

Chapter 1978 The Ownership Of The Cooperation

Duran's face darkened when he heard Henrik's question.

He couldn't afford to say anything rashly right now. After all, he had not yet signed the cooperation agreement with Abram.

Feeling a little uneasy, Duran quickly explained in a stammer, "I... I was just kidding. You don't have to take it so seriously."

However, Henrik wouldn't take this weak explanation and he scolded Duran sharply, "Do you think you can talk about the Wright family as you please? You can leave the Wright family right away if you want because we don't raise losers!"

Duran was so embarrassed at Henrik's words that his face turned red. He couldn't retort, so he had no other choice but to go inside dejectedly.

As Duran walked to the party hall, he was lost in thought.

He was eager to see just how long Henrik would be so arrogant.

Once he signed the cooperation contract with Abram, he would become the biggest player in the construction industry.

Duran clearly knew that even if he became the leader of the construction industry, it was impossible for him to defeat Henrik and Trevor at the same time. But at least then, he would have nothing to fear from Henrik.

As for the Wright family...

The party was in full swing at this time and almost all the guests were already present.

The guests tonight were all stakeholders in the construction industry and businesspeople. Soon, Abram took the stage as the crowd looked on.

Dressed in a tailored gray suit, Abram exuded an imposing aura when he took the stage. He took the microphone and announced out loud, "Hello everyone. I guess you all came here today mainly to know more about these special construction materials. I guess most of you have only heard of them, but you don't know much about them. Well, let me tell you briefly about them.

What makes these building materials so special and revolutionary is the fact that they are of excellent quality and therefore are much more resistant than standard building materials. In addition to this, their particular shape means that they can be used on any type of construction. Finally, despite all these qualities mentioned above, they are really cheaper than the traditional building materials we use..."

Sitting in the front row below the stage, Trevor listened attentively to every word Abram said and every now and then, he nodded in agreement.

Trevor was Abram's partner on this project, even though it hadn't been announced yet. So, as a partner, he knew everything about the products.

Duran had been observing Trevor from afar for a long time. Finally, he decided to come over.

Seeing that Trevor was nodding from time to time, Duran said proudly, "I already know everything there is to know about these new materials. Mr. Walsh is just modestly explaining some of their advantages."

The truth is that the new materials are so excellent that there isn't a single material on the market right now that could be compared to them. This is indeed the beginning of a new era in the construction industry. According to some experts, the new construction materials could generate hundreds of billions in sales."

Duran's words almost made Trevor laugh. The situation was really funny.

Trevor couldn't help thinking with satisfaction that Duran was accurately describing the profits these new materials would generate. But the irony was that, as Abram's business partner, the materials also belonged to Trevor and not Duran.

Seeing the smile on Trevor's face, Duran became even more complacent.

In Duran's eyes, Trevor was just the young heir of a rich family who would inherit the family property in the future. He thought Trevor was not better than Henrik.

After all, it seemed that Trevor didn't even realize what a game changer these new construction materials were and how much money would be made from them.

On the stage, Abram had almost finished his presentation of the new materials. He took a short pause and then solemnly announced "We are officially beginning the production of these new construction materials."

The audience burst into thunderous applause.

As soon as Abram got off stage, several construction industry bigwigs and business leaders congratulated him and surrounded him. They were almost begging him to work with them.

"Mr. Walsh, it would be an honor for me if you could consider cooperating with my company. I'm ready to pay five billion to get the exclusive production rights," someone said eagerly.

Hearing the offer, another bigwig snapped, "Are you out of your mind? If that's all you can offer for such a unique opportunity, then you better keep quiet. Mr. Walsh, I'm ready to give you thirty percent of the shares of my company if you are willing to work with us. You will also get thirty percent of the sales profits!"

"Mr. Walsh, I'm convinced your great invention will completely change the construction industry forever. I am so impressed by how you came about with such an invention. Can you adopt me as your son?"

The people were so excited that they were saying unreasonable things.

Stuck in the middle of this crowd, Abram felt very uncomfortable and frowned. Indeed, this was the scenario he feared the most.

At this time, Duran winked at Henrik and said sarcastically, "Well done. I guess this little party would help you make a lot of money, right? But compared to me, you are and remain a loser!"

As Duran said so, his friends paved the way for him to take the stage. Duran confidently rushed onto the stage and said loudly, "Mr. Walsh, I've already prepared the cooperation contract. Shall we sign it right here?"

When the big shots present heard what Duran just said, they were stunned and thought that Duran and Abram were friends.

All the big shots knew how powerful the construction company of the Wright family was in Dreles, so at this time, they all kept quiet even though they were seething with anger deep down.

Henrik and Luisa also became nervous and wondered what was going on.

Was Abram really going to sign with Duran?

If Duran managed to secure such a huge deal, his power and status within the Wright family would significantly improve.

At that time, it would be more difficult for them to save Cecelia.

While Henrik and Luisa panicked, Trevor remained calm. He looked at the two people confidently and said, "Don't worry. Just wait and see."
