt himself, trailed behind them.

The backyard was filled with all kinds of herbs, stretching as far as the eye could see.

This place was a herb garden.

There was even a faint smell of herbs in the air.

“Did you use everything you took from me a few days ago?”

Dominic asked calmly as he stared into the distance.

Lily glanced at him.

“Yes.”

“How is it?”

“Pretty good. In a few more days, the toxins should be flushed out. However, the after-effects would still linger. It isn’t that easy. There’s still a long way to go, so I’m taking it one step at a time.”

She sighed.

“Well, at least we’ve solved the cause of the problem.”

The medicinal herbs that poisoned Anastasia had been removed, and the whole house had been cleansed and purified.

Lily even went over to check, making sure that there was no longer any strange smell in the air.

Only then did she feel relieved.

However, she still had to find out who wanted to poison Anastasia and the purpose behind using such a long, non-lethal poison. Lily just had too many things on her plate, and she did not have time to look into it yet.

“What about your lab?”

Dominic was concerned about her, although he barely asked any questions. He remembered everything she had told him.

“Didn’t Austin restore all the data? I haven’t visited the lab yet. They might still be conducting the experiments.”

Lily originally wanted to destroy the database, but there were many things she would have to consider.

Even if she destroyed all her data, others still had records of the experiment.

Although the notes might be incomplete with the data destroyed, what about the researchers who did the experiments with her? She could not have them all killed.

As long as these people were determined to continue this experiment, there was no stopping them.

“Have you given up?”

Dominic turned to look at her when he heard the discouragement in her voice.

“You don’t seem like someone who would give up so easily.”

“What other choice do I have?”

She smiled wryly at him.

“I can’t cut off the project. Besides, it’s just my gut feeling that there’s something off about this whole thing, but I have no conclusive evidence. What are they going to do? There’s nothing for me to report.”

It wasn’t that she hadn’t thought about taking this to the police, but it did not make sense.

This laboratory was also not run solely by Thompson.

Who knew who was backing him up? Dominic did not ask any more questions and continued to play with Galen.

It was a picturesque scene; an old man with a child while his mother stood aside.

“Don’t you think things have been too coincidental recently?” Lily asked quietly after a moment of silence.

“Huh??? Huh???”

Dominic was a little surprised and turned to look at her as if he didn’t quite understand what she meant.

“All of these. Could it be that they’re all connected? Everything seems too coincidental.”

Lily began to wonder.

Read Novel Spoiled By Mr. Russell Chapter 1448 By Luminous Night

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1448-“And?”

Dominic was startled as he tried to digest her words.

At this time, Galen, who had been riding on Dominic’s shoulders, struggled to get off.

The old man then slowly sat down on the chair next to him.

Lily carried Galen off and noticed Dominic slumped onto the chair, obviously tired.

“With that old back of yours, how are you so stubborn? Do you think you’re still young?”

Lily couldn’t help but say.

“Don’t look down on me. I’m a lot stronger than most youngsters nowadays!”

He stretched his back to prove a point but screamed in pain.

“Look at you!”

Lily grumbled.

With that, she pulled Galen into the room.

“Hey! Where are you going? Are you going to leave me here alone? Hey! Do you even care about me?!”

His cries attracted the servants, and they rushed over.

“Sir, what’s wrong? Sir?”

“Go! It’s none of your business!”

He shoed them away impatiently.

Then, unable to hold back his pain, he changed his mind.

“Go and get me some ointment!”

Just as the servant nodded, he saw that Lily had returned with a bottle of ointment in her hand.

“Gosh, my apprentice knows me best!” Dominic exclaimed with a grin.

“Didn’t you say you were strong?”

Lily glanced at him before opening up the ointment and putting it on his back.

“Ouch, ouch! Take it easy!” The old man shook his head, drawing his breath.

“Even the best fall down sometimes. Don’t hurt me anymore! By the way, what did you say about everything being too coincidental?”

“Nothing.”

After being interrupted and walking back and forth, she had time to think things through and felt that she might have been too sensitive.

“I’m a little sensitive because I’m in this field. It just happens that they are related, so I thought it was all interconnected. Maybe it’s just a coincidence,” she said as she continued to massage his back.

Dominic thought about what she said.

“Wait, wait, wait, what did you say? The more you talk, the more confused I am. Can you explain further?”

He sat upright with his legs crossed and looked at her solemnly. It was rare for him to be interested in a topic.

After closing the cap of the ointment, Lily sighed.

“What I’m saying is, the experiments in the laboratory, my friend’s inexplicable poisoning, and the plague in Burnwken, do you think they’re related?”

The old man fell silent. He put his hands on his knees, and with his crossed-legged stance, he looked like an old monk in meditation. His brows were knotted, and he fell into deep thought.

A few minutes later, he smacked his lips.

“Are these things related? “

Lily nodded quietly.

“Whatever. Maybe I’m just overthinking it.”

“That might not necessarily be the case.

Sometimes, even overthinking may lead to a new idea.

It might not be a big deal now, but who knows what it might lead to?”

Dominic spoke in code.

“Are these things related? “

Read Novel Spoiled By Mr. Russell Chapter 1449 By Luminous Night

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1449–“What are you saying?”

“All I’m saying is, why did you suddenly think these things might be related? Is there a reason behind it?”

With his explanation, everything Dominic said suddenly made sense.

‘That’s right. Why do I feel like these things are connected? There must be a common denominator that I’ve yet to think of’

“The laboratory research, why do they want to fuse highly toxic medicinal herbs and raw materials so people could inhale them silently and unconsciously?”

Lily began to analyze, thinking out loud.

“As for the plague in Burnwken, I heard that the employees had unknowingly inhaled poison.They couldn’t find the source of transmission, and it spread very quickly.As for Tasia...”

After a pause, Lily continued, “Although there’s no connection between the two, Tasia was also chronically poisoned by unconsciously inhaling the toxins.It’s just that I managed to trace the source of the poison.It’s mixed with various herbs, and it takes time.It’s also a complicated process.”

Dominic listened carefully and nodded.

“So, the common denominator is that the people have been getting poisoned without their knowledge?”

“yes!”

Lily slapped her thigh.

This was an epiphany.

No wonder she felt that these things were coincidental.

Although they seemed unrelated on the surface, they were inextricably linked.

“Then where do you think the source of the problem is?” Dominic continued to ask.

“The lab,” Lily answered.

This time, there was no hesitation in her tone and a firm look in her eyes.

The older man raised his eyebrows.

“Why didn’t you think it stems from your friend? According to you, she has been poisoned for years.It should be before the project started.”

“It may seem so on the surface because Tasia’s incident would have started the earliest, but as I said just now, I could trace the poisoning back to the source, unlike the lab research and the plague in Burnwken.

“with that said, if what is happening to Tasia is considered the source, one would say that it’s the most preliminary form of research or experiment.Then once the lab project gets kickstarted, everything is brought to a bigger scale.”

Lily felt a chill ran down her spine when she said that.She had always been skeptical about the research done in the laboratory before because she did not know what they would do with the results.She initially thought it was an excellent idea.

A perfect fusion of medicinal herbs and fragrances would be a giant leap forward in both industries to help alleviate and improve patients' health.

Later, she realized the project was more complex than it seemed.

Then she began to doubt their motives.

However, she thought it was to create a product that would harm someone.

Now that she had connected the dots, she realized that they were not targeting someone but everyone instead.

If the plague in Burnwken could be related to the research in the laboratory, it would pose a risk to all humans.

No one would be able to escape.

Whoever was behind this project had big ambitions.

"Then go and do what you should,"

Dominic urged with a slight nod as he looked at Lily with relief and concern.

At this point, he could see how dangerous everything was.

However, he knew Lily well.

Besides, even her friends and Alexander were involved in this.

There was no way Lily would let things slide.

It would be fine if she were not well-versed in this field, but she was proficient.

She contributed to the experiment's success.

If one day, the results of her findings harmed the whole world, she would have an inescapable responsibility.

"I'll get going first."

With a nod, she straightened up.

"Galen, let's go home."

She contributed to the experiment's success.

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1450-“Hey, didn’t you say you would leave him here? W-Why are you changing your mind?”

Dominic chased after the mother-son duo without putting his shoes on and complained.

“I’m not leaving yet.I’ll bring Galen over when I am,” Lily replied helplessly.

“Didn’t you tell me to take him elsewhere?”

“Does Grandpa hate me?”

Galen’s eyes widened.

Hurt was evident on his face, and he dropped the little toy car in his hand out of shock.

Seeing this, Dominic was immediately distressed.

“No, no.How could I hate you? I will always dote on you!”

With that, he pursed his lips and leaned toward Galen’s cheek.

However, Galen turned away and said, “What do you mean?”

“It means I like you! You are my favorite person in the world!”

It was only in front of Galen that Dominic would proclaim his love so directly like this.

Lily could not stand watching this and turned away with a sigh.She did not blame her son for always pulling Dominic’s beard or destroying his things.

At this moment, Galen had buried his little face in Dominic’s beard.

Austin had stayed up all night in the laboratory and finally saw his desired results.

‘Success!’ The success this time was different from before.

This time, everything was entirely Austin’s own efforts.

This new variety had a medicinal property infused into the fragrance.

Inhaling it would calm people down and relieve their restless and violent tendencies.

To test this out, he injected several mice with hyperactive drugs before fuming the chamber with this new product.

The results came back a success, with very high potency. He knew he could do it.

After all, Lily had been researching for so long, only to have succeeded twice.

He was here for a shorter period than her, yet he also managed to succeed.

Austin eagerly looked for Thompson with the successful sample product in his hand.

Austin remembered seeing him go upstairs late last night.

‘Professor Thompson must’ve stayed up here all night’

Recently, Thompson had become visibly haggard.

He had lost a lot of weight, and his eyes were sunken.

Other workers at the laboratory were not in a good state either.

After all, they all had a heavy workload and were under immense pressure.

However, Austin believed it would not go on for much longer.

There would be successive successes soon.

The research in the laboratory would surely shock the world, and his contribution to this would be undoubtedly outstanding.

He was thrilled when he arrived outside Thompson’s office.

Without a second thought, he reached out to turn the doorknob, only to find it unlocked.

When he pushed the door in, he was greeted by emptiness.

“Professor Thompson?”

Thinking that Thompson might be in the smaller room, Austin walked in to see a neatly folded bed.

It seemed like no one had even slept there.

At this moment, Austin’s elevated mood immediately dropped.

He thought he could share this good news with Thompson immediately.

After Lily left, Austin could tell that the people in the laboratory were starting to lose confidence.

They were not working as hard as before, and no one worked overtime at night.

Sometimes, he felt he was the only one taking this project seriously.

Of course, although there were other project teams, he did not know their responsibilities.

On top of that, Rhea was in charge, so the staff in her team would work harder.

Austin could understand the difference in morals.

After all, Lily was supposed to lead this project team.

Now that she had left, they faced pressure, even if discouraged.

Therefore, it was normal for them to slack off.

However, Austin's newfound success was a shot in the arm. It would be a game-changer. He clenched the vial in his hand, turned, and was about to leave when he heard footsteps outside.

It was the crisp sound of high heels.

'High heels?!'

Austin could understand the difference in morals.
