Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1966 -Although Anastasia might have had ideas and enough courage, she was still young and lacked experience. She was in a mess after seeing the video.

On top of that, Cameron had been missing for a few days with no news. It was understandable that she dared not speak up.

Although it had been less than a day since the video, it was still hard for her.

“No.”

Alexander shook his head and explained, “If they genuinely wanted to harm your father, they could just do it. Why would they bother sending you the video to threaten you? They simply want to buy some time or just need these few days.”

While their words might not be trustworthy, and it was uncertain they would release Cameron after three days, at the very least, their demand for Anastasia not to call the police or tell anyone was true within the three days.

Since that was the case, they wanted to cover up Cameron’s disappearance.

Although Alexander could not figure out the purpose behind this, what they did was very obvious.

“Then what should I do now?”

Although Anastasia was still worried about her father, she felt a little more at ease now. Her mind had gone wild since last night.

She feared telling anyone and could only hide her anxiousness. She had no one to talk to, no one to share with. She was a mess. It was a coincidence that Alexander showed up.

Although Anastasia hesitated initially, she felt much happier after letting it all out.

“You don’t need to do anything,” Alexander said as he drummed his fingers lightly on the table, thinking.

“I don’t have to do anything?!”

“Think about it. What would you do if I didn’t come today and you didn’t tell me this?”

That one sentence instantly shut her down as she genuinely did not know what she would have done.

Before Alexander came, she panicked as her mind spiraled about where her father might be. She also contemplated whether or not she should call the police.

“But if I don’t do anything, what if something...”

Anastasia dared not continue, as if it would come true if she did. She clenched her fists as her eyes burned. She had been trying not to cry because her father had suffered so much. It worried her a lot.

“Nothing you do now will be of much help. These people don’t want you to call the police and don’t want the cat out of the bag. They must be planning something within these three days.”

‘Three days... First, the organization took Lily away, and her whereabouts are unknown. Now, it’s Cameron, almost at the same time. Is this just a coincidence? No, I believe it must have something to do with that organization. If so, what are they planning to do?’ Alexander thought.

‘Mike says the experiment is a success, and the key to the final step is Lily. They likely need to use her as a test subject. Could it be?’ The thought of this made Alexander’s heart clench.

He could not bear to think about what could happen and understood how Anastasia felt. He took a deep breath to calm his emotions before saying in a deep voice, “Leave this to me!”

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1967 -Alexander had Anastasia sent home, not before reassuring her not to overthink and to eat and rest when she was home. He also told her to contact him immediately if she received another message.

Although Anastasia agreed, her frown was still prominent.

Alexander did not say much, as his words would sound empty, no matter what he said.

In truth, they both knew his intention.

Still, it was difficult for the person involved to remain optimistic and worry-free when faced with the actual situation.

After all, talking was cheap, just like Alexander was concerned about his wife's safety. He tried comforting himself by trusting in her ability to protect herself so he did not have to worry.

Besides finding Lily, he was responsible for finding Cameron, too.

Things just kept getting increasingly confusing.

Lily could not feel the car shaking when she woke up. It seemed she had arrived. Her brain started working again after a short rest.

She considered what had happened before passing out.

'I entered a car with Rick, got blindfolded, and then...I don't know anything after that'

Lily had a whiff of a fragrance from the mist before passing out, making her unconscious.

Now, she had no idea where she was and whether she was still in Kingsland or even Hyderland. She did not know how long she had been asleep or where she had gone.

Lily remained blindfolded, and all she saw was darkness.

The only good thing was that the mist barely harmed her and would not affect her unborn twins.

'The babies..'

With that thought in mind, she moved around and realized her hands were free.

However, they felt numb, probably from being passed out for a long time. She pushed through the numbness with gritted teeth as she moved to remove the cloth covering her eyes.

When she removed the blindfold, the light made her squint in discomfort before gradually adjusting her eyes. She could only see where she was afterward.

The strange thing was, this place was not like how she imagined. It was not a basement or a secret room. It was not dim with a hard floor.

Instead, she was lying comfortably on a king-size bed.

This room was quite luxurious.

On top of that, no one was in the room except her.

It was beyond her imagination. She thought they would take her to some dark place or a prison cell, but her room was much better than she had imagined.

Still, she did not think she was safe just because of the environment she was in.

On the contrary, she was more on edge about who the other party was.

‘If we’re still in Hyderland, their illicit activities must remain secret. Yet, they could arrange for me to be in a luxurious room so openly, which reflects the organization’s frightening power’

After pondering for a while, Lily got up while supporting her abdomen.

Her body was getting heavier by the day.

All she could think about was resolving everything before giving birth.

Then everything could return to the way it was before.

Be it Galen or her two unborn twins—they deserved to grow up in a safe and warm environment instead of facing various viruses and mutations as soon as they were born.

‘Perhaps this world will eventually perish one day, but mankind’s inventions shouldn’t cause humans to suffer’

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1968 -Lily could feel her babies turning like they were yawning and stretching.

There was a bulge on her stomach that eventually disappeared.It indicated everything was going well, making her feel relieved.

Amid her recent ordeal, she realized her children must also have suffered.She could find some peace of mind as long as they were safe.

After taking a moment to gather herself, she stood up and walked around the room.She noticed there was no one else in the room.However, it was evident there were surveillance cameras present.

As Lily approached the window, she drew the curtains and realized it was blocked, so she could not see the outside.

In other words, the window was just a decoration.

The room was quite spacious, resembling a suite.

When Lily exited the bedroom, she entered a living area with a sofa, coffee table, and a water dispenser, among other things.

Overall, it felt relatively luxurious.

‘Yeah, I’m in a hotel suite.Or more like a luxurious cage”

Even if she did not try to open the door, she knew she could not leave this place so easily.

‘Now that the organization has brought me here, they would not allow me to leave at will”

With that thought in mind, she approached the door, placed her hand on the doorknob, and paused momentarily before forcefully pulling it open.

The door swung open quickly but outside stood two men who looked like thugs.

When the door opened, they swiftly extended their hands to block her.

Lily halted and raised an eyebrow as she glanced outside. It was indeed a hotel corridor, but there seemed to be no one else except for herself and the two thugs. She remained silent for a few seconds before smiling at them and closing the door again. She would not force her way out like this, nor was she foolish enough to believe the two thugs were the only people present.

After retreating into the room, she carefully inspected every corner. She found that although surveillance cameras were around, there were not many.

‘This, and the two thugs outside. The organization must be pretty confident they can keep her in here’

Of course, she knew where that confidence came from.

When the two thugs blocked her, she saw the guns holstered at their waists.

‘Perhaps I can disarm and defeat the two quickly, but how many more men are here besides those two? How many more guns or other weapons are present? I have no idea. Therefore, acting so rashly isn’t a wise choice’

Lily had always wanted to know who was behind the organization and who was pulling the strings.

Still, she could not find any information.

Finally, she had a rare opportunity to get in touch with them.

‘How can I miss this chance? Since I’m already here, I have to adapt to the situation. However—’ Lily touched her pockets and looked around the empty room.

She realized they had confiscated her phone.

‘Losing all means of communication is a rather tricky situation. Alex must be worried sick! I must find a way to contact the outside world immediately. I fear Mike has already told Alex the news now that the organization has taken me away. On top of that, I have no idea what happened to Dominic’

After pacing the room for a while, Lily turned and sat on the sofa. She started feeling a little hungry as her stomach growled, reminding her she had not eaten anything in a long time.

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1969-Not knowing whether they saw through her thoughts or if it was time, the door suddenly swung open.

The two thugs stood aside while someone pushed a food cart in.

The three looked foreign.

Without saying a word, the person parked the cart next to the table, opened the lid, and took out the dishes individually.

The aroma was enticing as Lily looked on, only to discover the dishes were local.

Moreover, they were her favorite foods.

There were fajitas, pot roasts, tater tots, etcetera.

The table was full of various dishes, a feast, even for her eyes.

After laying out the food, the person glanced at Lily before pushing the cart out.

Lily sat down, looking at the table full of food. She knew they were trying to convey a message.

They knew her well, even up to what she liked eating.

Since they had gone to such lengths to bring her here, they would not simply poison her food and end everything so quickly.

However, there was no guarantee they would not tamper with the food.

After all, these people were experts in virology.

Although she was hungry, she did not rush to eat.

First, she leaned over to look, then sniffed the dishes.

Nothing seemed suspicious, at least from her knowledge of pharmacology.

Once she was satisfied with her observation, she began to eat.

No matter where she was, she would not neglect her well-being. She had to take care of herself and the children in her stomach to find a way out. She quietly enjoyed the meal, taking nearly half an hour to finish.

After setting her utensils down, she let out a satisfying burp.

The door opened again almost as soon as she put down her utensils.

The same person from before silently cleared the table.

Lily looked at him and asked, "When can I meet your boss?"

The person glanced at her, his eyes full of confusion.

Judging from his appearance, it seemed like he did not understand her.

Lily curled her lips and repeated the question in another language.

However, the other party just waved his hand and did not answer. He finished tidying up and left without making a sound, just as he had entered. It made Lily suspect he was mute.

After he left, the door closed again, and nobody came to check on her or ask her anything.

Even Rick, who had brought her here, seemed to have vanished into thin air. It was unusually quiet here, so quiet that one could hear a pin drop.

Lily turned on the television, but there was no signal.

They had the signal blocked as well.

At this point, Lily had no idea what these people were planning.

Everything was just too strange.

The following two days were even more bizarre.

Every day, at a fixed time, someone would deliver her meals.

They were a wide variety of her favorite dishes, but the taste was not as authentic.

From the flavors and cooking techniques, she knew local chefs did not prepare it.

They could only imitate the dishes' appearance but not capture the essence.

Fortunately, she could eat her fill, and she was not picky. She made sure to eat enough every day.

However, no one else came except the two guards at the door and the person who delivered the food.

These three people would not respond to her no matter what she said or asked. It was as if they were deaf.

No matter how resilient she was, she gradually became agitated under such circumstances. She felt frustrated, mainly because this dragged on for too long.

After all, the less she knew about the changes in the situation outside, the less confident she felt.

Spoiled by mr. russell chapter 1970-Before this, the organization had urged Lily to speed up the experiment's progress, emphasizing time was running out.

Now, they seemed less urgent.

Still, she did not know the situation on Alexander's side or what had happened at the research base.

'What will Mike and Rhea do now that the organization has taken me away? Has Edward already left?' Mike immediately returned to the research base after hearing about Alexander's situation.

Rick, who had taken Lily away, had caught Mike off-guard, quickly sending Mike into a spiral.

Mike only remembered the “boss” was still locked inside the secret room while returning to the research base.

Mike had planned to find an opportunity to move the boss out, but now it seemed no one cared about the boss. However, it was a good chance for Mike to gamble. He wanted to see if this vicious man, who the organization had already discarded, would still be as arrogant, fearful, or angry.

Mike also wanted to see if there was a chance he could discover Nick’s whereabouts.

When Mike arrived, he saw that the secret room door was already open.

Someone had brought the “boss” out of the room and placed him on the chair with his head tilted to one side, looking unconscious.

Meanwhile, Rhea was sitting on the other side. She looked at ease with her legs crossed and smiled as she looked at Mike meaningfully, who had just rushed in.

“You still said it wasn’t you.”

“Rhea?!” Mike was stunned.

At this point, he no longer needed to deny it. He sneered and said, “What’s the matter? Are you going to save him?”

“Save him?”

Mike glanced at the person on the chair. He was petite, barely filling the seat.

Yet, that person had manipulated them for so long, making them tremble with fear and unable to speak up.

At that moment, the small man sat there, seemingly small enough to be kicked like a ball. He was nothing without the organization’s support and influence.

Rhea smiled.

“Mike Corden, whether you or I save him wholly depends on you.”

“What do you mean?” Mike frowned, his eyes full of caution.

He knew what kind of woman Rhea was.

She was cunning, treacherous, ruthless, and cold-hearted. Her thoughts were convoluted, and he could easily fall into her trap if he were not careful.

“Don’t be scared.”

Rhea smiled as she turned her chair around, tilting her head to look at the man on the chair.

With a playful smile, she said, “Mike, haven’t you understood by now? Whether it’s him, you, or me, we’re all castaways of the organization. The organization only wants Lily, no one else.”

“So what?” He asked warily.

“So, let’s cooperate!” She turned to look at Mike. She did not look like she was joking at all.

“Cooperate? What kind of cooperation are you talking about?” Mike sneered.

“Why should I trust you? Why should you trust me? Even if we cooperate, what do we have to fight the organization? Do you think we can go against them by joining forces?”

“Why not?” Rhea stood up.

“People always have to take risks for themselves! I’ve put my heart and soul into this experiment for so long, and the results belong to me. No one can take that away!” Her eyes blazed with resentment as she gripped the chair’s armrests until her knuckles turned white.
