Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1791 -At eight o'clock in the morning, a black car appeared at the gate of the Russells household.

At the same time, Lily's phone rang. She glanced at the flashing caller ID, lowered her head, and hung up.

Then she picked up the things she had packed earlier, drank the remaining milk in her cup, and said to Alexander, "I'm leaving."

"If you feel like something's wrong, stop doing it and call me immediately."

Alexander did not have much to say besides this reminder. She nodded and walked toward the door.

"Lily," he called out.

Lily stopped, and Alexander quickly pulled her into his embrace. He hugged her quietly without saying a word. His embrace was warm and comforting.

Lily was startled for a moment before quickly returning to her senses.

Then she leaned into his chest and enjoyed the warmth and tranquility of this moment.

They both knew what they were about to face was cruel and dangerous.

However, they could not just back down when push came to shove.

"It's almost time," Lily said softly and patted his shoulder lightly.

Those people were impatient.

On top of that, there was no need to delay.

Alexander let her go and dropped his arm to the side before taking her hand instead.

"I'll walk you out."

She wanted to tell him it was unnecessary, but after glancing at his face, she swallowed back her words and nodded slightly.

"Okay, let's go!"

Alexander held her hand tightly, and his palm was slightly sweaty.

His face was solemn, too.

It was rare for him to be this nervous.

Lily turned her head and gently scratched his palm, trying to get him to relax.

However, Alexander did not stop or look at her.

Instead, he held her hand a little tighter.

When they arrived at the door, Mike was already waiting by the car. It was not a surprise that the two came out together.

Mike straightened up and quickly walked forward.

"I'm sorry, this is not my— it's meaningless to say anything now. Let's go!"

Lily interjected.

His apology was meaningless, seeing that this was out of his control.

Mike stayed silent and glanced at Alexander hesitantly.

Then he could not help but ask, "Are we still friends?"

Alexander glanced at him with his eyebrows slightly raised but did not answer.

Mike noticed this, smiled sarcastically, and said, "My question was superfluous."

With that, he turned around and opened the back passenger door for Lily to get in.

Mike closed the door, and just as he was about to go around to the driver's seat, Alexander suddenly stopped him.

"If my wife can come back safe and sound, I will always be grateful to you."

Mike raised his head to look at Alexander, stunned as if he was unsure who Alexander was talking to.

As soon as Mike returned to his senses, he knew the true meaning behind Alexander's words.

Alexander wanted him to take care of Lily and protect her well.

Mike nodded fiercely and said, "I promise I will do my best to protect her, even if it costs me my life!"

He had done a lot of wrongs for his son's sake.

Every day was torture in the organization.

Now, Alexander's request was nothing to him.

Alexander put his hands in his pockets and nodded slightly in response.

Mike did not overstay his welcome and quickly got into the car and drove away.

Watching the car disappear from Alexander's sight, a voice sounded from Alexander's earphones, asking uncertainty, "Mr. Russell, are you not going to follow them?"

Alexander tilted his head slightly and answered in a flat tone, "There's no reason to."

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1792-"Okay!"

The voice in the earphones went silent after that.

It was indeed unnecessary for Alexander to follow Lily.

Seeing how the organization dared to pick Lily up so openly meant they had fully prepared themselves for anything.

Moreover, with their cunning nature, even hidden cameras could barely capture any movements from them, and the Russells' networks could not find anything.

It was no longer a question of whether or not Alexander should follow them.

They were doing everything openly, with the vaccine development base being their most significant den.

Alexander straightened his body and narrowed his eyes slightly.

'His wife has already entered deep into the tiger's den. I can't just sit idly by since I have many things to do'

With that thought in mind, he turned around and went in.

As soon as he entered the living room, he saw his son sitting on the carpet, concentrating on building something with his Legos.

Alexander raised his eyebrows and walked over to squat beside his son.

“Mommy left again,”

Galen suddenly said while playing with his Legos.

“Yeah.”

Alexander nodded.

“No.”

Galen unceremoniously exposed his father’s lies.

“Mommy won’t be back for a long time!”

Alexander’s eyes immediately widened in surprise. He propped his chin with one hand and tilted his head to look at his son.

“How do you know? Did Mommy tell you?”

Galen shook his head and turned to look at his father.

“Grandpa said before that Mommy has important things she needs to do. I am a little man! I must be sensible and grow up big and strong!”

Galen understood what Dominic meant then, but Galen found it hard to express his thoughts coherently.

Amused by his son’s words, Alexander nodded slightly.

“That’s right! You are a little man. You should be sensible!”

In the next second, he rubbed his son’s head.

“But don’t worry. Growing up is a process, so you can do it slowly!”

“No!”

The little guy stood before Alexander, arms akimbo as if his father’s words had pinched him.

Then he angrily grumbled, "I have to grow up fast to help you and Mommy defeat the bad guys!"

Alexander was speechless to hear this. He could not help but laugh as he looked at the little boy standing before him.

"So, tell me. Who are the bad guys?"

"The poison people," the little boy replied.

Now, Alexander was even more puzzled.

"You know this because Grandpa told you?"

"Yeah!"

Galen nodded with determination.

His little face remarkably resembled his father's.

Then Alexander asked him seriously.

"What else did Grandpa tell you?"

"That Mommy is making an antidote to save people, and the bad guys aren't as powerful as she is!" bean Galen thought momentarily as he desperately searched for words.

"Mommy is the smartest!"

"It seems like your grandfather is confident about your mother!"

Alexander held Galen's chin with one hand.

"I'll leave you to play at Grandpa's house for a few days. Is that okay?"

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1793 -The little guy squinted, and his expression was surprisingly similar to his father's.

"Daddy, are you leaving me too?"

"Ahem!"

Alexander cleared his throat, a little embarrassed that his son called him out like that. He clenched his fist and coughed several times to cover up his embarrassment.

“I’m not leaving you. I just…”

“Go!”

The little boy waved and lowered his head to continue building his Lego.

“I’ll be good!”

Just a few simple words were enough for Alexander to swallow back his words. He looked at his son and felt a rush of emotions. He even felt a little guilty.

Recently, he had been around Galen less than he wanted to.

On top of that, the fact that Lily had to inform him about Daisy meant that he had exposed his son to potential dangers. He felt indebted to Galen.

However, he had no choice. It was best if Galen stayed with Dominic instead of his grandmother.

Galen was also a lot closer to him, too.

“Galen, Mommy and Daddy will play with you the whole day when we finish work, okay?”

Alexander raised his hand and gently rubbed the top of his son’s head as he spoke.

“Okay!”

Galen’s crisp voice comforted Alexander.

The boy’s father smiled, feeling more at ease.

“That hurts!”

The sound of crying and shouting startled the birds in the garden, causing them to scatter.

“Tsk, stop moving!”

Dominic frowned, holding the shiny silver needle in one hand impatiently.

Once Austin regained his physical strength, he was not as cooperative as he used to be.

He would always wiggle around whenever Dominic tried to poke him.

At this point, Dominic was on the edge of killing the young man.

“Uncle Dom, it’s not that I’m moving on purpose. It just hurts! Are you sure you didn’t poke me in the wrong place?”

Austin pursed his lips, feeling wronged.

The pain was unbearable, and he could not help but want to struggle. It was just a reflex.

“You bastard, are you questioning me?!”

Dominic scolded and stood up straight, staring at his grandnephew angrily.

Austin studied Dominic’s face carefully.

“Uncle Dom, why would I question you? Still, it didn’t hurt as much when Lily did it. Is it two different acupoints?”

Although Austin was not well-versed in acupuncture and moxibustion, he understood a few acupoints and knew his body best. He could feel that they were the same acupoints, but it just hurt more when Dominic did it.

“Who told you it’s two different points? Of course, it is the same one! She just has a light hand. What’s so strange about that?!”

Dominic rolled his eyes with his head held high.

Austin hesitated for a while but still could not help but say, “Uncle Dom, acupuncture isn’t about strength.”

The old man was silent for two seconds before he snapped, “Are you going to let me do it or not?!”

Austin did not answer. He wanted to say no, but he did not dare.

On top of that, although he had not had an attack in the past two days and his body was gradually improving, he was not entirely clear of the side effects.

Acupuncture was still necessary.

‘Forget it. I’m just going to bear with it!’ “Yes, do it! Of course, I’ll let you do it! I trust you!”

Austin grinned before lying down again, obediently turning his back to Dominic.

The older man raised his eyebrows, held the needle, and pointed it at the acupoint before dropping it again.

“Ah!”

Austin gritted his teeth, startling his granduncle.

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1794-“Are you done yet? When you were drugged up, weren’t the seizures more painful than this? I didn’t even hear you shouting like that! Are you doing this on purpose?!”

“No, Uncle Dom.Go ahead.I won’t scream anymore!”

Austin lowered his head and bit the towel, trying not to make a sound.

This pain was completely different from the pain from the previous virus attack.It was explosive, and it felt like the cells in her body were splitting apart and exploding simultaneously.

Although the pain was silent, his body felt as though it were being torn apart.

All his strength was used in the splitting of his cells, so he didn’t have any energy left to scream.

However, the pain from the old man’s acupuncture was continuous and slow.

The pain seeped into his bones slowly, making him break out in a cold sweat.

Seeing his appearance, Dominic sighed and shook his head.

He held the needle in his hand and gently pressed the edge of the acupuncture point with his other hand a few times.

To be honest, he also knew it was painful.

The cause of the pain was not the acupuncture itself but the interaction between the medicine on the needle and its absorption into the acupoints.

However, this was inevitable.

After all, the poison in his body should be removed as soon as possible to improve the medicine’s effect.

This was the only way.

At this time, a servant came in to report.

“Sir, the child is here.”

“Lily is here?”

Dominic was a little surprised, wondering why she didn't call beforehand.

‘Isn't she swamped these days? How did she make time to come over? Why did she bring her son with her?’ He was so delighted that he had forgotten about the needle in his hand, poking it into Austin's flesh.

Austin did not dare to say anything and let out a muffled snort.

He was also happy with what he heard.

‘If Lily is here, does that mean she can take over? That way, it might not hurt as much’

However, what was said next disappointed him.

“No. Mr. Russell brought the boy here,” the servant replied.

For Galen's sake, the servant did not stop him.

Now, the two of them were waiting in the living room.

“Him?!”

Now, Dominic was even more surprised.

‘Why didn't Lily come? Why did she send her husband and son instead? Alexander has never visited here alone before this’

There was a bad premonition in his heart as discomfort crept up his back.

With a frown, Dominic said, “Where are they?”

“In the living room.”

He nodded.

“I'll be right there!”

Alexander was sitting in the living room with his son.

The little guy seemed to feel at home.

He went straight to a corner, climbed in, and started playing with his pile of toys.

Alexander wanted to stop Galen at first, but when he saw that the area was set up for the child and that novelebook Galen was moving around it skillfully, he realized that the corner was made just for him.

He raised his eyebrows, remembering what happened at the gate.

He was stopped, but as soon as the gatekeeper saw Alexander, he allowed them in without question.

This surprised Alexander. He never imagined the day when he would need his son to enter certain places.

Seeing his son roll around in the pile of toys, Alexander suddenly felt a sense of relief.

He understood why Lily left Galen here when she went to find him.

It was indeed reassuring that Galen was left here.

Just as Alexander was thinking about this, he heard footsteps from behind. When he turned around, he saw Dominic walking out of the backyard.
