

Multiverse 611

Chapter 611: The final fight (2)

And so the final fight of this whole debacle had just taken off from the surface of the Earth. They didn't know what to expect, as Yhwach had said that he had been accumulating strength from God knows where.

Yhwach before taking off looked at 616-Thor and Silver Surfer.

"Can I borrow your weapons for a bit?" Yhwach asked.

"Huh!!"

Both of them were struck in their position as Yhwach asked for their signature weapons. Mjolnir and the SurfBoard, and both of the items responded to the call of Yhwach!!! This was unbelievable as there was never a person till now who had wielded both of the weapons at the same time. There had been people who had wielded Mjolnir but never been someone who could wield the SurfBoard.

And the terrifying thing was that when Yhwach extended his hand while pointing at both of the items, both of them flew to his hand and then both of the weapons melded together. And after a few seconds of shining light on it, it transformed into a new weapon.

A weapon which had a long wooden handle like the one held by Stormbreaker. And the metal part of the weapon looked like a double sided axe. But the axe didn't look like a typical axe, it was more of a combination of a hammer and an axe. It looked amazing as the weapon was shining in bright light while all the others were just looking at the new weapon dumbfounded.

"Did he just wield both Mjolnir and a weapon made of Power Cosmic?"

"What the hell is this weapon?"

John, who was looking at it, just smiled. Since Yhwach had decided to live on this Earth, it was better to make himself believable, and the only way to do this was wielding Mjolnir. This was a game changer for everything and for making people trust you.

All the people in the past who had done it could always be trusted, well, almost all people. Moon Knight was an exception (Yes, Moon Knight too can wield Mjolnir, as Uru metal comes from Moon rocks and Moon Knight is powered by the Moon so he has more authority over Mjolnir and Thor or Odin.) But at the end, those who could wield it, meant that the person could be trusted.

Yhwach, after taking the huge weapon in his hand, took a random swing at the air to see how powerful it. This created a blade type energy which travelled at a fast pace in the air. Tony who was near the attack instinctively dodged, not that it mattered anyway as his armor was anti-kinetic. Nonetheless, just a random swing of the axe created a sense of fear to all the people present.

This was probably one of the most powerful weapons in the multiverse at this stage.

"This probably is one of the most powerful weapons now." John suggested as he too could feel the power of it with his Alien X and Phoenix mode.

"It should be. I will give you back your weapons after we deal with Knull." Yhwach said as he could see the ugly face of Thor and even Norrin's face didn't look so good. He said this in order for them to calm down.

"Enough being showpieces of a museum. Now go and put an end to it." Tony reminded them as they had very less time and the more they wasted time, the more they would have to deal with normal humans.

John and the duo didn't speak any other word and just flew away to the upper atmosphere where Knull was. They needed to put an end to it and fast as now they were really running out of time.

They flew high at a fast speed and soon they reached the place where the symbiotes had blanketed the whole Earth. Yhwach didn't even need an incentive as he just took a swing with his new axe at the symbiotes. This small deed alone created a huge hole at the symbiotes blocking the way,

The symbiotes screamed in pain as this happened, but none of the three gave a heed to the scream as from there they could see a throne levitating high in the air. A throne made of symbiotes as they were wriggling underneath him.

Knull was seen sitting on his chair comfortably. He sat on his chair with a 2 feet white colored capsule in his hand. The capsule was cylindrical and looked like it was fading color as all the three were approaching Knull.

As the color of the capsule was fading, the skin color of Knull was changing from pure black to grey and at a speed visible to the naked eye. The trio stopped a few metres away from Knull. John was looking at the capsule closely as he was not sure what it was.

The capsule looked like it had held immense power once but now it looked all drained and dried up.

Chapter 612: The All-black

"What is this? What have you done?" Clark couldn't help but inquire about the sudden change in the body of Knull. He seemed more powerful and jacked up. Apart from the fact that the color of his body now had turned from pitch black to grey.

"I just took some power onto myself since the power didn't have any owner now." Knull said in a very raspy voice. His voice itself had changed now and it sounded more deep than previously when they encountered him.

"You took over the Power Cosmic of the Negative Zone... Didn't you?" John finally opened his mouth on this. He had to think a lot in order to know from where Knull just sucked all the energy up and made himself more powerful. Knull just looked at John with hollow eyes. Since Knull didn't have eyes, it seemed like he was looking at a ghost.

His silence was enough for all to know that whatever John had said was right.

"It doesn't matter even if you take the Power Cosmic. You will die today and not even the Darkness will be able to hold you." John said as he brought out Ea. This time he would use all his power to bring Knull down.

John took a swing at Knull without wasting any more time. John wanted to exert the most power possible so he jumped at Knull while using the sword at point blank range, aiming straight for his head and heart.

But Knull, who was sitting on the throne, was already expecting it. He took his sword which was already at his hand and swung his sword to stop the attack of John. But this was where something amazing happened.

As Knull was using his sword to stop the attack of John, he was stopped by another entity. The entity who he had given no heed to before.

Yhwach!

Knull couldn't sense the arrival of Light since it never had any signature of its arrival. Since there was sun everywhere over the Earth, it was very hard to pinpoint what was going on with the Light Force. But the moment his sword was stopped by Yhwach, Knull felt it.

A being which was on par with his Darkness!!

A power which was the exact opposite of it!!

Yhwach stopped the All-Black with his bare hand alone and he didn't even need to use his new weapon. And then the most amazing thing happened. Yhwach gave a squeeze at the All-Black sword as the side of the sharp blade. And that squeeze was so hard that the famous All-Black Sword just broke down in pieces.

The All-Black. Supposedly one of the top 5 weapons on their multiverse, was broken into pieces with just a squeeze by Yhwach. Clark who was going to use his heat vision on Knull stopped in his tracks too seeing this.

Like John, he too knew how powerful that weapon was, only Ea was on par with its level. It just broke down by the squeeze of Yhwach!! John was the only one who had a calm look on his face because he knew this was going to happen as he ordered Yhwach to make this exact move.

He feared that Knull might prove a little more handful with his weapon and he needed All-Black out of the picture. It was Knull who was powered by Power Cosmic, but not his sword. John's sword would still be the same sword as it once was when he made it. And if Knull was given more time, with his sword he might give more power to the symbiotes.

John didn't want this to happen. And neither did Yhwach!

So both decided on this and he used his hand alone to get rid of one of the most powerful weapons of the multiverse. The one which almost led Gorr to achieving his vow to kill all Gods. The weapon which wreaked havoc in the multiverse was responsible for the death of many Celestials was no more!!

"This can't be!!! How is this possible? No... How? How did you do this?" Knull was fuming in anger and had a face of disbelief when his happened. This really was something which shouldn't have happened, but when a person had Light on their side and a person like Yhwach who himself had a broken level of power, this was entirely possible.

In addition, John had the power of predicting the future, thanks to the comics, so he knew exactly what would happen if Yhwach would try to destroy the weapon.

"You have not evolved Knull. After all these years, your symbiotes evolved, but your sword remained the same. It gave birth to things that could evolve but it remained the same. Your loyal servant. Freedom has cost you Knull!"

John said as his attack from Ea finally landed at the chest of Knull!!

(Eddie too broke the Necrosword with his hands in the comics. Mind you, Eddie is the real God of Light. Venom was trapped on the Hive at that time)

Chapter 613: One million version

Knull couldn't even reply as he was thrown away far behind. His throne crumbled instantly from the pressure and the symbiotes which were behind, listening to his every order couldn't even stop their 'master' from stopping as he was thrown to the space itself.

"You need to tell us that you can do that?" Clark commented to Yhwach. He really was surprised. Yhwach didn't reply to that and just flew away to kill Knull. John too followed him, and then Clark too did.

Knull had stopped just before touching the surface of the moon. The hit of John was towards the direction of the moon, a great coincidence for sure!! John and others flew to meet Knull to inflict more damage to him.

Knull too was returning with full speed to meet the trio and fight the three of them with all his powers possible. Yhwach took out his axe, to fight against Knull. He looked different now. At first he had a black cloak, but now he was full white. It seemed like he was born from light itself.

Even his eyes were burning in bright light. He really looked like he was the herald of Enigma Force, out here to bring Darkness to its knees. Now both Yhwach and John used their weapons to bring down Knull.

Knull who saw the attack coming, had to use both of his arms to stop the attack. Now his arms had muscles, thanks to the Power Cosmic of the Negative Zone. But the power of the attack of both of them was too much and it directly laid waste to the new muscles as they were now long gashed on both of his arms.

And he was taking antimatter as a result of Power Cosmic, there was an explosion. This made Knull fall back along with the other two. But that was not all, after being hit by Yhwach and John, it was time for Clark to get his hands on the notorious villain who had been a headache for a long time.

Clark went straight to Knull and used his right to land the hardest punch he could on the opponent's body. And if that was not enough after being hit by Clark he was hit by heat vision too. Knull was already blown a few kilometres away by the first hit and this was just icing on the cake.

Clark was flying in hyperspeed, at the same speed as all the others were while fighting. It was fortunate that it was space or else the broken sound barrier would create a shockwave so huge that it could have easily decimated cities, forget about people.

John had given him a thousand years of sun power. Yes, John is slowly powering Clark to 100 million version of Superman in the comics. In the comics, Clark noticed that he was ageing very slowly and soon found out that his friends were long dead before he could even cross his 40s. So he flew away, leaving Earth and after years of roaming the universe, he settled down in the sun of the Solar System.

He stayed there for a 1 million years, and later when he emerged, he had the powers of reality warp. He used that power to bring his dead wife Lois to life and even created Krypton again and lived happily. John wanted to create the same version here, albeit at a little slow pace.

So this version of Clark was already jacked up with 'sun' juices and was more powerful than he was before. For this reason John had allowed the growth of powers for Superman.

John didn't want to stop the barrage of attacks that had just started. He took his sword and again thrust at the body of Knull. Knull who was flying back and in no control whatsoever, was again hit by the sword of John. Yhwach flew in more speed as he appeared right behind Knull with his huge axe in his hand.

Knull who just got hit by John could feel that Yhwach had appeared behind him but he could do nothing to stop the attack of Yhwach. Yhwach used the axe to hit straight at his back. But the attack was slow but a steady one.

Yhwach had another plan with this move. He wanted to use the axe and insert it by breaking the spine of Knull. Since the spinal bone was the most important for any kind of humanoid, be it a human or a person who looked like it was made of bones.

And Yhwach wanted him to feel the pain. He never liked war but when he did fight, he made sure that the enemy suffered the most. The axe was arriving at the body of Knull all so slowly.

But before the attack could even touch the body of Knull, he vanished!!

Chapter 614: The end is near

The other three were taken aback by the sudden disappearance of him. Until now Knull had never shown any talent in teleportation, nor did the comics ever showed that power of his.

This was probably due to the boost given to him by the anti-matter Power Cosmic. Knull disappeared for a mili-second, only to appear a few hundred metres away from his previous position.

"The new power did give you quite a boost Knull." John spoke out.

"You have your tricks, I have mine."

"So you think you are the only one who can teleport?" Yhwach said and the next moment he appeared right behind and used the same move that he was supposed to take before, he vanished. John, seeing the move of Yhwach, changed himself to a chronosapien.

Since, Knull learned about teleportation, they needed to freeze him. And what better to make other than freezing time for him. Though he was sure that Darkness will help him get back to the normal time stream, that rout of surprise attack was what John was banking on.

Alien X vanished and was replaced by a new alien. This change happened fast and John stopped the time around Knull. John didn't need to care about Yhwach, when it came to time control, he was probably one of the top beings. He might not be able to pause time like John could, but he had powers to control the future time.

So this move was perfect. And Yhwach was finally able to hit Knull on his back, and this time it was more painful for Knull then it was supposed to be. The time pause proved to be more painful for Knull.

He screamed out in pain as the time was finally back in normal flow. Blood flowed from his back as the axe was stuck in his back and he couldn't release it with his hand alone as Yhwach was holding it down in his back.

Clark didn't want to be just for show as he travelled in hyperspeed again and hit him right at the chest with his full power. The punch was so strong that the others could immediately tell that Knull had broken some of his ribs.

It was unfortunate that there was no sound in space or John would have loved the sound of his breaking bones. And this time, he could not dodge nor could he cushion the impact by flying backwards. Yhwach made sure of that by holding him down. It was surprising that Knull who had been hit on his back and on his chest, was bleeding.

The wound in his back prompted blood to flow out and even the punch of Superman, made him vomit out specks of blood. John and others thought that he didn't even have blood vessels when they first met him. John flew slowly to Knull who was now sweating heavily and looked all beaten up. Before he had wrinkles all over his face, but after this small rout, it seemed like there were more creases on his face and even his whole body.

John didn't have any sympathy for him as he punched him right on his face. He was back in Alien X form and used both his celestial sapien power and along with phoenix force as his knuckles looked like they were burning in fire. The knuckles seemed like they were fire knuckle braces that rogue gangsters use on the streets.

It might seem funny to everyone, but it was super effective as it would inflict more pain on the enemy and John definitely wanted Knull to suffer. He had been behind the whole problem since the start and due to his actions a whole universe was lost forever.

Though the utopian universe was never a part of the multiverse, it didn't mean, their lives never mattered. John wanted him to suffer before he would kill him. The Power Cosmic of negative was not as powerful as the actual Power Cosmic. It was effective only against Silver Surfer and Galactus, but for others it was just a small increment of power.

Knull thought that with the help of Power Cosmic it would be much easier for him to win the battle, but he had underestimated the enemy too much. He expected a retaliation from Light, like it always has been, but he didn't know the full power of John and his summons. He had no idea of them.

John had been hiding his full power since the start and now with Alien X and jacked up Superman it was a lost battle before it even started. Of course, Yhwach was the one to inflict the most damage on him with his axe. John didn't want to take away the 'bright light' of their main power away. In the end, Light was the main nemesis of Darkness.

John, after punching and kicking Knull a few times with his heart's content, looked deeply into the eyes of Knull.

"You should have left that universe as it should have Knull. You want to control the multiverse? Sure. You want to bring us to Darkness? Acceptable. But never should have wiped away a universe just to establish your authority. It was fine with what you did to the Celestials. But there is a line you shouldn't cross." John roared.

Chapter 615: The end is near (2)

John was venting his anger as he beat down Knull with all his might. He had zero sympathy for such such kind of person. Knull's situation was becoming bad with every punch and sidekick. Finally it stopped as Yhwach brought the axe out which was stuck in his back.

If the beating down wasn't enough, then the blood which spilled out after the axe was brought, should have done the job. Knull who had been screaming for a straight one minute was now numb. He didn't even have enough energy to scream, let alone fight. He was beaten like a dog.

"Yhwach, you know what to do." John said. He was a little curious about what Knull meant by the Wall before and his obsession with it, but it didn't matter now. He didn't care. If he really wanted to know he could always contact the older gods.

He was still young and Phoenix Force goes through many rebirths, so she too had less knowledge about the multiverse like the other Gods. All she cared about was the life force of the multiverse. Nothing else mattered to her.

So John's knowledge of this so-called 'Wall' was zero from the start and he had no idea of the obsession of Knull.

Yhwach and Clark both knew what to do now. They both took one shoulder of Knull in each one of their hands and they flew at fast speed to one particular direction.

The sun!!

The sun of the solar system was very special for the universe of 616 as it was one of the greatest weapons against anything evil. Over centuries, many evil beings died on the surface of the sun and it was known to purge any kind of evil and darkness.

This time too it was the same case. Knull would die under the heat of the Sun just like he should have died. There was no going back. Darkness would have to search for another host. John would love to destroy the Darkness forever but if he did, there would be an imbalance in the multiverse and John couldn't allow that. So all he could do was kill Knull and suppress Darkness till it choses another host next time.

Clark and Yhwach took him away and John followed them. Knull had become unconscious due to pain, but John still kept an eye, readying any kind of sneak attacks he might be planning under the garb of being unconscious.

In a minute they reached the surface of the sun. As usual, the sun was burning too hot but for the three of them this was a walk in the park for the trio, but it was different for Knull. He was unconscious for sure, but his body was squirming with all the heat around. He was resistant to heat for sure, not invincible. he would still feel the pain and debuff which came with the light along with heat.

So his body naturally reacted to a place which had ample light and too high temperature. John went forwards and slapped him right on his cheek. He didn't want to kill Knull in his sleep. That would be an insult to him. He wanted to Knull to see his own death with his own eyes and let him feel the pain for what he did in the other universe.

After getting slapped twice, Knull finally opened his eyes. He still had a hollow look on his face but since he had lost too much blood, he looked more terrifying but it also seemed like he was dying.

"You thought Power Cosmic would save you. It was just a small power of a closed dimension. Your body can never hold that kind of power." John said. Knull looked at John with a sense of defeat in his face. He knew that he had been defeated. In all ways possible and soon he would lose the throne. After a moment of silence, Knull suddenly laughed out loud. Though he was in pain, he could manage that laugh.

His laugh contained a sense of mockery. The three weren't sure on what Knull was mocking about but they let him say his words. As every villain at the end of the line wanted to say something to infuse more fear on their enemies. He wanted to see what Knull was banking his trust.

"You think killing me will end everything? You think you have won? You are mistaken. Gravely, mistaken. Even if you kill me there would be Darkness in this world. There will always be someone who will take my position and bring you all down. No matter what, this war will never end... You might have won the battle but not the war." Knull said while gritting his face. He had lost some of his sharp teeth, so even his words seemed funny a bit.

"You speak too much for someone who is dying. We all know that Darkness will prevail till the end of time. There is no reason for scaring us and we are always ready to face it. Now go at peace." Yhwach replied as he took his own sword out.

Chapter 616: The end is near (3)

Yhwach wanted to use his own sword to bring down Knull once and for all. The axe was pretty strong for sure, but he didn't want to taint another man's weapon to kill an enemy of his. Though in nature, Knull had nothing to do with Yhwach but he was chosen as the Champion of Light. So he had an obligation to bring the enemy down.

In addition, he liked the world here. He could feel that he was in control under John, but he had his own thoughts. He was given freedom in total, he could even make his own army here if he wanted. Serving him. So all in all this was good and sunshine for him.

Since both Light Force and John wanted this piece of shit to end, he had to take it seriously. His freedom was on the line. Yhwach brought out his long single blade sword and inserted it right through his chest. There were no questions asked and no grand speech for him. He was a man of few words.

Knull who was struggling before to get out from the hands of Clark, suddenly saw a huge sword emerging right through his chest. His eyes went wide as he saw this. He couldn't believe it. He had tried scaring them by using the shadow of Darkness and its history but it seemed like it didn't matter to them.

His death was written on the stars!! And he could do nothing about it.

"I told you Knull, you scaring us with Darkness will do nothing to us as we have already accepted the presence of Darkness in the world. There can be no Light without Darkness and no Darkness without Light. Now just die and go in peace and may you complete your obsession with the Wall." John said.

"No... No.. No.. how could this be happening? What have you done?" Knull spoke out in total fear. It felt as if he had seen some kind of demon and it gave him immense fear.

"Death scares everyone. Doesn't it?" Clark said seeing the severe reaction of Knull. It was odd for sure but none cared at this point.

"No... You are killing the Darkness. What have you done? Why is Darkness dying?"

"What?" All three were taken aback. They never expected such words from Knull. Knull was dying pretty fast and they could already see it. The dark symbiotes that were attached to him were detaching themselves from his body. But John and Yhwach could feel that Knull was also losing power. A power that seemed ancient and unique.

But Knull was not just losing that ancient power, but it was as if the ancient power itself was dying. Yhwach and John had a grave face. They calculated wrong. They didn't expect such things to happen.

".... No....No.... You all will die for what you have done. You have hurt the Darkness. This will create imbalance in the multiverse. Hahahaha.. You all deserve it. Didn't want to get rid of me? Didn't you want to keep the secrets of the Wall to yourself? Now you will go to the grave with that secret. Hahahaha.."
Knull screamed one last time before he died. His body just turned to ashes and with that the ancient power too vanished.

Darkness was obliterated from the multiverse forever. Never to return again. But this didn't put a smile on the faces of the three. John especially knew the gravity of the situation. There was a crucial balance that had always been maintained by all. The multiverse has always been in balance. Now out of nowhere it was broken.

And now like dominoes, it will create a storm and now it will be very hard to predict what will happen.

"What just happened? Why did Darkness just die out of nowhere?" John asked in a very serious tone to Yhwach. For the first time, he was in full control of his summon. Normally, he abhorred it but this time he didn't care. The last attack of his proved to be fatal for him.

Yhwach's face changed from being a casual one to a face which seemed like it was drained of all colours. John didn't care if he had the Light Force. He didn't care even if Light Force would tell others of his control power. All John needed now was answers.

"I don't know. I just used my sword to kill him. And out of nowhere Darkness died." Yhwach said in a neutral tone. He seemed like a robot, programmed to answer John.

"System, is he speaking the truth?"

[

Ding

Yes, Host.

]

"Then how did Darkness just die?" John murmured. He was confused of what just happened. It was at this time that Clark answered.

"I think I know why Darkness just died."

Chapter 617: A future which nobody knows

John turned to Clark. He didn't expect that out of all people Clark might have the answer of what just happened. The death of Darkness will be problematic for him as he would have to answer to the Living Tribunal and the other judges. He was always warned of not inserting his hands into the daily lives of people and their struggle.

But he never paid attention. But now this was something which had gone out of his hands. And he had no idea of how he would handle the future, and the Living Tribunal was the least of his worries. He had seen how imbalance destroys everything in the comics. And if the future was remotely related to the whole problem of imbalance, then he would be the sinner of all the multiverse.

"Tell me." John said.

"Do you remember why Shinigami and Quincies fought in the first place? The whole war that should have happened before and was never shown?"

"Yes." John answered. Yhwach was the son of the Soul King and this was the main reason for the war. But the Shinigami's didn't know that secret. Only the highest echelons knew of that. The general information provided for the war was that the Quincies destroyed the souls, and this created a huge imbalance.

And this was true. Quincies power obliterated souls and this created a huge problem for Shinigami.

"You mean to say the power of Yhwach obliterated the soul of Darkness as he is a Quincy?"

"Exactly." Clark said.

John was frozen in his spot when the realisation hit him. Yhwach had always introduced himself as a Quincy to others. So for this reason Clark knew of him. Like others he had seen all the anime and movies of John's work and he had a general idea of the story.

Yhwach had accidentally done something that he had no control over. And for this small infringement, it would create a complication that John might not have any idea of how to handle.

"Fuck!!" John cursed out loud. He let go of the control over Yhwach as it was useless. It was not exactly his fault for what had happened. He just wanted to kill Knull, who would have known that this small change would change everything.

John as Alien X could already feel the imbalance that was breeding slowly in the multiverse. Phoenix came out of his body and sat on his shoulder. Her fiery eyes had a glint as she looked at Yhwach. She knew what just happened and it didn't look good for the future of their multiverse.

"You were always warned of not going out of your way to stop the problems. Now look at what just happened. We are all in a huge mess now." Phoenix said.

"Knull had Darkness with him. He was a God. He had killed Celestials. You wanted me to sit and watch while he destroys 616?"

"Ask yourself, did this problem really need help? They had Light. There weren't toddlers who just had just learned how to be a hero. Eddie would have been the God of Light with no problem. He just needed to suffer a bit. Now look at what had happened. You jumbled the whole future and now we are on a path of no return."

"But he had the Power Cosmic of the Negative Zone with him. Eddie with his little imagination of being Venom might not have been able to defeat Knull." John argued back.

"Oh please!! You already knew how powerful God of Light was when he destroyed All-Black. It would have been a tough battle for sure but I am sure they would have been able to defeat Knull. Now the small change of Yhwach's use of the Light Force has changed everything."

John sighed when he heard this. Maybe Yhwach shouldn't have been summoned in the first place and this whole debacle might not have happened. Now this has turned a wheel and he didn't have a weapon to break the wheel. All he could do was go with the flow.

"We need to go back and inform others of what just happened. Whatever happened has happened and can't be changed back. This involves the death of an ancient being. We won't be able to change it as it was a Nexus Event and TVA won't be able to control it. Loki, are you still at the throne?" John shouted.

Unsurprisingly, Loki appeared out of nowhere. TVA was responsible for all Nexus Events and Beings. And this was a huge Nexus event. The point of no return, just like the death of Christine in What if?

"You have committed quite the crime John. This crime according to the laws of TVA would have you pruned instantly, with no questions asked and no trial." Loki said with a smile.

"It was not me who did this. It was him. Why am I being put in the tough spot?" John asked with a sharp tone.

Chapter 618: An overprotective Dad

"Well you were in the group when this happened. In theory you would have been arrested. It's fortunate that I am now the head of TVA." Loki said with his iconic smile.

"How long have you been hiding?" Clark couldn't help but ask.

"I just arrived. When the sword of this big guy went through his chest, it sent ripples across all timelines." Loki said, but now in a more grave tone. He had been doing this for quite some time now and he had seen fair share of Nexus Events and Beings. TVA was even able to stop many problems before it even started.

But this time, it was special. The problem arrived out of nowhere and from the way the timeline showed branches signified that the effect would be huge one and it would change the multiverse forever.

All they had to see was if the multiverse was going for the good or the worse.

"Loki, I know you want to leave the TVA but at this point of time, I can't let you leave." John said.

"I know that. You don't have to rub it on me. After settling everything this time, I am out."

John and Clark didn't say anything against it and their silence meant that this was the last assignment for Loki in the TVA and after this he would genuinely be free and would get to live his life as he wanted to.

"Alright let's head back. I will have to finish one last thing before Light can be free." Yhwach mentioned.

"You mean Dylan?"

Yhwach nodded his head.

John looked at the place one last time where Knull had turned into ashes. Due to the heat of the sun even the ashes had blown away, there was not even a hint of the being that once terrorized the Celestials and the universe. Nothing was eternal! John got reminded of this once again.

John vanished with Yhwach, Clark and Loki and they appeared again at the headquarters of the Avengers. They could already see that the sky was clearing out. The symbiotes which were struck at the land and the buildings were slowly vanishing away to the sky, returning back to where they came from.

Klyntar.

The war was over!!

After a few minutes of waiting, almost everybody was back. Eddie too had returned and John had ordered Robin to bring Dylan to the headquarters. To get rid of Knull and all of its influence, they need to get rid of the last remnant of his from the body of Dylan.

When Dylan was born, the symbiotes of the upper echelon gave him the power to separate hosts from symbiotes. This was the hole in the card for the symbiotes when Knull breaks from prison. It was unfortunate that this never came to fruition and in fact it almost proved fatal to the symbiotes, as Knull had hidden a part of himself on the body of Dylan.

Yhwach and John knew of this. Yhwach knew of this because the Enigma Force had informed him of this and John knew of this because of comics. Now this was the last work Yhwach needed to do before Light would leave and roam in the multiverse.

"So Knull is dead?" Eddie asked. They all had a smile on their faces. The symbiotes leaving already denoted that they had won. Though many were surprised that Loki had appeared in all of this with the team, none of them complained. Not even the 616-Avengers, where Loki was a major villain and had given pain to almost everyone here during the Realm Wars and even had a personal vendetta against Strange who had lost his dog due to the machinations of Loki.

The 616-Avengers could see that this Loki wasn't their version of Loki so nobody raised an eye on

"Knull is dead but there is a problem." Clark said.

"Problem? Did he escape or something?"

"No. It's complicated, we will talk about this after we get rid of the last influence of Knull from the body of Dylan."

"What? My son? Did Knull do something to Dylan?" Eddie got scared and he asked anxiously.

"Yeah he did. But worry not, Yhwach will help us get rid of this in a second. Dylan is on the way here."

"You informed Dylan of this?"

"No. But I had a security detail around him with Robin and my children." John said.

As they were talking, Dylan and others had already arrived. Dylan looked like any other American teenager. But there was a small change in his eyes. His eyes had a very vague spiral black and red line. It was very vague and transparent but anyone with a good eye would be able to notice it.

"Dylan. Are you ok? Are you hurt?"

"I am fine Dad. You don't need to be so protective of me. I can handle myself." Dylan said with little annoyance. His overprotective Dad had been a pain in the ass for him for a long time now.

Chapter 619: Nexus Event

Dylan visibly looked annoyed by the fact he could not attend the war. He had known that he had powers and the powers that would be a huge boost in the war but he was still denied to even get close to the battlefield.

This annoyed him a lot but he also understood that after losing his mother, Eddie had become too protective of his only family left in the world. He didn't want anything to happen to his son.

"It's good that you are fine. How will you remove the last remnant of Knull?" Eddie asked.

"You will not like how I will do it but this is the only way." Yhwach said.

"Will it be painful?"

"A little bit, but it will be a successful one and you will get your son back in full health."

"Can I trust you on this?"

"You can trust the Light Force inside of me. I might not have any pillars of trust in this place but at least the God that is inside me can be trusted." Yhwach said as he already knew that nobody trusted him. This was the only thing that made the people here trust him. Eddie nodded his head and after a minute of contemplation he finally nodded to him.

Yhwach bent down to the height of Dylan and without any warning he shot his hand at the chest of Dylan. Nobody expected that move but what surprised them later was that his hand went through his body and in a sec his hand came out, with a black slime-y and sticky thing.

Nobody was even able to react when this happened. Dylan let out a cough when Yhwach hit him but after he brought out the remnant of Knull, he fell on his knees while coughing a bit. Knull went forward and helped him stand up.

When Yhwach made that move, he thought he was going to kill his son, but it seemed like it was not the case. The black thing that was in the hand of Yhwach decimated as he crushed it with his palm. With this the legend of Knull had come to an end.

An entity that existed for a long time finally met his demise. Never to be born again and cause havoc in the multiverse. There was a sense of joy and everybody had smiles on their faces. They had finally won against an enemy which they had no idea of. They were able to face this being united and defeat its minions.

Such an enemy they had never faced before. A being which millions of minions under him and if help hadn't arrived from before maybe they would have lost many personnels in the war. Fortunately, nothing of that sort happened. Even Deadpool who is known for facing near death situations every time didn't even get a scratch in all of this.

"Brother, why are you here?" Thor asked Loki as he saw his brother back from TVA. He had met quite a few times after he went to TVA but it was only for small talk with him and his mother. But never in any war. This was a new one for him.

"I am here because your friend here has committed a crime and according to the laws of TVA I should have arrested him and the other two."

"What??"

"Huh!!!"

"What do you mean?" There was a huge murmur in the whole Hall as they didn't understand the words of Loki but some of them do know the existence of TVA, but were still confused why Loki brought up the matter of TVA.

"We committed a mistake. It was an accident. But what we have done might change the multiverse forever." It was Clark who opened his mouth. He could see the confusion in the eyes of everyone so they needed to come out clean.

"What did you do?" 616-Tony asked.

"We accidentally killed Darkness along with Knull."

"Eh? Darkness? You mean the abstract being that gave power of Light? So what of it? He is dead. We should rejoice more. There is one less headache for all of us. There won't be another Knull." Johnny said (brother of Susan, the Invisible Girl)

"No. This isn't simple. Killing an abstract being has consequences as far as I know." Reed said.

"Yes. We went through a Nexus Event, an Event from which we can't go back. Like Light, the multiverse must have Darkness. It keeps the balance of the multiverse. Yhwach used his own sword to kill Knull. What we didn't expect was that the power of Yhwach obliterated the soul of Darkness. Darkness in itself is weak, just like Light. Now for that small mistake we might have to suffer." It was John who answered this.

Chapter 620: The after party

"So? We killed a God!! What's the big deal? it's not like we haven't killed Celestials before?" 616-Tony said as he didn't think it was much of a big deal. Knull had killed Celestials before, and it never mattered.

So why would killing an abstract entity be of any significance?

"Celestials die over a course of time and new Celestials emerge in place of them. The dead three Celestials which you see have faced death millions of years ago. They had already been replaced. Celestials are like an army of Gods. But Darkness is different. It is a unique being, which existed long before the multiverse came into existence. Such kinds of existence are important to the multiverse." Loki said.

"So what now? Darkness got killed? Now Yhwach and others will face judgement?"

"I don't know. They might be called by the Living Tribunal and Arishem. TVA won't step into this since I am the current head of it."

"So the higher Gods? Whatever. We don't care, if they want to take them away, they will have to go through us. It is not our fault that Darkness died. Who told him to be so weak?" 616-Steve said as he expressed his support for the trio.

John's Avengers and X-men of both of the universes didn't expect such words from 616-Steve. They had known how everything had gone down with John's Avengers and 616. So this was out of the blue when 616-Steve extended support to John and others.

Not that it mattered to John or the Avengers, but the support was heartwarming.

"Will you really support us after all that we have done?" John asked.

"The last time you came you taught us a lesson of unity. We were not united at that point so we had no control. But this time, we won't make the same mistake. The secrets almost doomed us during the Secret Invasion and the distrust almost separated us. We don't want history to repeat itself. Last time we only had the mutants and the inhumans who had saved the world when the Avengers weren't functional. It was more of a personal damage than for the people of the world. We all needed that off time to understand what we really lacked. Though Doom caused a lot of damage, he got the end he deserved so no complaints there. All we can do now is look forward and be together. And this is where we will make amends. We will not fall again, and even if we do fall, it will be by the enemies, not by our own mistakes."

This was a grand speech by 616-Steve. None of them expected that they had thought so much before Knull came. John had his own selfishness of handling Knull as he wanted the throne of Hive. But whatever 616-Steve said moved him too. He was grateful to them, at least they didn't abandon him.

"I am sorry for whatever I did in the problem that Wanda caused. It was out of line." John finally admitted that what he had done was a little out of the line. It was the first time he had admitted his mistake.

"No. We are sorry for forcing you to take such drastic measures to change. The situation shouldn't have been reached. We had lost our way that time. But we are back. We might make mistakes again so it's good that we have people now to bring us on track if we veer away from our main mission." Ms. Marvel came forward and said.

"Alright enough serious stuff, whatever happens we will face it together. Right now we need to celebrate not the brood way of what has happened. You all are invited to the grand party tonight. Be in your best dress and Steve, you better wear modern things." 616-Tony declared out of nowhere.

"What about the people who were under the control of Hive?"

"SHIELD will take care of it." Skye approached forward. She was already informed that she would be the next Director of SHIELD so she had already started with her preparations. The first one being to bring the people to world order again. And of course handle New York.

The whole structure of New York had changed due to the emergence of the Transformers, so that needed delicate handling too. This was a huge responsibility but she was looking forward to it. She had been groomed for a long time for this role and now it was time for results.

"The human resources of Stark Industries will extend hand in this regard and make sure that the Transformers will be treated well. I don't want any kind of experimentation on them. All of the Transformers will be registered." 616-Stark said, to which Quake nodded. She had to keep an eye on this and this will take a long legal battle.

But this power of Transformers was bestowed upon them by Tony from John's Avengers. And 616-Tony didn't want his counterpart to come after his ass later.