Chapter 2043 Francesca Passed Away

Following the selection and confirmation of the wedding rings, Trevor and Luisa made their way back to the historic Sanderson family castle.

Trevor briefed his family on the incidents at the police station.

Both Elwood and Ronald became attentive.

Elwood spoke with a serious expression. "Given the presence of a mole in the police station, it implies a lack of reliability. If we aim to uphold the wedding arrangements, relying on the police is not an option. Trevor, let's consider hiring a security company."

Trevor expressed skepticism by shaking his head and stating, "Grandpa, I possess my own information sources. I've been informed that a Mobius leader excels in disguise. Even with hired security guards, infiltration remains a significant risk."

Trevor intended to proceed with his inquiry when Ernest unexpectedly contacted him.

Upon connecting the phone, Trevor activated the speakerphone and inquired, "Ernest, what's the matter?"

In an anguished and shocked tone, Ernest conveyed, "Francesca has passed away!"

Trevor felt a sinking sensation in his chest. Francesca had recently been exposed as a mole. How could her demise occur so swiftly?

Something unusual must have occurred.

Urgently, he inquired, "Ernest, what transpired?"

Ernest explained, "Prior to Francesca's demise, her complexion changed to red, and her heart rate showed abnormalities. The forensic assessment determined the cause of death to be heart disease. Yet upon reviewing Francesca's medical history, I found no record of any previous heart attacks."

Having processed this information, Trevor formed a preliminary conclusion.

Mobius was likely aware that Francesca had divulged sensitive information, leading to her demise as a means to safeguard the secret.

Having composed himself, Trevor inquired, "Ernest, did Francesca disclose any valuable information prior to her passing?"

Ernest remained transparent, stating, "Francesca shared that a tall woman had bribed her. The identity of this woman remains unknown."

Trevor acknowledged and remarked, "This information provides us with potential leads. Ernest, I appreciate your assistance."

Ernest smiled and uttered, "You're welcome! Goodbye."

Following the call's conclusion, Trevor's countenance turned somber.

The speed at which Mobius acted was striking.

Observing Trevor's gravity, Ronald offered a few words of comfort. "Trevor, ease your mind. Both your grandpa and I are here to support you."

Trevor silently acknowledged, prompting Ronald to continue.

"Trevor, you haven't fully integrated into the upper echelons of Zayden. I've arranged a dinner party for you, and numerous family relatives will be present. Additionally, take this opportunity to rest. Your recent schedule has been quite hectic."

Elwood nodded with a smile, concurring with his son. "Trevor, the dinner party will allow you to acquaint yourself with affluent individuals. Consider inviting them to your wedding. Besides, enhancing the grandeur of the wedding ceremony is a worthwhile endeavor."

Initially contemplating refusal, Trevor reconsidered when recalling the recent encounter with Chamberlain in the jewelry store. Given Chamberlain's unfamiliarity with him, leading to complications, Trevor chose to partake in the dinner party.

Certainly, encountering wealthy young men in this place would likely help him steer clear of numerous unnecessary complications in the future.

Inquiring about the event's venue, Trevor discovered that it would take place at Zayden's most opulent hotel, the Griffinmarsh Hotel, and that it was scheduled for tonight. He and Luisa fetched a McLaren P1 from the Sanderson family's garage.

Each vehicle within the Sanderson family's garage boasted a valuation of at least tens of millions. Despite Trevor's inclination for discretion, adhering to a low profile was not a viable option.

He departed from the Sanderson family's old castle, driving down the road.

An arrogantly whistling Lamborghini followed closely.

Trevor refrained from engaging in a race, opting not to press forcefully on the accelerator.

Eventually, the Lamborghini successfully surpassed Trevor's vehicle.

Following that, the Lamborghini didn't immediately depart. Instead, it intentionally compelled Trevor's car to a halt.

A man about Trevor's age extended his middle finger and mockingly remarked, "Where did this upstart come from? You drive as slowly as a turtle. Try overtaking me if you can!"

In Zayden, none of his contemporaries dared to own a car more costly than Duane Alvarez's Lamborghini.

This man must be from a different city.
