

Chapter 2011 How Could You Run A Car Shop

"Trevor, you felt very arrogant just because the director of the Construction Department liked you, didn't you? Henrik, follow my advice and stay away from people like this man as much as you can." Josue kept badmouthing Trevor.

He didn't realize that with every word he said, Henrik's face grew colder and colder.

After a while, Henrik could no longer stand Josue's fabrications and he shouted, "Shut the hell up! Josue, Trevor is my guest. You better show him some respect!"

Henrik was furious at the moment. How could someone be so smug and a liar? If it were up to Henrik, Josue would have been kicked out of the Wrights' house on the spot.

The commotion outside had caught Kenny's attention and he went outside to try to defuse the situation.

"Henrik, Josue, you are both brothers. There should be no animosity between the two of you. Josue, I think you brought a gift for Henrik, didn't you? Why don't you just give it to him now?"

The fact that Kenny was trying to fix things between Josue and Henrik only made Josue more arrogant.

He cast a provocative glance at Trevor and sneered.

Then he took out of his pocket the key to the red sports car that Trevor wanted to buy from his shop last time and said loudly, "This is the gift I carefully chose for Henrik. I always thought Henrik deserved the best. So when I saw this car, I thought it would fit perfectly in Henrik's garage. This car cost me three million dollars! Unlike someone I know, I don't give people old and cheap gifts."

Josue said this because he had a feeling that the vintage car Trevor had purchased recently should be Trevor's gift for Henrik.

Although Josue ran a car shop, he didn't know much about cars. So, he

< Chapter 2011 How Could You Run A Car Sho. +120 Points at most had no idea how much the Corvette C3 was worth.

Trevor didn't get angry at Josue's words at all. Instead, he smiled quietly.

He didn't see Josue as someone worth his time at all.

Henrik took the car key from Josue and walked over to the car. When he saw it, he sneered and said disdainfully, "Indeed, I don't have this type of car in my garage. This is just an ordinary car and I won't waste money buying it. The most expensive price this car can be sold for is one million five hundred thousand dollars. There is no way you could have bought it for three million dollars. Josue, how about you stop bragging?"

After saying that, Henrik threw the key back to Josue and sneered, "You can keep the car. Don't think I don't know what is on your mind."

Since he was a child, Henrik received expensive gifts from members of his family. He always took the gifts as a debt and each time, he would give back the money worth of the gifts.

So Josue's plan was to get Henrik to give him three million dollars for a car he bought for one million five hundred thousand dollars. It was simply a scam.

Of course, Henrik could see through Josue's plan.

Usually, Henrik wouldn't be so disrespectful even if he knew his brother was trying to scam him. He would just pretend not to know the truth.

But Josue had been mocking Trevor from the moment he showed up, and Henrik couldn't stand it anymore.

Josue had not expected that Henrik would have this reaction at all. After hearing what Henrik said, Josue's face froze and he looked embarrassed.

Since he couldn't vent his anger on Henrik, he once again decided to take out his frustration on Trevor.

"Henrik, the car I bought for you might not be very expensive, but at least it is worth more than a million dollars. It's way better than the car Trevor bought for you!"

Funny enough, Josue, who was a car dealer, really thought a vintage Corvette C3 was a cheap car.

Hearing Josue's words, Henrik snorted and said coldly, "Trevor is a good friend of mine. He doesn't even have to give me anything. I'm just happy that he could come today."

Trevor then took out the key of the car be brought and handed it to Henrik. "Henrik, go to the garage and have a look. The car is over there."

Josue burst into laughter and mocked, "Trevor, I am eager to know how much you bought this pile of crap that you dare to give as a gift to Henrik."

At this point, even Luisa couldn't stand Josue's provocation anymore. She glared at him and snapped, "What on earth is your problem? Why do you keep provoking Trevor?"

Josue snorted coldly and retorted, "When Henrik sees the crummy car Trevor bought him, he'll appreciate my gift for what it's worth."

While Luisa and Josue were arguing, Henrik drove Trevor's car to the entrance of the venue.

When the guests saw the orange-yellow Corvette C3, they were in awe and looked at the car with envy. Most of them were car enthusiasts, so they knew what this car was worth.

This was a limited edition sports car. It was so rare and expensive that even the rich couldn't buy it easily.

It was of great collectible value.

Henrik got out of the car excitedly.

However, Josue still had no idea of how much the car was worth. He picked up a golf club at the entrance of the venue and walked towards the car.

"Such an old and shabby car doesn't deserve to be parked in Henrik's garage! Henrik, if you don't like this car, I will gladly smash it for you!"

Henrik had been in a good mood, but Josue's words irritated him.

Seeing that Josue was really ready to destroy the car, Henrik directly slapped him.

"Damn it! You clearly know nothing about cars. How on earth can you run a car shop? This is a Corvette C3, a limited edition retro sports car. Do you know how much this brand-new car is worth? Idiot! A second-hand C3 was once sold for fifty million dollars. Now figure it out by yourself, how much could this brand-new car be worth at least?"

