

Chapter 1953 Do You Think I Need Evidence

Seeing that he was caught, the security guard panicked.

While Top Hacker was apologizing to Trevor, the security guard took the opportunity to run away.

However, Trevor had been watching him the whole time. As the security guard was about to run away, Trevor immediately stretched his leg and tripped the security guard, who fell hard to the floor.

Still fuming, Henrik walked up to the security guard coldly and grabbed him by the collar.

"Who is behind all this?" he asked angrily.

The security guard trembled in fear. He didn't dare to hide anything and replied quickly, "It's Kurt! He asked me to do it. In fact, he forced me. Mr. Wright, please let me go!"

Hearing what the security guard said, Henrik immediately realized that Duran had something to do with all this. He muttered angrily, "Kurt! Duran! You two just signed your death warrant! You've been repeatedly playing tricks behind my back. I won't let you go this time!"

Henrik's mind was clouded with anger at this moment, and as he spoke, he was about to rush out to confront Kurt and Duran. However, Trevor hurriedly stopped him.

"Don't be in a rush. You don't need to go to them. Considering how arrogant Kurt is, he will definitely soon come to the hotel to appreciate the result of his 'smart work!'"

Trevor's words managed to calm down Henrik a little, and he stopped in his tracks. However, his eyes were still full of anger.

Just as Trevor said, Kurt soon showed up at the hotel.

He came as a customer who wanted to book a room, but in fact, he kept staring at the screen in the hotel hall, waiting for the time when the network would go off.

Just as Trevor said, Kurt soon showed up at the hotel.

He came as a customer who wanted to book a room, but in fact, he kept staring at the screen in the hotel hall, waiting for the time when the network would go off.

However, he waited for a long time and the network failure he expected still didn't happen. At this point, the receptionist was already urging him to pay for the room.

Kurt was puzzled and thought confusedly.

What was going on? The network was supposed to go off.

Kurt was stunned by Trevor's question and his expression changed. He couldn't stand Trevor's gaze and kept looking away. Although he was clearly uneasy, he still denied, "Network failure? I don't know what you are talking about."

Of course he was lying as he was the person behind the attack.

Not only did he want to help Duran get his revenge on Trevor, but he also wanted to complete his previous task of making trouble for Henrik.

What Kurt didn't know was that the security guard who was his accomplice had already confessed.

Trevor sneered and clapped his hands.

As soon as Trevor clapped, Henrik escorted the security guard into the hotel lobby and walked up to Kurt. With a sneer, Henrik glared at Kurt and asked coldly, "So you still won't admit it?"

Kurt broke out in a cold sweat when he saw Henrik walk over with his accomplice. However, he still pretended to be calm and asked with an innocent look, "Who is this man? And what are you talking about?"

Seeing that Kurt was still denying what he had done, Henrik ordered the security guard, "It's time for you to show where your loyalty lies."

The security guard looked at Kurt. He didn't want to offend Kurt, but he was even more scared at the thought of offending Henrik. In a trembling voice, he pointed at Kurt and said, "It's you! You ordered me to unplug the network cables in the hotel's network room. You wanted the network to be cut off! You gave me one hundred thousand dollars to do that. I'll return the money to you."

Hearing what the security guard said, Kurt pretended to be angry and scolded him, "You better not talk nonsense when you don't have evidence. You claim I paid you to cut off the hotel's network. Where is the payment record? Where is the bank statement?"

The security guard became anxious. He pointed at Kurt and said nervously, "You paid me directly in cash. There was no transaction record. But it was you who asked me to do it!"

However, since the security guard had no evidence to back up his accusations, Kurt felt he had nothing to worry about and he said smugly, "Do you expect us to believe you just because you said so? Without any transaction record, you don't have any evidence to back up your claims, which means you are just slandering me."

Kurt was more serene at this time since he felt that he had perfectly refuted the accusation.

However, when he turned around, he saw Henrik smiling coldly. Glaring at Kurt, Henrik said sternly, "Do you think I need evidence to get even with you?"

Hearing that, Kurt's smile suddenly froze on his face, and a trace of panic flashed through his eyes. Before he could react, Henrik's fist zoomed in front of him.
