+120 Points at most

Chapter 2024 How Did You Dodge That

Kenny's expression grew somber, but he fought to maintain composure and taunted, "Huh! The Sanderson family's direct bloodline is indeed different from ordinary folks. You're immune to the drug! Sadly, you're a bit too impulsive I've helped folks like Josue level up. I can do the same for myself. Best you get out now! Regret is a bitter pill once I make my move."

He threw out a threat, fully aware he'd be in a fog after that injection He wasn't eager to use the drug unless absolutely necessary. Right now, his main goal was scaring Trevor off.

Trevor, however, saw through the act and scoffed, "Kenny, all bark and no bite?"

Caught off guard that Trevor had sussed out his intentions, Kenny's face shifted. The sheer power Trevor possessed left him feeling desperate.

After a moment's hesitation, Kenny clenched his teeth, pulled the drug from his pocket, and plunged it into his own body.

Trevor observed the scene with an icy demeanor. His plans had shifted.

He might try to stop Kenny from getting injected if he did not take the Sanderson family's medicine Yet, since waking up, he discovered his body had undergone a radical transformation. Within him surged an inexhaustible power, a force untamed.

The reason he allowed Kenny to plunge that drug into his veins was a test, a measure of his newfound might.

As the entire tube of the drug coursed through him, Kenny erupted in a shout.

His once slender frame expanded in an instant, muscles tearing through clothes that now burst into flames. The fiery spectacle continued as he shattered the stair railing with a single, powerful slap.

"The drug's a bit unstable. I feel rather on edge now," he muttered to himself. "Still needs some tweaking, it seems." Interrupting his self-

+120 Points at most

Caught off guard that Trevor had sussed out his intentions, Kenny's face shifted. The sheer power Trevor possessed left him feeling desperate.

After a moment's hesitation, Kenny clenched his teeth, pulled the drug from his pocket, and plunged it into his own body.

Trevor observed the scene with an icy demeanor. His plans had shifted.

He might try to stop Kenny from getting injected if he did not take the Sanderson family's medicine. Yet, since waking up, he discovered his body had undergone a radical transformation. Within him surged an inexhaustible power, a force untamed.

The reason he allowed Kenny to plunge that drug into his veins was a test, a measure of his newfound might.

As the entire tube of the drug coursed through him, Kenny erupted in a shout.

His once slender frame expanded in an instant, muscles tearing through clothes that now burst into flames. The fiery spectacle continued as he shattered the stair railing with a single, powerful slap.

"The drug's a bit unstable. I feel rather on edge now," he muttered to himself. "Still needs some tweaking, it seems." Interrupting his self-reflection, he glared at Trevor. "But it's more than enough to handle a regular Joe like you! You've forced me to resort to this flawed drug, and you'll pay dearly!"

Unfazed, Trevor retorted, "I doubt you'll get a chance to refine that drug."

Kenny, already on edge, erupted in anger at Trevor's words. He stamped his feet, breaking tiles on the ground, the flames leaving charred remnants. Like a fierce predator, he leaped at Trevor, convinced mere proximity would seal his fate.

However, Trevor, who had been stationary, morphed into a cascade of shadows, vanishing in the blink of an eye.

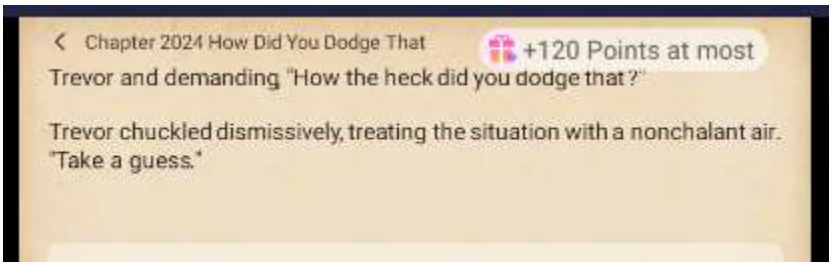

Kenny's attempt failed, leaving him grasping a railing that morphed into molten iron flowing onto the ground under his intense, emanating heat.

Surveying Trevor in the distance, who now sneered at him, his eyes gleamed with madness. "Go to hell!" he roared, lunging at Trevor once more.

The scorching waves of air emanating from him had set ablaze the papers scattered across the hospital.

Undeterred, Trevor continued his evasive maneuvers. Simultaneously, he seized a nearby computer screen, smashing it against Kenny's face.

Although Kenny escaped injury, he looked worse for wear, glaring at

Chapter 2024 How Did You Dodge That
+120 Points at most
Trevor and demanding "How the heck did you dodge that?"
Trevor chuckled dismissively, treating the situation with a nonchalant air.
"Take a guess."