

Chapter 1916 Break In To Catch Him

Facing his family's enraged patriarch, Curtis fully believed the seriousness of his words.

Last time he botched the land bid in Dreles, many were displeased with him. They openly criticized him, suggesting the family patriarch choose a different successor.

Another mistake, especially one that upset the patriarch, would surely cost him his heir status.

Resolute, Curtis said, "I'll retrieve the technical documents immediately. To ensure success, might I bring Ethan along?"

The patriarch hesitated momentarily before saying, "Yes, bring Ethan.

Make sure you retrieve and destroy the documents before others lay eyes on them."

Currently, Ethan was the top bodyguard of the Craig lineage.

Curtis felt reassured with him by his side.

Seeking additional backup, Curtis also reached out to the Fire Gang. Together, they approached the Archers' residence with a formidable presence.

The commotion drew Braden out, backed by his men. He demanded, "Curtis! What's your purpose here?"

With a scoff, Curtis retorted, "Braden, we're here to apprehend someone from your household. We'll be quick. Let us in."

Braden stood his ground, his voice rising with anger.

"You think you can just apprehend a guest from our home? Those we welcome are our honored guests! No one's allowed to disrupt them! And this crowd you've brought... Are you planning to force your way in?"

Indeed, that was Curtis's intent.

He viewed the Archer family as declining. Their remaining pride was the only thing intact.

He gave a knowing glance to the Fire Gang members.

Catching his signal, they began to yell provocatively, 'The Archer family's reign over Clouauro city is over! Move, or face the consequences!'

Braden seethed with anger. The audacity of a mere gang challenging him!

He recognized Curtis's hand in this and confronted him, "Is this your family's declaration of war against the Archers?"

Curtis only offered a derisive smile, his thoughts clear.

The Archer family's downfall was imminent.

Meanwhile, the Fire Gang's shouts persisted.

Kaden emerged from the house, disturbed by the commotion. Observing Curtis and his entourage, he stated gravely, "My father is currently under Raven's care inside. If you have grievances with the Archer family, I'd appreciate it if you waited until Raven finishes his treatment."

Curtis's eyebrows rose in surprise. "Are you implying that Raven can truly heal your father's ailment?"

Kaden nodded with conviction, "Indeed! My father's condition has shown significant improvement after his sessions with Raven. Additionally, after Luisa's fainting spell, she's lost her memory. Raven could even help with that too."

A surge of elation bubbled within Curtis.

Internally, he resolved to ensure Raven, known to him as Trevor, returned with him. Trevor's medical prowess was undeniably astounding.

The medicine being researched in his company's lab sometimes resulted in memory loss, a fact Curtis had kept under wraps. He was acutely aware this was a severe unintended outcome of the drug.

His company's experts hadn't found a solution to this problem yet.

He deduced Luisa's condition must've been a consequence of that drug.

Recognizing Trevor could potentially remedy this, Curtis became even more determined to bring him to his lab.

◀ Chapter 1916 Break In To Catch Him

+$120 Points at most

Trevor himself appeared at the entrance. Spotting him, Curtis impulsively pointed towards Trevor, hastily alleging, "He's pilfered the Craig family's confidential records. Apprehend him and reclaim our classified documents!"

Trevor, seeing the familiar face of Curtis causing a ruckus, responded with a smirk, "Referring to your lab's secret files? Weren't those a gift from a close associate of yours? Moreover, I've already forwarded them to someone else."

Limited-time gift: Over 40% extra 🔥

Check

100.0%

05:42