

Chapter 1971 The Tables Turn

Kurt was taken aback when he saw Trevor. He stepped back a few paces and exclaimed, "Why are you here? Weren't you supposed to be dealt with?"

With a sneering expression, Trevor quipped, "I'm here to assist you in fixing up your house. You hired people to beat me, didn't you? But it appears they've lost their way."

Kurt stared at Trevor and yelled, "They haven't found you in the Sanderson family villa. They'll be back soon. Are you trying to wreck my home without official approval? Humph! You're asking for trouble! Just wait, they'll return and beat you up. Then you won't be able to do a thing!"

However, Trevor didn't take the threats seriously.

He casually tossed a document at Kurt and smirked, "How can I possibly be trying to destroy your home without official approval? I have all the legal procedures in place. Your villa's expansion violated the regulations. The Construction Department has instructed me to demolish it. I won the contract for this project, so I brought the construction crew. Will you cooperate?"

Kurt's face turned a livid shade of rage. Wasn't this the same excuse he had used to hassle Trevor before?

Yet, here it was, happening to him.

He angrily grabbed the document and grumbled, "What's the point of this? Did you come here with a forged document to cause me trouble?!"

However, in the very next moment, the red seal on the document and Abram's signature left him in shock.

The document was valid.

Kurt panicked. He attempted to push Trevor away and yelled, "This can't be true! You must have fabricated this! Get out of my house! This is my home!"

When he saw Kurt's reaction, Trevor sneered and said, "It seems you still haven't learned from your past experiences. Well, today, I'll help you learn something new.*

Trevor hoisted Kurt up and suspended him over the bucket.

This scene brought back memories for Kurt, who remembered how terrified he had been when Trevor had done this before.

He clutched the bucket and trembled.

Trevor returned to the driver's seat and started the excavator.

He manipulated the shovel arm in a way that almost made Kurt feel nauseous.

Just at that moment, a group of people burst into the villa. Unexpectedly, the thugs had returned. They called out, "Mr. Larson! Mr. Larson! The person you wanted us to deal with isn't there. What should we do?"

Kurt was overjoyed as if he had found a lifeline. He replied loudly, "I'm here! Come and save me!"

Kurt struggled to get to the ground. When he saw the gang members, he became arrogant.

"Trevor, I warned you to leave as soon as possible. Now you're asking for trouble! Just kneel down and apologize to me. Then, let me have my way with you in that bucket, and I might go easy on you. Humph! Surround everyone here, and don't let them escape!"

Seeing this, the construction team grew tense. They held onto their tools and prepared to stand their ground.

The foreman stepped forward. He looked at Trevor, and said with determination, "Boss, don't worry. We won't abandon you. We'll fight them to the end!"