

Chapter 1948 Visiting The Wright Family

After Trevor left, Kurt, who was full of rage, screamed at the top of his lungs in the office to release his anger. He roared, "Trevor! I will make you pay for this! Ahhh!"

Seeing that Kurt was beside himself with anger, the sales manager walked over and said in a flattering voice, "Since Trevor is going to set up a construction company, I think we should ask the heads of the different official departments to make trouble for him. If he faces a lot of difficulties, perhaps he will give up on this project!"

After saying this, the sales manager looked at Kurt expectantly, hoping to get some praise. But to his shock, the angry Kurt slapped him hard instead.

Kurt glared at the sales manager and said coldly, "Do you think only you could come up with such a simple plan? Trevor is not only rich, but he is also a friend of Henrik Wright! Do you even know the Wright family? If you do, do you think the department heads we can corrupt are more powerful than the Wright family?"

The hard slap and harsh scolding made the sales manager's neck shrink sulkily. After a short pause, he said, "We could do everything to disrupt Trevor constructing works. As such, he won't be able to repair his villa. What do you think about that?"

Kurt thought for a while and finally nodded.

Meanwhile, on the other side, Trevor had already registered his new company.

Once that was done, he immediately transferred some money to the foreman so that the construction work could begin as soon as possible. He asked the construction team to prepare to start working soon.

In the industry, the norm was that construction companies worked first and their expenses and wages were settled later. Because of this way of doing things, it was very common for construction workers to have their salaries delayed.

salaries delayed.

Seeing that their new boss actually paid them before they even began work, the workers were really grateful and in high spirits, and they were determined to work hard.

After having taken care of everything here, Trevor took Luisa to pay a visit to the Wright family.

He wanted to know the current situation of the Wright family.

On his way there, Trevor called Henrik and informed him of his visit. "I'm taking Luisa to the Wrights' house. Hope you're around. I'll see you there."

At this time, Henrik was busy dealing with some matters in the hotel. He replied in a hurried voice, "Alright. I have something to deal with at the hotel. I'll be there soon."

Trevor hung up the phone and soon, he and Luisa arrived at the Wrights' house.

The first person they met there was Duran, the same man who had played dirty tricks on them.

Duran was only a collateral member of the Wright family. He knew his status didn't give him enough power to dare offend the young master of the Sanderson family. So he greeted them politely, "Mr. Sanderson, Miss Burke, welcome to the Wright family. Miss Burke, you stayed with our family for a while before. Do you remember me?"

However, Luisa didn't remember Duran at all. She shook her head slightly.

Seeing that, Duran felt embarrassed and frowned. However, he didn't dare to say anything.

Trevor said indifferently to Duran, "We came here to pay a visit to Cecelia. After all, she and Luisa are best friends."

When Duran heard the name Cecelia, he panicked and lied, "Miss Wright... She had not been well recently and it's not convenient for her to receive visits. How about you come to see her another day?"

Luisa didn't even wait for Duran to finish his words and she hurriedly interrupted him, "Trevor is a doctor. We can have a look at her and perhaps he could treat her."

However, Duran still refused to let them see Cecelia. "Our family has a full-time private doctor who takes care of us. Please, Miss Burke, don't worry about Miss Wright and don't bother Mr. Sanderson."

Seeing that Duran was so insistent on not letting them meet Cecelia, Trevor squinted his eyes. He knew that Duran was deliberately refusing to let them in. He didn't insist. Instead, he asked tentatively, "When Luisa and I checked in at the hotel of the Wright family, we met a troublemaker called Kurt. He said he was your man. Have you heard of him?"

Trevor stared at Duran carefully to observe his every expression.

A trace of panic flashed across Duran's face. However, he quickly hid his nervousness.

