

Chapter 1952 The Ridiculous Truth

Although Trevor didn't care about the hacker's attitude, Henrik did. After all, he was the host, so this matter really annoyed him.

This hacker was so arrogant and his attitude seriously irritated Henrik.

Furious, he snapped at Top Hacker, "Watch your tongue! The fact that you are so capable doesn't give you the right to look down on others. Besides, since you are so good, find out the hacker who did this."

Hearing Henrik's words, Top Hacker's face suddenly darkened. Henrik had a reputation of being a calm and polite person, so Top Hacker didn't expect that Henrik would be so rude to him. But considering that Henrik was the young master of the Wright family, he didn't dare to retort.

Soon, the mysterious number which the hacker used to blackmail Henrik called again. When Henrik answered the call, the arrogant voice of the person on the other end of the line sounded. It was obvious the person was using a voice changer.

"Mr. Wright, it's time to pay. I'm going to raise the price this time. Fifty million dollars! I heard that you have hired several hackers to deal with this situation. Well, you can hire whoever you want! It doesn't matter if you recruit all of Dreles' hackers, you still won't be able to defeat me. You better pay! A kind reminder to you, the network will be cut off again in five minutes."

Henrik was completely beside himself after hearing the hacker's threats and he yelled at the phone, "Dream on! Although I have a lot of money, I won't give a penny to a despicable person like you! It'll take the time it'll take, but I will find you. I hope that you would still be so arrogant when I catch you!"

Henrik's words left the mysterious hacker completely unfazed. He didn't panic at all and rather had a weird smile.

"Well, let's see if you can do as you say. It's almost time. Good luck!"

Henrik just gave the mysterious hacker a snort of contempt and urged Top Hacker, "Hurry up! Don't let their attack succeed!"

However, Top Hacker put on airs and said arrogantly, "Five minutes is not enough for me to counter their attack. You claimed this man, Trevor, whom you brought with you is incredible, right? Why don't you let him deal with this?"

As he spoke, Top Hacker handed over his computer to Trevor and added sarcastically, "Come on, have a try. I really want to see how good you are since Mr. Wright specially invited you here to solve the problem."

Of course, Trevor had no hacking skills, but at this time, he had his own guess.

He ignored Top Hacker and asked Henrik, "Where is your hotel's network room?"

Henrik had no idea what Trevor had in mind, but he immediately said, "I'll take you there."

Top Hacker felt that Trevor was trying to flee, so he seized the opportunity to make fun of Trevor.

"Hey, are you a hacker or not? How come you are also knowledgeable on hardware? But anyways, how would your knowledge of hardware help us deal with a software attack?"

Trevor still ignored Top Hacker and quietly followed Henrik to the network room.

Top Hacker snorted coldly. He was really curious to see if Trevor was really that good. So, with his hands in his pockets, he followed them.

By the time they reached to the network room, the five-minute countdown was almost over.

Trevor and Henrik were just a few steps from the network room when they saw a security guard sneak inside the room. The security guard had come to pull out the network cables!

However, just as he was about to do so, Trevor and Henrik caught him in the act.

Henrik's face turned red. He could never have imagined this.

So all the traceless network attacks actually relied on his own employee who cut off the internet connection manually. There was nothing skillful about this.

Furious, Henrik shouted, "What are you doing? Stop right there!"

The security guard was startled by the shout and his face turned pale when he saw Henrik standing behind him.

He had been caught red-handed.

On the other side, when Top Hacker saw what the secret of the 'traceless hacker' was, he was so shocked that he couldn't even move. A look of shame appeared on his face. He had never considered this possibility at all. Ashamed and embarrassed, Top Hacker apologized to Trevor.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Sanderson. I was too arrogant just now. I didn't even think of checking this place!"

Trevor smiled and said nothing.

He actually just wanted to come here to have a look. He had never thought that the whole problem would be solved so easily.

Trevor didn't mind what Top Hacker had said before. He just waved his hand casually.

Top Hacker had apologized sincerely, so Trevor wouldn't hold a grudge against the man because of what he had said.
