

Chapter 1965 Something On Luisa's Mind

In the garage, Trevor and Henrik were deep in conversation about the hotel's current struggles.

Henrik expressed his concern. "I'm not sure I can manage this. With how things are at the hotel, it'd be a miracle if we didn't lose money. Duran is always causing issues, but without any evidence, we can't do much about him today."

Trevor reassured him. "You've got to believe in yourself. Just because someone has caused you trouble before doesn't mean you can't handle it. I'm here to help."

While they continued talking, Trevor suddenly felt a warmth at his back. Luisa had rushed in and embraced him.

He turned and wrapped his arms around her, asking with a hint of surprise, "Luisa, what is it? Did you remember something?"

She shook her head, looking up at him earnestly. "What are we to each other? Has anything changed between us?"

Trevor paused, slightly puzzled by her questions, but then answered with conviction. "We're a couple, planning to get married."

Tears rolled down Luisa's cheeks as she kissed Trevor, who, although confused, kissed her back with passion.

After a while, Henrik, feeling awkward, cleared his throat and teased, "You're not treating me like an outsider, are you? I'm still here, you know. Maybe save the kissing for when you're alone?"

Luisa's face turned red, and she buried it in Trevor's embrace.

With a hint of embarrassment, Trevor addressed Henrik. "We should probably get going then. Let me know if anything comes up."

After guiding Luisa into the car, they departed from the Wrights' house.

Unbeknownst to them, Duran, who had been watching covertly, was seething with frustration.

In the garage, Trevor and Henrik were deep in conversation about the hotel's current struggles.

Henrik expressed his concern. "I'm not sure I can manage this. With how things are at the hotel, it'd be a miracle if we didn't lose money. Duran is always causing issues, but without any evidence, we can't do much about him today."

Trevor reassured him. "You've got to believe in yourself. Just because someone has caused you trouble before doesn't mean you can't handle it. I'm here to help."

While they continued talking, Trevor suddenly felt a warmth at his back. Luisa had rushed in and embraced him.

He turned and wrapped his arms around her, asking with a hint of surprise, "Luisa, what is it? Did you remember something?"

She shook her head, looking up at him earnestly. "What are we to each other? Has anything changed between us?"

Trevor paused, slightly puzzled by her questions, but then answered with conviction, "We're a couple, planning to get married."

Tears rolled down Luisa's cheeks as she kissed Trevor, who, although confused, kissed her back with passion.

After a while, Henrik, feeling awkward, cleared his throat and teased, "You're not treating me like an outsider, are you? I'm still here, you know. Maybe save the kissing for when you're alone?"

Luisa's face turned red, and she buried it in Trevor's embrace.

With a hint of embarrassment, Trevor addressed Henrik, "We should probably get going then. Let me know if anything comes up."

After guiding Luisa into the car, they departed from the Wrights' house.

Unbeknownst to them, Duran, who had been watching covertly, was seething with frustration.

Why didn't Luisa suspect Trevor? Why was she even more devoted to him? How could this be?! Damn it!

His anger mounting, Duran violently kicked over a nearby flowerpot.

The excessive force he exerted increased the pain where Luisa had kicked him, making him sweat and dizzy.

< Chapter 1965 Something On Luisa's Mind

 +120 Points at most

been feeling tired lately . Maybe you could go alone?"

Trevor, without noticing her unease, agreed, attributing her fatigue to her ongoing recovery.

✓ You have unlocked exclusive limited-time offer >>

Claim Now