

Chapter 1995 Recovering Her Memory

Trevor quickly turned around. His eyes widened in horror when he saw that the barrel of the gun was pointed at Luisa!

He didn't think twice and shouted at Luisa, "Move!"

At the same time, Trevor subconsciously pounced forward to protect Luisa with his own body.

"Bang!"

Trevor had barely let out his cry when everyone present heard the gunshot.

The next moment, Trevor collapsed to the ground and let out a groan.

He had been wounded in his left shoulder.

The bullet didn't pass through his shoulder, but stayed inside.

Despite the intense pain, Trevor knew he had to react quickly. He endured the pain in his shoulder and pulled Luisa to crouch down. Then, with his right hand, he lifted the unconscious strongman from the ground and used him as a shield against the bullets.

Henrik didn't waste any time either. He and Cecelia quickly returned to the hotel to call the security guards.

The shooter was alone and he could not aim at Henrik and Cecelia while at the same time aiming at Trevor and Luisa.

Henrik and Cecelia therefore managed to make it into the hotel safely.

Meanwhile outside, still holding the strong man as a shield, Trevor pulled Luisa with his injured arm and they both retreated.

The gunman continued to shoot, and gunshots rang out incessantly outside.

However, the bullets only hit the strong man whom Trevor used as a shield.

Even if they were safe for the moment, Trevor wasn't sure he could protect Luisa indefinitely if the situation continued like this.

As he was wondering what to do, by a happy coincidence he found a car parked nearby.

Trevor looked at Luisa seriously and said in a firm tone, "Don't be afraid. I'm here with you. Let's go behind the car!"

He managed to keep his cool despite the dire situation they were in, and reassured her.

As he spoke, Trevor dragged the strong man's body, which he kept using as a shield, and he and Luisa both walked to the car.

Finally, he was able to take Luisa behind the car for shelter.

But they weren't out of danger yet since the gunshots were getting closer now.

Trevor let out a grunt and checked the bullet wound on his left shoulder. The sight of the wound made Luisa's heart skip a beat.

All this while, she had no idea Trevor was injured.

When she thought about how Trevor jumped in front of her just now to protect her, tears welled up in her eyes.

Realizing that the gunshots were getting closer and closer, Trevor's face darkened. The killer was getting closer.

Trevor quickly grabbed out the dead man's pistol and took a deep breath. He was ready to fight back.

Luisa, on the other hand, was so anxious that she was about to break down in tears.

Seeing Trevor's determination to fight back their aggressor at all cost calmed her down and she too made up her mind to fight.

The two people looked at each other. Even though neither of them said a word, they each understood what the other had in mind. With a head sign they planned their response.

Luisa mustered all her strength to pull up the strong man's dead body.

Then all of a sudden, the gunshots stopped.

The next second, the sound of leather shoes stepping on the concrete ground was heard.

Trevor knew for sure there was only one shooter.

He looked at Luisa one more time and gave her a nod.

Luisa understood what he meant and she immediately pushed the dead body from behind the car.

"Bang!"

No sooner had she pushed the strong man's dead body out than it was shot straight in the heart.

Without wasting a second, Trevor stepped out from behind the car and aimed at the shooter.

He didn't hesitate and pulled the trigger.

"Bang!" The bullet hit the shooter through the head.

The gunman was dead.

Now that they were finally out of danger, Luisa could no longer hold back her emotions. All the while, fear and anxiety were rising in her heart, and they were overwhelming her at this moment.

She threw herself into Trevor's arms, sobbing. "Trevor, your wound... Does it hurt?"

Trevor stroked Luisa's head gently and gave her a reassuring smile. "It's okay, don't worry. My wound is not serious. Don't worry about it."

Of course Trevor only said this to comfort Luisa.

The bullet was still in his shoulder and the pain was unbearable. Moreover, if he did not remove it in time, the wound would become infected and he could have permanent sequelae.

Seeing that Luisa was still sobbing, Trevor murmured, "Honey, I told you not to worry, okay? Besides, I need you to know that I only love you. You are the only one I want."

Luisa didn't respond to what Trevor said. She suddenly covered her head and cried out due to a splitting headache.

All her memories with Trevor came flooding back to her. She even remembered how they met and how they fell in love with each other.

When Luisa finally opened her eyes, she met Trevor's concerned gaze.

Her heart began to beat faster and faster and she was overwhelmed by a feeling of indescribable love. She hugged Trevor tightly, as if she wanted their bodies to melt into each other.

"Thank you, Trevor. Thank you for staying with me all this time, even though I lost my memory."
