

Multiverse 551

Chapter 551: Dylan

"This is unexpected."

"See I always told you that this Peter was tasty. Now you believe me." Venom spoke out when they came to know that Peter Parker was Spiderman. Venom had always said there was something wrong with Peter but he never paid attention. Parker was his close friend and colleague.

Eddie felt betrayed a bit now. His identity was always known to the Avengers, but there nobody knew the identity of Spiderman.

"What a betrayal." Eddie gritted his teeth when he said that.

"Anyway, let's leave Peter. Did you train Dylan?" John asked. Eddie's eyes changed when John mentioned his son.

"Keep my son out of this." Eddie said in a very stern tone.

"I know that you love him, Eddie and you want to protect him. But he will be our spear against Knull." John said.

"My son? Are you crazy.. He is just a kid with no powers." Eddie almost roared as he said that.

"Are you sure that your son has no powers?" John asked while his eyebrows were raised. He was sure that Eddie must have seen something in his son. Even if he didn't see, Venom must have surely detected something.

"I don't know...." Eddie stopped right when he was about to say something. His eyes suddenly went wide. It was because he heard in his head what venom said. He couldn't believe it.

His son had powers.

"What the hell do you mean my son has powers?" Eddie roared out again. And this time not at John but at Venom.

Venom, who had receded back, came out again with a little troubled expression. He never wanted to expose the power of Dylan to others. This was a decision of the good members of the Hive. Dylan was a ace they had hidden, but John here just blurted everything out.

"You son has the power to terminate a symbiote from its host, which means he has the power to terminate the relation between Knull and his control of Hive. I didn't tell you because it was decided by the symbiotes of Klyntar when they saw the emergence of Carnage and they used special means to give this power to Dylan." Venom said as he admitted the truth.

"Are you fucking kidding me? My son? How dare they? Have I not served the good with you. My wife committed suicide. I have a miserable life. I don't want any of the symbiote species to touch my son." Eddie was seething when he said that.

"It is what it is, Eddie." John said with a sigh. Sometimes, even if somebody wanted to stop destiny, some people were too powerless to stop it.

"No, I don't want my son to do anything with it." Eddie said with determination. John could see this and sighed.

"The story is as I thought. We can think about Dylan later." John thought.

"How many days do we have till Knull reaches here?" John asked.

"15 days give or take." Eddie said.

"Hmm.. Have the Avengers been notified?" John asked.

"Not yet." Eddie shook his head.

"Go tell the Avengers. And tell the X-men too. Tell them that John Jameson asked for help. I think that carries weight for them as they owe me one." John said.

"Will the Avengers come and help us knowing that your Avengers will get involved?" Eddie was skeptical. He knew what kind of problems he had caused for the Avengers. Even Doom was dead.

"If they don't want to be under the foot of Knull then they can just die for all I care. And if you don't want to die as an old man then do what I say." John said as he remembered the ending of Knull. Eddie aged in 2 days after he became their king.

"Will you really help us?" Eddie asked. He had called John because Venom forced him too. Or else he would have decided to handle Knull alone with the Avengers.

"I have said, he is a threat to the multiverse. Knull has Celestials under him. Do you think it will be that easy to defeat him? I care about the multiverse." John eyes him when he said that as he got irritated by seeing the constant distrust of Eddie.

"He has Celestials..." Eddie mumbled under his breath hearing that. he couldn't believe that Knull had Celestials under him.

"Now go. Be the messenger. I will prepare my team. I will come back in 10 days." John said as he vanished without saying goodbye. He really needed to do preparations.

He had a strong premonition. The attack of Knull wouldn't be as simple as in the comics. He had tried looking into possible futures with Knull but in no way he was able to see how the fight would take place.

"Annihilus.. Knull... Both emerged at the same time. Did they make some kind of pact?" John thought.

Chapter 552: Knull

John returned again to the Hall of Justice. He was going to call the members of the Avengers again. But was surprised to see that all of the Avengers were sitting in their positions talking among themselves. The moment John appeared there was again a complete silence at the Hall.

"I thought you all would have left by now." John said with a smile.

"You left with a gloomy face, do you believe everybody here is just for fun?" Aquaman said.

John raised his hands signifying that it was his fault he showed too many emotions while leaving.

"What is the extra problem we now have over our head?" Victor asked.

"Thor, Strange it is better you both come for this meeting without your body instead of just peeping from far away." John said as he wanted everybody to be present in real life and talk about the new threat they were going to face.

Thor and Strange normally wouldn't attend the meetings as they could always do that using their omnipresence. It was not essentially required, but this time John wanted everybody to be present and give their input.

"Is the matter that big?" Thor said as he appeared at the Hall from the door. He had a solemn face. Strange too appeared with his staff and took his seat.

"Do you remember the vague story I told you about the guy who attacked your place with the sword?" John asked.

"You mean the story of Necro Sword?" Strange asked.

"Yes. I told you last time that the sword he carried was fake." John said as he nodded his head. Last time he just gave a brief idea of the real sword being one of the most powerful weapons of the multiverse.

"Yeah. So what now? The real sword has come for our head?" Thor asked.

"Yeah and the real owner of the sword has woken up." John said.

"Real owner? Who is that?" Tony asked.

"Knull, The god of Darkness. Nobody knows where he came from. He lived in darkness, in the abyss. He had a kingdom. There was darkness everywhere for sure but he still had a kingdom under him. It had its own species. Everything was in its right place and he lived in peace, until one day the Celestials came and sullied his place. They used the space occupied by Knull to create the universe, the multiverse."

"So they encroached his land?" Mera asked.

"In a sense, yes." John said.

"Wait, does that mean our multiverse that we live in was basically his empire?" Barry asked. John nodded his head at it too.

"In a sense, yes." John said.

"So the void which we have occupied was his kingdom and the assholes came and took their place. And now he is back. Why should we care? It was the Celestials' fault if they took their place." Pietro said.

"It should have been the headache of the Celestials but the thing is Knull doesn't differentiate between the Celstials and us. We have sullied his place so he will do everything possible to wipe us away." John said.

"Ahh fu**ck. Another problem left behind by the Celstials. What are we? Their ass wipers?" Geralt said as he clenched his fists.

"When is he coming?" Wayne asked.

"10 days but not our Earth, but Earth 616." John said. This changed the face of everyone.

"Not that 616 shit again. No... No... No... We are not going there to rescue their universe again. Nope." Banner spoke out. Nobody at the Hall was particularly thrilled about 616.

"I promised one guy that we will help him when Knull appears. Now I must abide by the promise. Anyway if 616 falls, everything will fall, so no matter what we will have to go." John said.

All of the members' faces were more sombre. They had a bad impression of 616 and they didn't want to go to that bad place again.

"And I have a feeling, no!!! Rather a strong premonition that Knull and Annihilus have made some kind of pact and they would probably attack us together." John said.

"So one headache wasn't enough. Nice one." Tony said.

"Make some robots as Knull's power comes from Hive which is a kind of symbiote. They need hosts, and robots can never be hosts. Manufacture as much as you can in these few days." John said.

"I already did. The last time when facing Black Winter we should have gone with robots. So I made lots of them this time." Tony said. All the Avengers were surprised that Tony had made a secret robotic army. Though the robots would never harm them, it was weird that he had done so without telling the Avengers.

"What? Wayne knew about it." Tony said, pointing at Bruce.

Wayne nodded his head signifying that he knew about this.

Chapter 553: Arrangements

"Damn Tony." Hal said.

"It's fine, it's not like we haven't dealt with robots before. Ultron is gone. Don't worry about it." John said as he was secretly glad that he had taken care of Ultron before and had his omniscience.

"So now we only need drones." Wayne said as he remembered about the fact that they needed to take care about the army of Annihilus too.

"Any more things we need to take care of?" Clark asked.

"He has an army of symbiotes. So huge that it can make the surface of the Earth black. So we will need weapons which could produce heat and sound. It might be ineffective against Knull but the symbiotes won't have a good time if we use those." John said.

"Got it... Black goo.. Fire and Sound." Barry said as he remembered the first symbiote they had seen during the fight against Gorr.

"How will you handle the mutants?" Tony asked.

"As scheduled. They will come in 7 days. Umbrella can take care of it after they land. If they want to help us during the fight against Knull, they are welcome." John said.

"Alright."

"Friends this might not be like the one we faced during Black Winter but he is a dangerous one. Don't take him lightly. I have mentioned his name along with honorifics. God of Darkness. He once killed two Celestials with his sword. Oh yes, he has Celestials under him. He controls them through the symbiotes."

"Damn.. Celestials too. This is going to be tough." Pietro said.

"So get serious about it. Don't end up being a host to the Hive. If you do, we will not be able to rescue you. Tony, can you make a suit that can use vibrations and don't let the symbiotes get in touch with the body?"

"A suit which can produce vibrations and sound so that the symbiotes won't get close to you?" Tony asked.

John nodded his head.

"We can try to do that with Vibranium. We can try. But we don't have much time." Arthur said as he had his own ideas about it.

"Do what you can. I will see if I can get any help from outside." John said as he had his own calculations. He needed an army to face Knull and for that he needed to make one. He would try to make one in these few days.

Wayne then started laying out the plan of how they were going to face Knull and John gave input in those.

"We will have to go to 616 to assess the situation."

"That is true. A team of you will leave for 616 soon and see what you can do and use from their world that will help us. I guess you will have to meet the counterparts." Steve said.

"It will be quite a show when we will show up." Barry said as they all reminisced the last time they went to 616.

"Who are ready to go 616?" Clark asked. And unsurprisingly, nobody raised their hands.

"Guys.. Guys.. C'mon.. We will need volunteers here." Hal said.

"Wayne, you decide who will go." John said as he knew nobody would be ready to go but they do need a team to go to 616.

"Banner, Clark, Pietro, Geralt, Ciri, Triss, Thor and I will leave for 616." Wayne said.

"Wayne you too?" Tony asked as he didn't expect Wayne to nominate himself for leaving.

"We need a person who can control people there. The locals won't be delighted to see us but we will have to work nonetheless." Wayne said as he knew that the small team will need someone who can talk and negotiate.

Clark could be a good leader but he would fail to negotiate in equal ground if they needed anything.

"Bruce at least lay the punches a little softly. Will you?" Clark said as he could sense that Wayne didn't trust him for negotiation.

"I am leaving for the mutant Earth to see if everything is alright." John said as he vanished.

"He needs to stop doing the vanishing act." Clark mumbled.

"We need to get to work. Barry, help us in this. You are fast. Aren't you?" Tony said.

"I am fast but that doesn't mean I can think fast." Flash said. (yes I know in one comics he can think fast too, like his thinking power gets at least 1000 time faster than a normal human being but let's just ignore it for now)

"Umbrella will have a lot of work." Tony mumbled as Guilty Spark came to take him away.

Wayne and others went to their home to pack their bags as they would be leaving.

Meanwhile John was back at the school of mutants. To see if all was going fine.

Chapter 554: A call of visit

"Is everything all right?" John said in a loud voice as he entered through the door. He was back at the Xavier's School of gifted students or the school of X-men. He needed to see if everything was turning fast.

His voice entered the minds of X-men who were around telepathically. Soon Logan came down from upstairs with Storm and Jean.

"All in a good place. I thought you would show up many days later." Logan said.

"Well something came up. Where is Professor?" John asked.

"With Erik at the Cerebro. They are searching for mutants from all over the world and trying to convince people." Storm said. John nodded his head and walked away.

"Do you trust him? Will he really be our savior?" Jean said in a very hushed tone. They still didn't trust him completely. A homicidal maniac would always be hard to trust.

John did kill many people. Though many would argue that they deserved the deaths, it still would hit people hard if a man killed many people. It was not a Chinese cultivation novel where there were more human deaths left and right. People don't look at you in a good way if they kill many people.

"Professor and Erik trust him. Let's see how everything turns out." Logan said as they saw John vanish in the corridor to the Cerebro.

John didn't hear what they were saying as he had turned off his omniscience, and even if he did, he didn't care. John came up to the Cerebro and entered. He saw Erik and Charles side by side. Charles had a helmet which was connected to the ground.

Erik and Charles both turned their heads when he came.

"How is the search and convincing going on?" John asked.

"Not very good. Many have families and they aren't ready to leave their children." Charles said as he felt sad. He thought John's terrifying actions would convince people to just move but it seemed fear can make people weak to the knees.

John was too much of a tyrant in this world already, so many thought he would be a dictator in another world too. John could already see what many people were thinking. He couldn't change the thinking of the same people and they would resist change no matter what.

"Tell them that their parents will be given almost the same work that they have here and proper land to make a new home which will be funded by me." John said he could remedy the situation as long as he could and he wouldn't force anyone.

"Will you really do that?" Erik was surprised that John would allow even the non mutant parents to come.

"Yes. We have enough land and a workforce would be required in our world. They could just help in this." John said as the Earth now needed a serious workforce to handle such a large world.

"Thank you." Charles whispered under his breath. John had helped them a lot in the last few days. The 'thanks' part was just a useless word from Charles.

"I will allow every year a specific time for new mutants to cross the world and come to our place. The new mutants can always come to our place. And the old mutants can come over for a vacation once a year if they wish for. This would allow the new mutants to be convinced that our world would be better." John said.

"Do you have that much power that each year you will be able to open portals?" Erik asked as he was surprised. According to Chavez opening multiverse portals wasn't an easy thing but it seemed like it was a piece of cake for John.

"It's not that hard for me. I can keep the portal open always if I want to but the multiverse will go to shit and many people won't like what I am doing and they will stop it." John said.

"Huh!! As powerful as you are, you mean to say that there are people as powerful as you?" Charles asked.

"There are things more powerful than me." John mumbled slowly. Both Charles and Erik were in horror. They got to see first hand how powerful John was and he had a variety of powers and still there were people who were more powerful than him?

Damn!!

After a moment of silence Charles said

"If it's not too much, can we go and see your place? We trust you but many of our subordinates don't." Charles said. John thought for a moment and nodded his head.

"Gather them, we will go for a visit. Take videos and pictures and show it to the world. I am sure many people would be asking what the new world would look like."

Erik and Charles both had a look of excitement and relief as they heard John accepting the proposal.

Chapter 555: Amazement

Charles and Erik went to call everybody and John meanwhile used his powers to see if the governments and the people were acting properly. And was relieved that everything was alright. The dead bodies were still fresh and nobody dared to rise up instantly against the mass murderer or the mutants.

In a few minutes all the mutants of both X-men and brotherhood had gathered. They were called by Charles and Erik as they were going to see how their new place would look and make sure what John was saying was the truth.

"I know that many of you don't trust me and think of me as a homicidal maniac. Maybe I am. But there are things necessary that one person needs to do to see there are no more deaths. I know the line between authoritarian and benevolent ruler and honestly, the things that I did here are not seen in a good way by my own friends, but I did what I had to do."

"Alright, enough of self-repentance and take you all to see the place where you would be living." John said as he waved his hand and opened a portal. All the mutants now were excited. They had heard so much of the multiverse in the last few days and they couldn't wait to see it with their own eyes.

All the mutants walked in the portal with Erik and Charles, and at the end John entered. The portal closed in on itself after they all went in.

The other end of the portal was in the Ring near the Hall of Justice. Before showing their new place John wanted the mutants to introduce his friends to them. He wanted to show that he can be trusted. The emergence of Knull has given him many ideas and he needed all the help possible.

"What is this? Hall of Justice..?? That's quite a name for a huge building. Whom does it house? The judges?" Logan asked as he smoked a cigar. He looked around. While Logan was seeing the building all the mutants were looking around and were dumbfounded.

They saw that they were in a Ring-like structure which worked as a satellite to Planet Earth!!!

Such scenes were never seen by any of them in their whole life. Even Erik and Charles had their eyes wide open when they saw such a man-made structure over a planet working as a Moon.

"Welcome to the Ring. This was built by the Forerunners from another universe which we stole. This satellite has its own weather with all conditions necessary for the survival of any species and can be remodelled according to any conditions This was made when a species survival is in threat on a planet and house the last few population. Of course, now, this Ring works as our own base of operation and only people whom we deem worthy can come and settle here." John introduced the basic working of the Ring and he spoke the truth.

"Who are these forerunners?" Storm couldn't help but ask.

"One of the advanced civilizations of their universe, if not the most advanced civilization of their universe. They were responsible for making multiple of these. I just took it away from them." John explained.

"Thinking of it, what is your power exactly? Can you explain to us?" Rogue couldn't help but ask. They all were curious about it.

"My powers are complicated. You will know soon." John said as his powers were really complicated and it would take much time to explain this. If John starts explaining his powers half of these won't even believe him. It was better they would see him and know the truth.

As John was explaining, Guilty Spark had already informed that new people were brought by John and the Avengers who were free should go and meet them. Many of them who didn't have work had started appearing with the help of teleportation technology.

This new one eyed drone and appearance of new people surprise the mutants more. At first they thought the new people were enemies and they appeared to ambush them.

But soon realized that these people didn't come with malicious intentions.

"Steve Rogers, Leader of League of Assassins and the current Captain Universe of this world. Welcome to our Earth."

"Diana, princess of Amazon."

"Victor Stone, but people call me Cyborg...."

All started introducing themselves. The mutants were amazed as they heard their names and aliases. The mutants too introduced themselves. The Avengers had known of them from 616 but the mutants knew nothing so they were curious.

"Come to the Hall of Justice. We can talk about it more and then take you to your new place. You have already seen 2 moons from here and we will take you there soon." John said.

The 2 moons were really visible from the Ring and they didn't look like the Earth's moon but as normal as planet Earth.

Chapter 556: Huberville

After a round of introduction by the Avengers and the mutants, the visitors got a run down of their world work. From the Ring, to the new Earth and their moons, their relationship with intergalactic empires and even that John has a company under him that deals with advanced spaceships at a different galactic empire

"You really changed the whole Earth?" Logan couldn't help but ask.

"The Earth deserved a better place to live and more resources were required. We had the advent of Pokemons few years back and we needed more space so we all decided to just make the Earth a bigger place." John admitted the whole reason for doing this.

"I would like to see what these Pokemons are." Charles said as he got excited. The humans here had more access to supernatural beings than their Earth and even humans had control over them. This was unprecedented.

"You can go to the ranches and laboratories set up by Umbrella on the Ring. There are almost all types of Pokemons here." Victor said.

All the mutants were excited. They never expected that their new home would be more colourful and rich than they had imagined in their life. It was an utopia for them.

"How did you even do this? Didn't the governments oppose?" Erik asked. He had seen first hand how the normal humans opposed changes and never liked to be under the fact that there was something more dangerous looming over their head.

"Firstly, they were introduced to our world very slowly. The first war of New York woke the people up that there were aliens out there and the humans were not alone. Thus later they have been more accepting of the fact that the saviours during the New York war helped to make new things that would protect them. Secondly, we never dealt with politics and we were totally against any interference by them, when they tried we pushed back. We made them realize that power is always over politics. And lastly, the emergence of Pokemons have made the people of Earth feel more safe and more accepting of any new kinds of changes we have tried bringing them." John said all of this one breath.

"This is more than I thought." Charles said as he had a rare smile in his face. His face normally is always serious but here he could feel that if John delivers all of his promises, it would be Heaven on Earth.

"Let me take you to Mars and show how our satellite planet works with the galactic empires." Victor said as he opened a boom tube.

"Do you guys teleport like every other day? How come there are so many different kinds of teleportation here?" Scott couldn't help but ask.

"John uses magic for teleportation or his omnipresence to be everywhere and nowhere. Victor's and Guilty Spark's teleportation are different as they are technological... It's complicated... You will understand as the days go by." Steve said as he led them inside the boom tube.

The mutants were soon at Mars and then they saw a huge city from afar. A city which could only be seen in sci-fi movies. A city with very tall skyscrapers. Each of the buildings were slim and long. From a distance they could see flying cars moving in all directions.

Even the roads that lead to the city looked like it was something that only the future can have. Cars were levitating over the roads as they travelled.

The mutants were in awe and all of their jaws just dropped. After seeing the Ring they believed that the humans of this Earth had already been to the space age. But this was way over what they expected. Victor and all seeing the visitors were having a hard time believing it smiled.

"Welcome to Huberville. The first city of Earth that is made for our interaction with the aliens and their empires. 40% stake of this city is under Umbrella and Avengers while the rest belongs to the government." Victor said as he introduced the mutants to the city.

They soon reached the inside of the city with the help of cars which were parked and were self driven. The more they looked the more they were mesmerised. The mutants were excited to tour the whole city and the Avengers who followed them gladly took them for sightseeing.

The buildings, the homes and offices were colorful. The city was a planned city and even in all of the modern technology, the architects were able to add plants, trees through the use of vertical plantation.

This was done to make sure that the city has a blend of modern and primitive aspects. The city was the best example of human excellence. Even Victor looked proud with what they had done. GAIA, Umbrella and all the governments came together to make this city the best of the best.

Chapter 557: All together

"We should have brought Miss Chavez here." Charles suddenly remembered about the teenage girl. It was because of her that their world got to know so many things in the multiverse. John who was close by, who had kind of forgotten her, was reminded again.

He waved his hand and a circular portal opened. John entered the portal and reached the home of Peter.

"Peter..Peter.. Do you want to come with us to our new world." John said as he was outside his room. He knew that his aunt was outside and right now he and Chavez were holed up in the room together.

'Having fun.'

John didn't expect that Andrew would hook up with Chavez a few hours after he left them together. This was a new thing but a welcoming one. (I will consider Chavez as 18 so please don't come after me for this)

Andrew deserved to get a new girl in his life after what he had gone through with Gwen. He needed somebody in his life. Though he wasn't sure how long this fling would last. Both right were now in grief and they both needed someone.

It would take time to see how long this fling will last.

John could hear noise from outside of the door. He just stood by and waited for both of them to get their bearings.

"Coming... Just wait for a few seconds..." came the voice of Andrew.

After a minute or so both were out. Chavez's hair was still a little out of shape but John didn't point it out.

"Hey man.. Can you come by the main door next time?" Andrew said with a little blush from his face. He knew he was caught red handed and this was something he couldn't hide. Not from John, who could see everything so he didn't try to deny it.

"If I had come through the door, would it have changed the whole situation?" John asked if he looked at both of them. He didn't call them out but it was pretty apparent to both of them that John knew what was going on behind the door.

"So you want to come with us. To see the new place where the mutants will live? Charles asked for you." John said as he needed to defuse the awkward situation in the room.

"You said there are new moons on the Earth? Is that true?" Andrew asked with a glint in his eyes. He always loved their Earth and how their Earth embraced the whole idea of superheroes and cheered for them. Though here people supported him absolutely but the police hated him. But Avengers operated both openly and covertly and none of the governments dared to stop any of them.

"You will see when you both get there. Now come on." John said as he waved his hands. They both were at Mars now where the mutants were still looking around and seeing the liveliness of the place.

"Miss Chavez, sorry that we left you there in his place." Charles said as he rolled his wheelchair.

"It's alright I had a good time there with Peter in his universe." Chavez said while eyeing John. She was quite bold to admit what she had been doing and didn't feel ashamed. Her world didn't have prejudices against the people who are quite open when it comes to relationships and the related matters.

Like the mutants, Chavez's eyes shined too when she looked around. The city looked completely futuristic, even by her standards. Her world too was an utopia and they were technologically advanced as well.

So the next 2 hours the mutants and Miss America Chavez had a tour of the city and soon they came face to face with the 'animal robots' that were made by GAIA. As the people were looking at the robots, a call came for John from Tony.

"Tony.. Is there a problem?" John asked while opening the hologram of him from his FOCUS. Both Erik and Charles were more surprised seeing how a call could be done from a holographic projection with just a small device.

"Yeah I needed to ask, how many robots can we take with us to ..... Eh Professor and Magneto... Oh they are from that Earth.... Welcome to our Earth.. Make yourself at home."

Tony had started speaking on the robots matter but changed his line when he saw new people around. The hologram allows him to look around the person so the people around were easily visible to him.

"Uh hello...Do we know each other?"

Erik was a little confused that this man with a beard could call them out just by looking at them.

"We all have met with the other versions of yours and everybody has been updated. He is an Avenger like us. Tony Stark. Our scientist and inventor."

John stated as he introduced him.

Chapter 558: New allies in the war

After getting introduced to each other again and knowing that he was the Iron Man of the universe, Erik smiled at first. The name itself was a huge nemesis for him. Erik was able to control metal, so Tony's suit would be useless in front of him. But he didn't know that Iron Man's suit wasn't just simple metal. There were no magnetic fields around it as it worked like a superconductor.

Though Erik trusted John and others, he had always been on the lookout if everything went south later. He wanted to know of their powers beforehand and make necessary preparations if they ever fall out in the future.

All was fine when it came to the members of the Avengers he had seen but Steve and John were 2 of them where he had no idea of how to stop them. According to Steve, he was powered by something called Uni-Power. And from the looks of it, he was way too powerful for any of the mutants and Diana too. Her strength and psionic powers too were incredible.

And then there was John. He was as enigmatic as it gets. He still had no idea of how powerful he was and what exactly his powers were. He had a feeling that if a war ever broke out between their Avengers and his Brotherhood, their Brotherhood would be probably erased on the first day itself. This itself gave me a little fear but the wheel has already started rolling.

If he gets back to his world now, he would be hated more now. Though for a few years, nobody would dare to say anything to him, but when the people would realize that there was no John, the humans and the Sentinels would hunt the mutants again.

And this time more aggressively. So all he could do now was bite the bullet and just move to the new world.

"So John, are there any limits in sending the number of robots and machines to 616?"

Tony asked as that again was his main reason for the call.

"No, why?"

"GAIA was saying that we could use the machines of hers to go and fight for us during the war."

"I will be able to provide 500,000 troops for this war against Knull if I operate 5 times faster than the normal manufacturing process." GAIA interjected in the middle as she showed up with her typical hologram of a woman.

John raised his eyebrows when he heard that. He didn't expect that help would come when it came to troops from an unsual place.

"Yes, I can take you all away. IF it's not too much the Avengers would appreciate your help GAIA." John said.

"I am happy to help the Avengers. I will get back to work." GAIA said as she vanished. Tony too showed relief in his face. Umbrella had been working overtime and Pepper had a lot of work this week to meet the deadline set by the Avengers for the war.

"Who is Knull?" Logan who was beside couldn't help but ask.

"Knull, another major problem for us. Probably bigger than Annihilus." John said. The mutants were all dumbstruck that there was something more powerful than Annihilus. From what they had heard from Chavez, Annihilus was a world destroyer and this guy was saying that this Knull guy was a major threat??

What is wrong with the multiverse?

"What does he want?" Charles now had a solemn face. He had already decided to help Avengers during the Annihilus war but now he seemed like he had to be more serious.

"He wants the universe to be covered with darkness. It's us who have occupied his territory and he wants it back." John said in a solemn face.

"Occupied his territory? How?" Storm asked as she was intrigued. John then gave them a whole run down of the story of Knull.

"This is ridiculous. How can these things such as this even be born?" Erik couldn't help but ask.

"Some things are just born abstract. There is no proper explanation. You can say that the universe gives itself a sentience and along the passage of time many stories pop up." John said.

"We will help you in this war against Knull." Jean said as she was terrified to even think of a world where everything is dark and they are under the control of a single person with no freedom.

"You are welcome to help but remember your counterparts will also be in this war. We don't have a good relationship with them, so be on the lookout." John said with a smile. He had a smile on his face. He knew that he would get help from them as his sixth sense was saying that Knull and Annihilus were cooking something together.

And it was only a matter of time before the mutants joined the war. These people would be quite helpful in this.

Chapter 559: New School

"We will appreciate any help you can provide us. But at first you all need to move fast. And get used to the place. We will still have a few days before the war arrives. We are not even sure if both of them had joined. It's just my speculation and it might not even be true" John said. All nodded their heads as John was right. They needed to settle down fast and get used to the place when they went to war.

Only this time, this war was for saving the multiverse, instead of themselves. Their lives changed pretty fast with just a twist of fate!!

After an hour staying at Huberville they were ready to go to see their new moon or the place that had been chosen for them. John teleported all of them to the new moon.

The 5 moons were named Lui, Smekta, Warden, Wanderer and Nightstar. And the moon where the mutants were going to live was Nightstar (names can be changed later depending on other factors.)

John had teleported them to a very clear and huge space surrounded by trees. The mutants could see there were many people building a huge palace-like structure on the clear opening. The people were going in and out. Bulldozers and various huge machines were working around the clock to complete the structure. On the boundary of the establishment there was a huge board.

On the board there was a total plan of the structure and how it would look after the completion. It looked like a futuristic palace while still retaining the vibes of the mediaeval age castle.

This was the School for the mutants that Charles had in his own world. John wanted them to have their own school here too but in a more grander scale. When he had decided to move all the mutants here he had already ordered GAIA to build homes and various buildings for them here. And this school was one of them as Charles would need the school to educate the new mutants that would be born.

The X-men and Brotherhood went to see the end design on the board while Charles and Erik were just looking at the people who were building it. Charles almost had tears in his eyes. They couldn't believe that John would even gift them a new school and he had thought that they would have to start from ground zero here.

But it seemed that John had already thought of all this.

"Like it?"

There was a silence from them. They were not even able to express how happy they were seeing all the construction works.

"We love it. We thought we would have to build everything but it seems you have already thought about it." Erik said finally as he found words to express

"I have more money than I can possibly spend in my entire life, so doing this small favor is nothing." John bragged a bit. He remembered when the mutants had to move to Krakoa after the House of M story line and they had a hard time. He didn't want the mutants to suffer the same fate here.

"There will be homes built all over the place on this planet. As the population rises they will be provided more homes by Umbrella. This planet will soon be filled with Pokemons, humans and other aliens. The 5 new moons will soon be filled with many different kinds of people. Like Mars these moons will operate in the same way, a centre for trade and exchange of knowledge. Your moon too will work the same way but the mutants will have the first say on the decisions here and no governments will intervene in this. Umbrella will make sure of this."

All the mutants who heard this had almost shiny eyes now hearing the rough plan devised for their place. A place which will have interaction with all kinds of beings will make sure that they won't be marginalised against the general society.

"You have thought everything through?" Charles couldn't help but ask. John just shrugged his shoulders and said

"It comes natural to me. My brain tries to find out the best solution the fastest way possible."

"We thank you for what you have done. This tour has been nothing but an eye opener for us. And a great boon. We realise that you have not asked for any repayment but I can assure you that in the upcoming war, we will try our best to help you." Erik said as he was full of gratitude for John and his team.

What they had done was not something a normal man could do. When Andrew indicated that John was kind of a half God none believed him but seeing all of this he realized made him understand that John was more than a God.

He made moons and made the planet bigger. That in itself was a testimony that they would never be able to gauge his powers.

Chapter 560: First attack

"We should leave now. We have seen everything that we are supposed to see and have taken enough videos and pictures. We will upload in on the internet and see if there is any change of attitude among the public. If there is still no change then I guess there is no saving others. If they don't want to save themselves then there is nothing to be done." Erik said. Charles had been trying to convince everyone but many were skeptical.

If the photos and videos here weren't enough, then they would just leave.

John nodded his head at it and brought out a talisman. The talisman looked exactly the same as the other ones which he had given out in case of emergency to the other friends in the multiverse.

"Break it when you all are ready to move. I will open the portals in all the major cities around the world." John said as he gave both Charles and Erik two talismans.

John then waved his hand to make a portal from their world to their previous world. The mutants on the other hand looked a bit reluctant to leave for their previous world, but they knew it was temporary.

They would soon be back!!

After looking at the place for one last time, they all left with Erik and Charles being the last after he looked at the huge planet overhead.

The Earth looked massive from their position.

"Next time."

After they left, John closed the portal. He looked at the school which was under construction for one last time and he too left for his home. He didn't have much to do now. For this war he didn't want to spend and fan values and wanted to keep and save his fan values for the end.

If the enemies prove to be too impossible for them, then he would think of ways to incorporate any new summon, but until then he would just leave as it was and try to tackle the situation as much as they can.

Since Captain America was the Captain Universe of their world, it would be easier for Venom to be the God of Light if the need arises during the war. Until then John would try his best to stop Knull and his huge army.

At least that's what he had planned!

John then showed up in Umbrella corporation to see how the manufacturing was going on and see if they needed any help. It was true that John wasn't as capable in science and technology like Banner or Tony but he could always help them with his reality bending powers.

But after discussing with Tony he realized that they didn't need his help, or it would be better to say that Tony wouldn't accept any help from John. It would effect his ego if John touched his priced inventions, though here Arthur and Banner had their input.

"If we need your help here, then I have failed being the bright mind of the room."

Those were the words of Tony as he threw John out of his laboratory. Now Tony's laboratory was kind of an exclusive place in the Ring. It was inside the head of the Celestial Tiamat.

Tony had hollowed out the inside of the head during the fight against the Black Winter and so after the war he had constructed a laboratory inside the head. (yes, in comics Avengers had their headquarters built inside the body of a fallen Celestial)

This was audacious to say the least. John even though due to his transgressions, the Celestials would show up. Thankfully none did.

-----

Erik and Charles after returning back showed their videos and photos to the people all over the world in social media platforms or any kind of platforms available in all over the world. After Charles released all of this from the official account, there was a debate in the media houses about the authenticity of the new world.

Though the person who spoke on their head did say of the new world, many people who aren't aware of what exactly was going on in the core of the governments just thought it was a ploy of some of the mutants. Though they were scared of it, many didn't hold whatever the person said as gospels.

But the new videos from the School proved that whatever the person might be true. Especially for the mutant parents. Many saw hope in this and the start of a new life where there was a better life.

As all of the debate and decisions were being taken by people of the Earth, NASA was sweating heavily at the moment. They had detected a worm hole that appeared out of nowhere near the planet Mars.

And from the wormhole various large spaceships have jumped into their solar system via the wormhole.

Annihilus has arrived with his army!!!