

Multiverse 511

Chapter 511: New movies

"Are the Avengers as powerful as you?" Jiang Nan asked. She knew that the door which had stopped the beings from the other world from coming here wouldn't be able to hold it forever. There had been attempts before and she knew that one day or the other it would break. She just didn't know when it would happen.

"Maybe not as powerful as me, but taking care of Mr. Wenwu here would be a piece of cake. Of course if the rings evolve then it would be a different matter." John said.

"Evolution of my rings?" Xu was confused by the words of John

"Those rings of yours have more than immortality. Maybe one day you will find it out." John as he didn't try to explain more about the rings. Those rings are really very powerful in the comics with each ring having a different kind of power.

"Anyways, since you are all here after a long time you all catch up and I will leave. Take care of Goku, teach him all that you can. We, the Avengers, need a person like him." John said.

Giving a final 'warning' look at Guang Bo, John vanished. He had caused quite a ruckus here after arriving and he was pretty sure that he wasn't exactly appreciated here. In addition, he even got recognition from their Protector.

That itself was a blot of shame for the people present. What they could not achieve in their generation, John achieved it by just visiting the sacred lake. John could already feel the hostility so he didn't bother to bid goodbye to them.

"He is rude." Xialing said as she felt that John could at least say his 'goodbye'.

"We haven't been exactly accommodating to him. Dad had been harsh to him and these people here haven't shown due respect to a guest. We can't expect him to be a saint now. Our world is a mirror. It will show you the same face you show it, and sometimes the return is much worse. "

"He didn't even bother to tell me about the rings. Do they really have other uses?" Xu mumbled.

Shang said as he defended John. And it was true, from the moment John arrived they had doubted him. And truthfully, they would have decided not to accept such weird deals of John.

Only because John was powerful enough did they accept him. or they weren't sure how the Avengers would react. And since Shang was a great fan of his, they didn't want to disappoint him much either.

John was back again at the Ring as he had done his part for Goku. Now all they had to do wait for him to grow up. And that would take time. John was just eager to see Goku in Super Saiyan form soon and be carefree all his life.

[

Ding

Total fan values - 50 billion

]

"That's a good amount of fan value. I guess the new movies have been doing well."

John checked. Thanks to many recent Disney movies like Pirates of the Caribbean, The Matrix and other such movies. John was now contemplating which movies to bring to life. He really loved Johnny Depp and was a great fan of his, so Pirates of the Caribbean was always on the agenda.

Now the oceans of the world were filled with water type Pokemons and the addition of old age immortal ships would be just an icing on the cake.

On the other movies he had to think of ways which could maximise his profits. he needed to find ways to insert his influence the people and almost tie them down to Disney's movies so that the people would be invested in them.

He had already thought of inserting his characters to other places like the Nova Empire. LexCorp had been working perfectly fine with the new movies from Disney and since Earth had started dealing with the cosmic civilization, their profits have gone up and almost reached the stars.

He had already thought about introducing some characters and animals from the movies at the Nova Empire. Since there had been Pokemons already on Earth, he needed other kinds of creatures on Xandar.

And there were various options for that. And he could do it slowly and influence Xandar more. Asgard has already been under the influence of Fairy Tail as they had been propagating their knowledge of magic to the people of Asgard and it was helping in boosting more fan values. He had already asked Makarov to take care of it.

John now was sitting at the balcony and looking at Earth thinking how to make Earth a better and beautiful place. he had to think of it carefully so that there would be no bad influence on it.

Chapter 512: New Earth

"GAIA, have there been any problems recently that the people of Earth have faced as a whole?" John asked.

"Technically, the people of Earth are very happy. They have a much better life, the poor now have access to education and much better health facilities. Thanks to Umbrella, even in poor countries, the med pods have been a huge success. The introduction of Pokemon has led people to be more enthusiastic about knowledge of them which in turn helps them in education purposes. And there is an ample source of clean energy for all, thanks to the solar receptors of Umbrella. Oil has almost become obsolete." GAIA replied as she recounted all the things that John and his company had brought to earth.

"What about the people that had been working in the oil sector? Have they been given chances in other sectors?" John asked.

"Not all, but 95% of these people have found the same kinds of jobs which are related to the energy sector. The other 5% have moved to Mars to help build a better society there." GAIA replied.

"That's good. The economy is stable now. But you mentioned technically, are there any hidden problems?" John asked.

"Not exactly, but now the people feel that Earth has become too small for all to handle and many are already contemplating on leaving Earth and establishing a colony outside the solar system which would be suitable. Due to the massive amount of Pokemons and their habitats, the real estate prices has risen up by 200% making the average person feel suffocated and with no place to live." GAIA mentioned.

"So we are facing a loss of places to live." John mumbled.

"Connect me to all the Avengers."

And soon after a few minutes all the major Avenger members appeared in a translucent screen near John in a row surrounding him.

"It's been some time since, Avengers." John said.

"Yeah. You are coming to our wedding right?" Steve was the first to reply.

"Of course. Where will it take place?" John asked.

"New York. Where it all started from me." Steve replied.

"That's cool."

"Hello... We exist.. You call and ignore us... That's rude." Tony spoke out.

"You all are invited to the wedding." Steve paying no heed to the mockery of Tony said.

"We will be there.."

"Who is your best man? Bucky.." Banner asked.

Steve nodded his head.

"Expected.." Victor said.

"Why are we called by the way?" Arthur asked as from the start of the meeting itself they could tell that it wasn't an emergency. Normally, John was their alarm sounds. When he calls, it is mostly because there is a threat that needs oversight by the Avengers but this time it wasn't.

"Heard the real estate prices have gone up." John said.

"Real estate prices? Why? Does Umbrella want to join the real estate market? Heard the prices have gone up significantly. My wife was saying her sister couldn't find any good and decent place to live on the West Coast." Clint replied.

"Yeah. I was thinking of seeing a good home to live on Earth. My Avenger salary isn't enough to cover that. I should be looting my next prisoner.." Natasha said.

"I heard we are facing a lack of land to live in due to the introduction of Pokemons. That's a sad affair." Banner said.

"I called you all here to remedy this situation." John finally said as these people were busy gossiping on the real estate prices.

"Remedy? How?" Wayne asked.

"I will make the Earth much bigger. A big planet like Saturn." John pitched his idea.

All looked at John for a second. Stunned by what he just said and then burst out laughing. John didn't expect that his sudden idea would be received as a joke by his friends. He was embarrassed.

"I am being serious, people." John said.

"Oh yeah, how will you do that? Even if you use Alien X, and change reality there are people living here and how will the people be distributed then? If you make it bigger there would be massive earthquakes. And the most important thing. How will you compensate for the solar system? Any change in mass would change the trajectory of the sun that is rotating the galaxy in a weird angle which might lead to our destruction. It's a miracle that the introduction of Oa didn't pose a threat to our system." Tony said in one breath.

"And that's why I called you. I want you all to help me plan this situation out. I don't want people to leave our Earth just because we don't have space. I will need a team of scientists and a bunch of normal people to help me fix this situation while I change the topography, geography and its size." John said.

"Are you serious John? Do you really want to do this?" Clark asked.

"Yes!!"

Chapter 513: Radical decision

"How the fuck will you explain this to people?" Aquaman asked in a sharp tone.

"The officials can handle it. Phoenix and I will be responsible for the safety of the people as the volume of Earth will expand in the course of days. The cities, towns and villages in small countries won't expand, only the land outside will. There won't be any earthquakes as new tectonic plates will be added. The reality change will be done under the supervision of the geologists and scientists." John said.

"What about the people who live in separate houses and own land outside?" Tony asked.

"They will occupy the same amount of land. The government will take care of the extra land. They will lease or sell to people at low prices." John said.

"Good luck with that. No governments will maintain transparency while giving the land back to the people." Clark said.

"They will. Corruption will always persist. And for that reason we will use GAIA and if any discrepancy is found in this transaction be it intimidation, bribery or being an asshole, it will be reported to the Avengers. And we will take care of it." John said. All the Avengers were silenced after John gave all the solutions. He didn't just come out with this idea after having a vague dream. He had really thought this through.

"If we do this, the positions of the moon, the satellites, many things will change. How will you compensate for that?" Tony asked.

"I will remove the satellites and install new ones. Umbrella will compensate for that. Since the space agencies have been replacing satellites recently using our technology, we will give them cheaper prices." John said.

"So you will be restructuring everything. It's a plus point that the communications now work on FOCUS technology and we don't need long range towers and work directly on satellites. Hey, how about electrical lines or such other lines? How do you wish to resolve that?" Tony asked.

This was where John stumbled. He didn't think of long wires and the connections. He had thought about making roads and train lines but not the wires.

"The scientists can come up with the proper planning. We will have to convene the country heads." John said as he was sure there would still be aspects that he or his friends hadn't come up with. They needed to have the whole plan in the proper place before executing that.

"Will this be good even? I mean instead of doing this we can just allow people to colonise a different planet." Clark said as he still was sceptical.

"It's not absolutely necessary but you will have to think that Pokemons had been living in cramped spaces here. Their population is larger than the humans here and they need to grow too. It would be better if we just change the topography. Other planets won't have the same environment for the growth of Pokemons like we do." John said as he gave the main reason for his radical decision.

"Let there be a vote for this weird and radical decision." Wayne said.

And surprisingly all held their hands up, including Tony. It was surprising for Tony because this whole agenda will definitely put a dent on the finances of Umbrella as they would have to compensate for the production of new satellites. This will be a huge loss. But Tony understood that for better living they needed to do it.

"Since all votes are in favor, I will ask all the world leaders for a summit and will pitch the idea. And as these greedy politicians go, I don't think they will oppose it. Let the summit be held here on the Ring. SHIELD will handle the relevant matters." Wayne said.

"Agreed. This will be a huge project and all the important factors would have to be taken into account." Banner said.

"Right. Make a proper plan. Use the proper channels of Umbrella to hire geologists and all other scientists and run a simulation. GAIA can easily handle the calculations." John said.

"Happy to be of service." GAIA spoke up.

"After the decision, we will have to handle the public relations too. This is going to be a nightmare and a huge project." Tony mumbled.

"We will have to draw the continents too as the shape will change according to the factors." Banner said.

"Don't change too much or else the governments will come after our ass saying we fucked up their borders." Aquaman said.

"Who cares. We are doing this for the betterment of humanity. They just need to accept it and move on. Generations after generations we have made the climate of the planet worse and worse. Only recently have we come back on the right track. Thanks to Umbrella. They should be kissing the shoes of us instead of suing us." Clint said.

"Hahaha.. We don't need that. I just hope they stay the hell away from our lives.

Chapter 514: Meeting of the world leaders

After this meeting Umbrella got into work. Pepper hired the best geologists, scientists from all over the world and made them work on the simulation of what would happen if Earth was the size of Saturn.

The changes that would happen because of it and what necessary steps to be taken if Earth one day had the same volume as Saturn. The scientists were confused by this sudden and weird project but since they were paid handsomely, they didn't throw tantrums.

They had to calculate a whole bunch of things starting with its impact on the people and various problems that would arise like transport, energy distribution and various other factors. And then came the external problems like the gravity.

Being a bigger volume they needed to consider how much the density of the Earth needs to be so that there was no change in gravity for the people that would be on earth.

Gravity was a huge problem for them and this problem took a lot of time for the scientist to solve.

Meanwhile, the world leaders were invited to the Ring at the request of SHIELD. They weren't briefed about this radical decision before. The Avengers didn't want any leaks before the plan was set into motion so they had to keep everything in secret.

And after a week, all the world leaders took out time from their schedule and decided to accept the invitation as the Secretary of SHIELD insisted on it. And in order to show proper respect to the world leaders, Wayne invited them to the Hall of Justice.

Soon the meeting started with all the leaders discussing their issues while many gave a speech. It looked like a United Nations Convention with many powerful leaders giving speeches. It's very rare that all the world leaders would come together in a single place, as it was a threat to security and it was very difficult to make a common schedule for everyone.

But since the Avengers had called for it, none of the world leaders wanted to be on the bad side of the Avengers. They had too much power and control of the world now and they couldn't do anything about it.

So after all the clinking of champagne glasses and boasting of each countries' achievements, Wayne at the end finally spoke up about the reason why they were called.

At first the world leaders thought it was a joke, just like the Avengers thought it was but after seeing the serious face of Wayne they knew that the Avengers were not joking.

"How will you turn the Earth into a Saturn-like volume? Terraforming Earth?" The President of the USA asked to see the serious face of Wayne.

"We will rewrite reality itself. Like it happened during the fight where Mercury and other planets were destroyed." Wayne said. This reminded the world leaders of the fight they had watched before from satellite cameras of how planets were destroyed and reconstructed just by the fights between two people.

"You mean to say that one of the people who fought in space was one of yours?" asked another world leader.

"I think that was apparent wasn't it? SHIELD had already revealed that one of the people belonged to the Avengers." Wayne replied.

"I know what you are thinking. That this option isn't possible as it will just end up killing people but here is a simulation of how we are going to approach this matter. Please look at the screen behind me." Wayne said.

And the next moment the world leaders were shown the simulation of how this 'terraforming' would be carried on and how the energy distribution would be done. Each city and town will install massive instalments and make each city and town self-sufficient in energy. The scientist had decided that if they wanted to get rid of satellites the Earth could have a ring of their own just like Saturn has.

The moon will be placed much further than Earth to keep the balance and even the scientists were still contemplating adding new moons. The whole video of how Earth would change lasted more than an hour.

The world leaders were dumbfounded. After Wayne showed that the Avengers were seriously contemplating that, they would never be able to go through with the plan.

It was too absurd of a plan. But here, in the video, every aspect of the problems of terraforming was covered. Starting from gravity to even its effect on the solar system. The scientists and GAIA took their time on this so the whole video was made covering all the aspects.

"What if we don't accept the plan?" One of the world leaders asked this question after the end of the video as the video didn't speak about the boundaries of the countries. The small countries feared they wouldn't get equivalent lands as the bigger ones and it would turn into power play once this ridiculous plan was set into motion.

Chapter 515: Carrot and stick

There was a complete silence in the huge hall when the world leader said that. One of the main reasons the world leaders accepted the invitation from the Avengers and SHIELD so fast was because the governments feared the Avengers.

By now they had understood that SHIELD was now the mercenary of the Avengers. Though SHIELD had never gone against the World Council, Wayne had handled the working of SHIELD in such a manner that the World Council now couldn't refute the works of SHIELD.

They had assurance that the Avengers would never try to control the world leaders, but blackmail by the Avengers was never out of the table. So in order to be on the good side of them, the world leaders had to show up on time and as fast as possible.

Now that such a weird and absurd plan has risen, many of the world leaders want to see how the Avengers will react to 'no'.

" You can say no. It's your choice and your right. We will not stop you nor will we intimidate you. But I will tell you this, if you don't act fast soon many countries will lose manpower because space travel is cheap now and due to less space many people will prefer to leave for Mars. Or some other planets for colonization. Mars has been under the control of SHIELD and Avengers, you not expanding the current will just empower us as a whole." Wayne replied.

"I know the smaller countries feel that they will lose, but let me assure you all that the boundaries will grow proportionately as space expands. This decision was taken after much consideration by the Avengers themselves and this also went through the vote of all the members of the Avengers." Wayne continued.

"So now the ball is in your court, ladies and gentlemen. Think of the extra space every country is going to get. Extra resources. And most importantly, Umbrella will release today's video to the general public. And being in the position of power I can say that you don't want the general public to be angry at you for a decision which is fueled by your personal decisions. And this goes for the people who act as dictators over their own countries."

"Classic carrot and stick." a world leader mumbled under his breath. That was what the Avengers wanted to tell the world leaders. They were pretty sure that the people would love their Earth to have more space. Though there would be opposition for sure but the good thing about public opinion is that it can always be manipulated.

And Umbrella had always made efforts to be good to the public. Helping people and having a massive influence on them. Umbrella pays huge attention to PR and thus all kinds of propaganda against them never worked.

The governments have tried before in swaying the public opinion against them before too and had failed horribly. In fact to stop the constant harassment of the government in some countries Umbrella influenced the political scenario and even changed the leader before.

Though John never liked politics, it never meant that Tony would not get involved. Surprisingly even Wayne got his hands dirty with politics to handle some situation of Umbrella as he too was a major shareholder of the company.

"So you are forcing us to accept this proposal." another world leader said.

"Force is a strong word Mr. President. When humans conquer a new place we never ask for the consent of the sentient animals around, when the Pokemons are conquered we take them away in pokeballs, that is what we define as force. Here we are leaving the decision to you and the public. If the majority decides for a change, the Avengers will proceed to take action, if not we can forget about the proposal even being drafted. Now the question is on which side of the decision are you?" Wayne replied.

All were silent listening to the explanation. The Avengers didn't actively force them to accept this decision, but they knew that if they opposed it, there might be major consequences in the future. Now all the countries rely heavily on Umbrella be it the transportation sector or the energy sector.

And going against them would be a fool's errand for everyone.

"The world leaders can make their decision by tomorrow. Since its a huge one, The Avengers and SHIELD would give them enough time to think on this before casting their vote. In the meantime, the leaders can enjoy the scenery here on the Ring and enjoy the privileges here. Thank you." Wayne gave the final announcement before stepping out from the stage.

He said what he needed to say. Now it depends on the leaders, to see on which side of history they were on.

Chapter 516: Vote

The next day all the leaders came again for the final meeting. The world leaders needed to consult with their ministers and subordinates before casting their vote in this epic decision. Though many of them had already made up their minds about this vote, they still needed to ask their subordinates.

The next day at 11 o'clock all had arrived back at the Hall of Justice. And soon all took their seats and Wayne too had arrived at the stage to commence the voting procedure.

"Ladies and gentlemen, today will be a historic day if you will. Let humanity bloom with a brighter flame and may we flourish in the universe. I hope you will take the decision after much consideration." Wayne said as the voting machine was handed over to each of the leaders.

In this meeting John and other Avengers were also present but they were hidden on the other side of the wall looking at the voting commencement.

"Do you have any high hopes for this?" Steve asked.

"I hope they will say yes to it. Not that it would matter to us, but I will prefer if humanity can be here and achieve greater feats instead of being integrated in another society like Nova does." John said.

"You are too optimistic John. Humanity almost never came together for the greater good." Banner said.

"Not true, all the world leaders came together when there was a need to ban the use of CFC gas for the sustenance of the Ozone layer. They put aside the differences and more than 100 countries ratified this deal. And of course they also came together for the Sokovia Accords."

"So they came together for a good deal and then they again came together because they became fearful." Clark said.

"Humanity has always feared what they didn't understand." Hal said.

They all discussed among each other how the voting process would go and how disappointing it would be if they said no. John also knew if the world leaders didn't accept there would soon be political unrest. Wayne had already threatened them of releasing the plan if they didn't vote for the decision.

And after 1 hour all of the voting was cast.

Now it was time for the results.

And GAIA finally showed the results. The vote was 190 - 0.

This was a resounding number. There were a total of 196 countries (All countries + Wakanda. I don't know if there is Latveria, home of Dr. Doom, in MCU as there are rumors that there would be Dr. Doom in . If it is then it would be 197 countries excluding Atlantis)

The Avengers were surprised by such resounding yes to their proposal. They didn't expect it. But they have forgotten the main fact was that there was a God among the Avengers.

A living one.

Someone who could destroy and build planets according to the will and desires. This power was enough to rattle the leaders and think of their safety. Their leaders were afraid of both passive and active aggression from the Avengers.

The active being the threat of God at them and passive being the political machinations of Umbrella. Thus nobody wanted to be on the bad side of the Avengers, if they could do so. Since the Avengers assured that every country would get proportionate resources this was a profit for them.

Though starting the process would definitely be a loss. But the countries were banking on the fact that there would be enough profit later. And honestly most of the leaders were excited to see a new home!!

"I am surprised by such resounding yes to our decision. I will not be hypocritical and say that this decision was not because of the fear of our strength. I will accept that criticism of the Avengers but I will also say that the Avengers have planned everything out and there won't be any problems with the transition. The relevant matters of handing it would be handed down soon and proper preparations for the transitions would start by the end of the month. Thank you."

Saying that Wayne left the stage and gave the other world leaders to express their opinions on this matter. Of course the Avengers didn't care any more about the self boast speeches that were going to start so they left.

"Humanity surprised me." Tony said.

"When Madara became the main enemy of the world of Naruto, all of the ninjas came together, even after suffering such massive wars. This showed that humanity would always come together when there is a common enemy." John replied.

"So you think, we are the enemies of them?" Victor asked.

"Kind of. We are the people they want to avoid, and if they could they always will." John said.

"Speaking of Naruto. What will happen to their dimension?" Natasha asked.

"Their dimension will remain. If they want to integrate themselves into our society after this change then they would be welcomed." John replied.

"Then they would have to negotiate with the countries again." Clint said.

Chapter 517: COVID lockdown

John didn't think of Naruto's world or other parallel dimensions that were attached to Earth. The thing about Naruto was that it could always be discussed with them later. Since their dimension was always under his control he never cared about them.

But the thing of Hell was a totally different matter. He needed to ask Commander to keep on the lookout if there were any changes when the dimension on Earth increases. Then there was a problem of the Sanctum's magical defense.

They needed to rebuild it after the changes occurred on Earth. And of course introduction of new moons for Earth. After talking with the scientist they had decided that Earth now would have 5 moons instead of just one. And all of the 4 moons would be easily habitable as they would rotate instead of their current moon which is always illuminated on one side.

The new moons would be bigger than their Earth thus allowing the population of Earth to live there too if they wished for it. This too could be easily negotiated with the world leaders.

There were innumerable aspects to this project and everything had to be checked and simulated perfectly so that the people wouldn't face any problems.

The world leaders left shortly after the vote and went to their respective countries to make preparations. They had decided to give people one month of preparation before the reality was changed. In a week the news finally broke out of the project 'Change Earth'.

This created a huge uproar among the people when the governments and various agencies came out and spoke of this new Earth that was going to replace their current Earth. Of course, the video which was shown to the world leaders was also shown to the public and more.

There was a more detailed analysis and the things that would change when their old Earth would expand more than a hundred times. The introduction of rings around the planet, moons and the video addressed almost all questions that an average human might face.

Some of the Avengers themselves came forward to speak on this matter and assured the public that whatever was done would be good for people. There would be more food on the table for all, more space, bigger cities, lesser traffic and such other benefits. And on the D-day all people would have to stay at home.

The world leaders and the SHIELD both came to a decision that on the day of change all the people must be at home. Nobody would be allowed to commute or travel as the whole topography of the surface of Earth would change. It wouldn't affect the daily life of people who lived in cities or in towns. But it would definitely have a huge impact on people who didn't live in towns and lived in seclusion.

The governments had a huge headache when they came to know the sheer number of people who lived like this. They were both rich and poor alike among them. Some had huge acres of land, while they just lived on the streets. SHIELD and governments took it upon themselves to educate each and every one of them of the dangers they might be facing due to change in scenery.

Every single person was already provided with a new map of the world that would be replaced. Seeing the governments working tirelessly and various agencies in action, the people came to believe that whatever was going on, wasn't a joke.

This was real and would happen.

And thus the panic began. From a small number of people, but there was panic nonetheless. Most of them accused the Avengers of playing God and saying doing this was blasphemy and blah blah.. Of course the government clamped down on them. Since they had already cast their vote, they needed to see the end of it.

Soon the D-Day came, and all the people were forced to be at home for 2 days. Nobody was allowed to go outside, and only in extreme medical situations would they be allowed. Not even food delivery guys were allowed for these 2 days. The people were given a full month to prepare for these 2 days and thus there was a proper planning.

Even the Avengers lend a hand in all of this, as everything went into lockdown mode. John seeing all this felt like he was back in COVID - 19 lockdown in his previous world. The world went into a stand still for these 2 days.

The D- Day was for 2 days because of time zone differences all over the earth. There were many people who tried breaking the law as many were excited to see a new change, but SHIELD and the local police took cognizance and arrested them quickly. They didn't want any kind of accidents during the change.

Though the whole process was harmless, the governments didn't any bad press just so because some people are dumb and loved breaking the laws.

Chapter 519: New everything

"Are you ready?" Steve asked as all the Avengers stood in a row on the Ring and looked at the beautiful Earth for one last time. As the volume of Earth would change soon and the Ring needed to change its location too.

"This will be the start of a new era." Oliver said as they were all a little emotional. Nobody thought that one day they would have to say goodbye to the old Earth and welcome a brand new one.

"We all had a change of era in the last few years. Nothing major." Tony said condescendingly, he was never a big fan of nostalgia and always believed in moving forward.

"Not all people live in the future like you Tony."

"Alright let's change the map once and forever." John said he transformed himself to the Alien X form. Then he used his Phoenix Force and the power of fruit to change himself to a black fiery bird.

There was a small group of scientists who had joined the Umbrella Corporation who looked at John with shining eyes from behind. They had never seen such a huge transformation in the cellular level ever before. Though they have heard of this before and looked at the videos but nobody knew the actual identity of the person.

Now they saw this live and they couldn't just stop themselves from marveling at how awesome the creation of the omnitrax was done by Azmuth. Though the situation of devil fruits was still a mystery, there was no mystery with the origins of omnitrax.

One of the scientists finally came back to reality and approached the fiery bird with a tablet in hand. He handed over the tablet saying

"These are all the changes that need to be done so that there is no change in the ecology and proper life support of the planet with proportionate increase of atmospheric composition and all relevant matters."

John with his fiery hand took the tablet and looked into it. Surprisingly his black fire didn't affect the tablet at all. John looked at it. It showed the new simulated Earth as compared to the old earth and with a bunch of instructions on the side written in points.

"Say goodbye to Earth." John said in his own voice.

"No, say goodbye to the solar system as you will have to change the whole solar system to fit in the new Earth." Tony mentioned.

"Guilty Spark, take the Ring away according to the calculations." Banner said. And in the next moment, the Ring started to float away from Earth. It didn't take much time for the Ring to get further away. The people living in the Ring were already informed about the new change of location of the Ring that it would go through so that they wouldn't panic.

After a few minutes of moving the Ring was in a new location which was further away from the moon. The Earth now looked smaller than it used to.

"Change the Earth according to the conditions.."

"Change the Earth according...."

"Change the Earth...."

The fiery bird said in three different voices. The voices of his alter ego from the Celestialsapien species. And then it happened. The moment they had been waiting for.

The Earth started to expand. At first, at a very slow rate almost not visible to the naked eye. But soon it caught pace and the Earth's dimension was getting larger by every passing second. And after 15 minutes after relentless expansion it stopped. The blue vibrant color of the Earth that was visible from far now looked more vibrant and colorful as John had changed the weather back to how it was before the industrial revolution.

Since the energy had been clean and there had been almost no air pollution recently the atmosphere of Earth was already recovering. And now it was back to lowest pollution ever in a very long time.

Of course there has been land and water pollution but with the advancement of science and exchanging knowledge with Nova has provided with many cheap and better alternatives than plastic or such harmful compounds.

Earth had finally expanded with all the relevant conditions that were pointed out being fulfilled. And then came the moons and the rings. The previous moon had gone much further in distance from Earth just like the Ring and became the smallest moon of Earth.

Now all the 4 moons were made in such a way that people would be able to live there easily. All the moons were designed for both humans and Pokemons to live without any problems. And lastly a vast belt of small asteroid belts circled the Earth giving it a ring-like formation around the planet just like the Sun. This asteroid belt could be used as stations for satellites easily as that was to deal with all the countries for the emergence of new satellites and getting rid of the old ones.

The transformation was complete.

Chapter 520: Transformed Earth

"Looks more beautiful." Natasha said.

"Now we will have at least 2 moons to look at in the day. The werewolves won't be hiding no more." Tony joked.

Everybody laughed out loud.

After the transformation was complete the people were allowed to go out. The people living in the cities didn't see any change. At least not on the surface. Only when they looked at the sky they see two moons and a long thin line that ran across the whole skyline.

That was the asteroid belt.

But the people living outside the cities and towns were dumbfounded. Though they had been repeatedly informed that their surroundings would change drastically after the transformation, many of them didn't believe it. But now when they came out, they couldn't believe their eyes.

In some places where the mountains were visible, they were totally gone, some places gained huge lakes, some places were now covered with lush forest with huge trees. The people didn't expect even trees to be fully grown now after the change. They thought it would be stretches of barren land free for others to be occupied but now when they saw everything was fast forwarded, they were really taken aback.

And they even saw that new roads were constructed and everything was in place right from the start. It was as if they had been living here all this time. The only difference now was the huge change of scenery.

After the transformation, the tallest mountains of Earth became taller and the deepest oceans became deeper. The deserts, the forests, the lakes, the oceans, everything became bigger. Though there were no animals or birds to fill the eerie silence around, the Pokemons loved the new environment.

There was a general announcement to all the Pokemons living on the planet that there would be a change of scenery so when the transformation took place they were not surprised. All of them scrambled to take charge of their new and bigger territory.

Meanwhile the Avengers had left for Earth to take care of the problems that might arise due to the new place. Just like they did when the Pokemons arrived, this time too they took cognizance of how the people felt of this new change.

And surprisingly, there weren't many problems after the change occurred. The people living there had already gotten used to living with pokemons, what more could the change of scenery around? The people now were more accepting of the changes and anything new was exciting to them.

They had seen heroes emerging, they had seen aliens, then they saw the emergence of a huge artificial satellite. The people saw that humanity went from relying on fuels for basic energy sources to full clean energy in a matter of a few years.

And then came the Pokemons. Their introduction changed their lives. They made the lives of people happy, beautiful and more relaxing. Every person now had at least one Pokemon. They made the lives of people easier, healthier, and more responsible as taking care of Pokemons wasn't an easy job and everybody needed discipline in their life. All in all the quality of living of the people became higher and better.

And then there were those huge beings, whose shadows covered the entire earth. Though most of the videos from the satellites were deleted from all public platforms, some got leaked so they soon came to know that there were Gods.

This imposed fear among the people too but then they remembered that they had their own God. Arceus and such other Gods defending Earth.

And of course there was this huge black fiery bird who fought with the huge being before. So they had faith. A faith that there were people who always defended them and wouldn't let any harm come to them.

And now there was this huge transformation. The transformation that would change the lives of people permanently. Some people who had been thinking of space travel before to live on Mars cancelled their plans and concentrated on projects that could be finished on Earth now.

According to the announcement done by the government the resources for the people had also grown proportionately as the volume of Earth had gone up. So now there was a new rush for adventure and conquering new places for the people.

John and Strange had other work now. They needed to put up the proper magical defense. And for this they needed to build new Sanctums as only three places weren't enough for putting up a strong defense. So they need to build new Sanctums.

And after much contemplation and discussion with Z, Constantine, Mordo and Wong, they decided to build Sanctums on moons. Each moon will hold a place which will be connected with other moons magically. These moons would not only help in maintaining the ecological balance but now it would help in magical balance too.