

Chapter 1123 The Concert Is Coming

Ivanna's concert proceeded as planned.

After learning that Purple Band would attend the event as a special guest, Nelly told Trevor, "The popularity of Purple Band is much higher than that of Ivanna. Let us keep it a secret for the time being. This way, Purple Band will not steal the show from Ivanna, and we will be able to surprise the audience."

Without hesitation, Trevor nodded his head and agreed. Professionals were most suited to manage this aspect of work. As the boss, he only needed to sign and stamp.

On the day of the concert, Trevor drove Ivanna to the venue.

Soon, they arrived at the parking lot.

"Are you nervous?" Trevor asked.

Ivanna swallowed hard before replying, "I'm a little nervous."

As Trevor prepared to console her, a female voice, oozing with mockery, sounded behind them.

"Oh, my God! Is that you, Ivanna, the superstar?"

When Trevor turned around, he got shocked to see Cristina behind them.

How did Cristina have the nerve to be so arrogant in his presence?

"Why are you here, Cristina? What gives you the audacity to stand here in front of me?" Even Ivanna had a frown on her face. There was nothing good about her ex-best friend in her mind anymore.

Cristina's eyes narrowed, and her expression became nasty as she glared at Trevor and Ivanna with bitterness.

She despised them both.

Because of Trevor, Cristina was beaten violently on the top of the mountain. The young men turned against her on the spot and hit her mercilessly. Her face might have been permanently deformed if she had not protected herself.

Without a doubt, Ivanna was the target of Cristina's envy. They were once classmates. But Ivanna became famous after signing up with Trevor's Sky Film and Television Company.

"I'm here to laugh at you," Cristina said with hostility.

At this moment, an obese middle-aged man walked up to Cristina, wrapped an arm affectionately around her waist, and said, "Sweetheart, what are you doing? Are they your friends?"

Intimately, Cristina embraced him as well. With disgust, she turned to Ivanna and remarked, "Such a bumpkin doesn't deserve to be my friend."

The man burst into laughter and noticed the conflict between Cristina and Ivanna.

"You know what? You are right. I can easily hold a concert just for you if you want."

With a look of amazement, Cristina stated in an overly dramatic voice, "Honey, you're awesome."

A smug grin spread over the man's face. Then, he directed a scornful look at Ivanna and added in a voice brimming with sarcasm, "Even a nobody dares to have a concert in Barlowtown. Aren't you afraid of being laughed at?"

To protect her from their words, Trevor stood in front of Ivanna. He shouldn't let them affect her before her concert started.

"Cristina, you truly have a terrible choice in men. Yesterday, you had a good time with several young men, and today you're with an old man. He seems to be around the same age as your father, doesn't he?"

Cristina's expression changed. Embarrassed, she roared at Trevor,

"Shut up! Who do you think you are? How dare you judge me! You are merely a boss of a run-down company. You are meant to fail. Today is a great day because Purple Band has planned a spectacular activity. Ivanna cannot possibly still have any audience left by then. You'll lose a lot of money at your concert. Just wait till your company goes bankrupt."

Without responding, Trevor lifted an eyebrow and smiled playfully.

Cristina was expecting Purple Band to steal the show?

How fun it would be to see her reaction once she knew the truth.

Chapter 1124 Cristina Makes Trouble

Trevor and Ivanna didn't argue with Cristina more. They just left.

Time would tell who the loser was.

Trevor had something important to deal with today, so he didn't want to waste so much of his time talking with someone like Cristina.

However, when Ivanna went backstage to prepare for her concert, Trevor looked helpless, sitting alone in the middle of the auditorium.

But it was not because of Cristina. Instead, it was because only a few people came to the concert.

He looked around and found that the whole auditorium was almost empty. Only a few seats were occupied.

Although Ivanna gradually became famous because of her beautiful singing voice, she still had a weak fan base.

"Alas, Nelly is too anxious," Trevor murmured, smiling helplessly.

Surely, the arrival of Purple Band would have a certain impact on Ivanna's concert. But judging from the current attendance rate, she still had a long way to go from being a top star.

But Trevor was not worried because Purple Band would be tonight's special guest.

Not long after, Ivanna's solo concert officially started.

After her first melodious song, the audience applauded warmly in response.

Although the people from the audience were not that many, they were Ivanna's loyal fans. They were willing to support her all the way.

Many people chanted her name loudly and cheerfully.

Trevor looked back, only to find Cristina and the middle-aged fat man seated two rows behind him.

When the concert had a short break, Cristina commented loudly, "There's no doubt that Ivanna is a great talent. But unfortunately, she has no vision. Why does she join an unknown and shabby company? She will have no future there. This is her first concert but look at the audience. It only means that the company has no money for promotion. Ivanna's talent is wasted. Well, she didn't listen to my advice back then. If she joined Star Film and Television Company, she must be very famous now. Maybe she could be as popular as Purple Band."

Cristina's voice was very loud. Obviously, she wanted to let everyone around hear her.

Trevor looked displeased. He said coldly, "Why do you have to mention Purple Band at Ivanna's concert? Are you making trouble? If you have nothing good to say, just shut up! You are so annoying!"

Cristina was about to yell and scold Trevor when her phone rang.

She looked at the screen and became ecstatic at once.

She suppressed her anger and shouted, "Hey, everyone! Check out your phone. Purple Band's live broadcast is on. Maybe they have some event soon."

Everyone around was taken aback for a moment. Then they quickly took out their phones to check.

After all, Ivanna was a new star. And her influence was far less than that of Purple Band.

But it was not a bad thing at all.

Trevor also took out his phone and watched Purple Band's live broadcast.

Alicia's face appeared on the screen. She smiled sweetly and said,

"Hello, friends from Barlowtown! We are Purple Band. To surprise the audience, we will be guesting at a concert and singing on the same stage with a new talented singer. Everyone, please look forward to it!"

At this time, Cristina looked at the live broadcast on her phone closely. And she felt as if she had already heard Alicia's voice somewhere.

But she didn't think of the group of people she met while trekking the mountain yesterday.

All she wanted now was to ruin Ivanna's concert, and she couldn't wait for it.

After seeing the live broadcast of Purple Band, Cristina immediately seized the opportunity. She stood up and shouted, "Everyone, let's go! Purple Band is about to start singing. What are we still doing here? This concert is so boring, after all. Let's go now. Maybe we can join the special event of Purple Band."

To encourage the audience to leave, Cristina took out her ticket without hesitation, tore it into pieces, and threw it into the air. The fragments fell to the floor like snowflakes.

To show his support for Cristina, the middle-aged man beside her tore up his ticket too. Then he said, "Sweetheart, let's go! If we leave earlier, we can get a good seat at Purple Band's event."

The audience around them couldn't help but feel a little moved. Purple Band was very famous, and they rarely came to Barlowtown. They all wanted to join it.

Seeing the situation, Trevor smiled and said in a loud voice, "Everyone, we have prepared a surprise for you at Ivanna's concert. It won't be too late if you leave after you watch the surprise part. I promise you won't be disappointed."
