

Multiverse 651

Chapter 651: Inspection

"John... John... Are you listening to what I just said." Oblivion couldn't help but break him out of his stupor as he saw John day dreaming while looking at the crack. It was suffice to say that he was annoyed a bit seeing John as he spoke of betrayal.

"No.. No. I heard you the first time. I was just thinking of what you said. My power comes from the Wall. If my power hinders me to act upon the enemies, what should I do. I would have to make contingencies against myself if that happens. Betrayal is out of the table. I would have to ask Phoenix to give me power if that happens."

Oblivion didn't expect such words from John and honestly none of them thought it in this way. everyone knew that John's power came from the Wall so if it backfires, then it would be a huge problem for everyone to solve especially if a person as powerful as John be neutralized.

"Do whatever you have to do to make yourself active. The supreme being trust you so I think he has already thought of that scenario. If you do get neutralized, you have Phoenix so there won't be much of an obstacle. You are our main weapon. We all will have to fight together."

John nodded his head while he still kept an eye on the crack. He was in huge stress now and had to think about multiple angles. His presence might be a liability here. Until he was sure that his system wouldn't stop him from stopping the invasion he needed to out of here.

Not that his presence here was absolutely needed but he wished to stay here but it seemed like he wouldn't be able to and have to leave his summons and his friends here. Even Emma would have to be here with the Guardians.

It kind of frustrated him but there was nothing he could do. The enemies on the Wall were numerous from the looks of it. There was an army here as opposed to what he had read on the comics of DC. The comics wouldn't help him much here and he needed to make his own path in handling the enemies. He would have to take a back seat here and help his friends overcome as much as possible.

He would have to share his knowledge and would have to be behind the scenes as much as possible until he was sure he wouldn't be an hindrance to others.

After looking at the crack one last time he went back to the spaceship while Oblivion had left for his own work. He was back at the command center where Wayne and others were looking at the images of crack on the screen. The Guardians were discussing among themselves about the crack and how the images were differed from the Source Wall that they had watched over before on their life.

"How is the crack up close?"

"No much difference from what we could see here." John said pointing on the lie images on the screen.

"No other sensation from up close?" a Guardian asked.

"No that I know of. You can set up instruments to monitor it as I won't be here always." John said.

Others were surprised by this decision, especially Emma as she thought they would be together here and work here. This would be their home away from home. Though this place had nothing outside the spaceship but inside this spaceship was bigger than a US state. This had so much space that it people were in short here and only the aliens under them were enough to fill up a small amount of space.

"Why? Why are you leaving?" Emma asked. This question was on everybody's face. Then John spoke about his insecurity here and how he might be a liability.

"This is bullshit!! Nothing of that sort will happen here. Your power doesn't only come from the Wall. In that case everyone here who came from beyond the wall would be a liability and should be under scrutiny but we have seen nothing of that sort." Tony who just entered the center said.

"Then we should all be under scrutiny." Wayne said as he too thought that what John said might be right.

"No. We trust each other here."

"We might but on what guarantee should we operate if the Wall thinks of controlling us from one way or other. We arrived a the multiverse without any help or any suit which signifies that Wall had played its part in sending us far. We need to think of all scenarios. Even betrayal by some of us." Wayne said as he dropped his greatest fear. Wayne was always good in imagining the worst case scenario.

"Then we better have contingencies against our own selves." Mayuri butted in.

Chapter 652: Inspection (2)

As soon as such thoughts had started arising among the members, the Avengers looked at Wayne. Normally this could be settled as Wayne's department because only he establishes contingencies for all the members.

"Bruce, it's your work. Do you want to do it?" Tony whispered in his ears.

"I have already started doing it and making a file on each and everyone the moment we left the multiverse." Wayne said.

"Sometimes you are more scary than these Omega Titans that I am seeing right now." Banner who heard this whispering said. John had already known that Wayne had been doing this, but he was surprised how early he had started.

He was powerful now so he didn't need to do such kinds of things, but the habit of his stayed and he would do everything possible to make separate files on anyone he deemed as a threat or powerful. John coughed a bit to attract the attention of everyone, even Emma who had a death glare on her face. She was angry that John would leave and though she understood why John had thought of it, there was nothing she could do.

Even the Guardians thought that John might prove to be difficult if his power went out of hands. Though he had the Phoenix Force, it was better that he was kept out in the research to fill the crack.

"Wayne will set up files for each and everyone of you on the basis of weakness and how to counter them if any one of you goes rogue. I will also be under evaluation and everybody is expected to be asked some questions and a personal interview by Wayne here." John announced.

Everybody again started whispering but all in all there was a general consensus. Almost everybody here knows Wayne and those who didn't would get used to him pretty soon. He was powerful and trustworthy, at least from what they could see. Wayne came forward and said in a loud voice.

"I will make separate files for each and everyone of you. I will keep these files in high security and files would be kept on each different Earth, where you all hail from. This bundle of files will always be under security and off the grid so that some bad guys don't get other thoughts about this. I have faced this once so I will be extra careful about it. (Batman animated movie involving Vandal Savage. He was ousted from Justice League later after his contingencies on the members of the JL was leaked)

"All in favor!!" Tony said as he supported his friend to make files on their friends. He had wanted to do this for a long time. He has his own paranoia, especially now. Unsurprisingly, more than 80% lifted their hands. Those who didn't belong to the Shinigami group as they were new to this whole thing and half of them didn't even understand what 'files' were. Only Mayuri and Urahara had a better idea of what the discussion was.

"The suits are almost ready. You will have to wait for few more hours before we leave for the crack so that we can inspect it. Do make your instruments ready so that we can start on our main work soon, while I will go through each and everyone of you in the meantime. John will be here until a file on him has been made."

"Now you all can disperse and work on your own and have fun till it lasts." Wayne said. He really had a way to depress the people around him, but those who were used to it didn't care about what he said.

John and Emma went to their own place. In the journey, everybody had settled down in their own place so he too found a big place for himself and Emma. There he had properly explained why he was taking this decision as he wasn't sure of his own self.

Phoenix Force was there for sure but he was also a Sorcerer and 2/3rd God. Both of his powers were too OP to look over and make sure that these extra powers of his was not an enemy to his allies. Emma almost cried hearing this but she ultimately accepted after consoling her for an hour.

Soon many people were called as the suits were manufactured for everyone and Tony even set up a factory in the spaceship. It was fortunate that T'Challa had agreed to let them take some amounts of Vibranium from his kingdom.

Though Tony had that in their Ring, he didn't want to go back just for this small purpose. Many had gathered at the center. In the first expedition, not all will get the chance to see the Wall up close. Even Wayne would sit back and supervise everything.

Chapter 653: Inspection (3)

The first mortal to ever go close and look up at the Wall on this side of the multiverse was Thanos. He was forcefully sent through the tiny crack that had first appeared on this side of the multiverse. Thanos's body was made small by the OAA and was sent inside forcefully. Instead of being struck at the Wall like a sculpture, he vanished after entering through the crack, or it would be better to say that the small body of Thanos had vanished without being struck.

When OAA saw this, he had a gloomy face. It meant that the inside of the Wall was probably free and huge and only the outsides had some species being struck which served as the boundary between the Wall and the beings that were on the Wall, which apparently might be moving freely and conspiring to come outside.

Now after some years, there was another group of mortals who had come up near the crack to inspect it, monitor it and maybe heal the crack if possible. The people who had arrived were probably the best of the best minds the multiverse had to offer. Reed Richards of two universes, Tony Stark of 3 universes, Bruce Banner of 3 universes, Beast from two universes, The Guardians, Urahara, Mayuri and other tons of people who would serve as the bodyguard and all of this would be led by Bruce Wayne.

He would keep an eye on everything and everyone and make sure that the Wall didn't play tricks on them. He would even make emergency protocol if there was a problem of his own. In the past it was the Justice League who was responsible if he went rogue.

But this time he couldn't trust anyone so he would have to make emergency protocol. He even asked John could get his hands on Kryptonite. John agreed to supply him a few of those rocks to make sure that Batman and Superman get weakened if any of them went rogue.

John stayed at the spaceship while the others just went to see the crack and make a small platform near it and start working. They went with their new Vibranium made void resistant suit or as 616-Tony named it VMV suits which the three of them made together.

They were in black color but it had a white streamline all over the body. It was made of nano-tech so none of them would have to face problems wearing the suit manually. As the first team was ready they flew away to the platform that the Green Lanterns had made.

"This crack doesn't look big. You all are making a big deal out of it." Mayuri was the first one to speak as he stepped on the platform and looked at the crack. Like others he couldn't feel any pressure or any kind of energy flowing out of the Wall.

There was nothing or at least they felt nothing.

"This crack is getting bigger as time flows by. In time it will only get bigger and these aliens will just flow out."

"Alright but will they survive the void? This void in itself could be declared as a boundary which no being would find it easy to cross and find the multiverse. The Void is unending and the multiverse of ours is just a small part of it."

"Then what will you do if it completely breaks apart from the other side. It would break on this side too right? So we have to make sure that the other side doesn't affect our side. And we can only make sure of it by plugging this side of the crack. So we need to take this crack seriously and also make ourselves ready for war, if the beings cross to our side."

John was looking at the platform from the command center with Wayne going through all the files that he had from before and the ones he would need to make.

"That platform will come pretty handy. Green Lanterns are really flexible." John commented while looking at the people working. He could see that Reed had gone with his instruments to experiment on the crack and see if there was any solution.

"True but we might need more power as security here."

"What do you have in mind?" John asked.

"The White Lantern!!!"

"That's a nice dream Bruce. But you do understand that if I want to pull the entity of White lantern here it would cost me a lot." John said. The White Lantern was the strongest lantern group from all the shades of the ring. This Lantern was the embodiment of life and had powers corresponding to all the lanterns of the DC multiverse.

It was not that he couldn't bring the entity but the thing is it would cost him a lot of fan values to bring him here.

Chapter 654: Seal

White lantern is the most powerful lantern and John could bring the entity here because there was a shortcut in bringing him. At one point of time all the members of the Justice League were White Lanterns. This happened in the Darkest Night series and with the help of White Lantern all the deceased superheroes were brought back to life who had died over the course of time.

Even Aquaman who had died was brought back to life with the help of White Lantern ring. John could bring the entity easily but it had to be remembered that not many white lantern rings were made and only a few wielded it in their lifetime.

Wayne was right when he said that having a white lantern was probably the best security here but then again, it would be his summon and it might again prove to be a liability. So John would have to be sure before summoning the white lantern entity.

John was in deep thought as he saw that Urahara and Mayuri were talking on a particular topic.

The topic of Bakudo!

Bakudo was a kind of spell that binds people or things and keeps it under a seal. Many of the anime used this For example, it was used to seal away Aizen and the Shinigami used it in different cases to seal away things which they thought would be impossible to kill. even Aizen himself used bakudo on Ichigo when he thought that Ichigo was too powerful for him to handle.

Of course at the end Urahara came to finish the job for everyone. Another scene where bakudo was used was during the 4th great ninja war. When many of the deceased shinobis were getting resurrected left and right, the nations decided to seal them instead of trying to kill them which was proving to be impossible.

At the end they were successful in sealing many shinobis who were too much of a menace. So all in all bakudo has come in handy in many tricky situations. And so, this time too Urahara and Mayuri had decided to make new seals and bins surrounding the crack and monitor if there is enlargement in the crack.

This whole situation would take a lot of time as they would have to try every different seal on the crack. While this was being decided by the Shinigamis, the scientists of their side were going through the technological route. The good old route.

Of course they would have to see if the magical route was possible in this sealing of the crack and for that Doctor Strange from Earth TRN891 had also come with the whole team. He was here for the magical side. Since the other Strange couldn't just leave their Earth being the Sorcerer Supreme, Doctor Strange asked help from Clea (Wife of Dr. Strange, she was in the post credits scene of Multiverse of Madness. She is the current Sorcerer Supreme after the death of Dr. Strange and previously she was the Sorcerer Supreme of Dark Dimension, yes the same dimension of Dormammu)

So they had guns from all the sides possible from the multiverse, now the question was if their bullets were good enough to stop the enemies and seal the problem once and forever.

John stayed at the Harvester for quite a few days to see if there was a problem with the system. He had talked with it and tried to pry out its secret. But all he got was silence. But all he could gather from the system was that it did really come from the Wall and it didn't have any malice to the multiverse.

John didn't know if he could believe the system. For sure it had helped him in his quest to gain power and lead a good life. Now all he had see was if the system was truthful to him or not. Like others, John too had to go for evaluation and had to go through many interviews with Bruce to bring out his weakness, if there was one.

After multiple interviews Wayne figured out his weakness as his friends and family. That was the only weakness that could be gathered as his strength was already off the charts. Of course John had access to his own weakness as he himself was the summoner of Wayne.

Finally after a few days staying at the Harvester, John left for his home. He didn't need the help of Oblivion this time. He already had the coordinates saved by Nabu and if he ever wanted to come here he would be able to easily come back by portals to this location of the crack.

After saying goodbye to his friends and a little tearful Emma, he vanished away and was back at the Ring. Before he left for the Void, he had sent the Avengers of his Earth to their home so that they could be back.

Even the X-men were back at their new home or rather their moon.

--

Chapter 655: The Dark Multiverse

John was back at his home after a long time. He had been gone for quite a few days and had to go through a lot. First it was the problem of Annihilus which got resolved by itself, though it did give him a headache for sometime. The negative zone was always a problem and when one gets a taste of it, it just spirals down from that point.

When John arrived at the House of Mysteries he was greeted by his children and the other members of the family. His children were the only thing that made him believe the words of the system that it wasn't inherently bad.

Because his children were not his summons, they were real! It just happened and honestly it was one of the most beautiful things for him. It was weird for sure but in the end he was a proud father. His children were very important in his life and he would do anything to protect them.

Though they have all grown up. for him they were still his babies. His children now worked in the ranch of Pokemon, some were in SHIELD and two of them even joined the Avengers trained by Hawkeye, Geralt and Black Widow.

He was proud of them. Proud of his family. And proud of what he had done with his universe. And now he would have to look after the multiverse so that his home is saved.

"GAIA did you search for Owen?"

"I did. But there has been no such evidence of any of the signs that you are looking for." GAIA said as John took a glass of beer and sat on his sofa. He was tired a bit mentally so he had brought out his bottle to chill a bit.

"Keep an eye on this. Has all the X-men settled down?"

"Some of them just got their new homes after coming back so it would take some time to settle down. They are new here. It would take time for them to get a hang of what is going on with this world and this universe."

John nodded as he took a sip from his beer slowly. He felt tired. Tired of being the center of everything. he could already envision the upcoming war. He had already accepted that the Wall would break apart at one point of time as it had happened in DC comics at the end and some of the greatest evils would be released from this.

And some of these evils will produce more evils and with that the Batman who Laughs would rise. Now he is a huge problem. A being with such a kind of power is of their level. A person who could shape reality and universe as he sees fit and the only thing they could do to stop him was to use the power of hope and truth.

And he was just one of the beings. He wasn't sure what the Hand were and what kind of beings they were but if they saw some foul play in their multiverse, then he too would be decimated into ashes. He had never spoken about his fears to anyone. Until a few days ago he didn't have any insecurity or fear. He was almost at the top of the food chain. Maybe the Living Tribunal would be able to give him a proper fight.

But now he could already see multiple beings that could fight against him toe to toe or give him a good beating. The Beyonders, the Batmans from the Dark Multiverse & their army and God knows what that Wall was hiding. (I will explain the theory of the Dark Multiverse and different versions of Batman as the story progresses).

All these thoughts made his heart feel heavy and soon he was sleepy. His eyes closed in a few minutes and slept away on his couch. The spirit of the House who had been looking after him brought a blanket and covered him.

She didn't take her to bed. Beings like him don't normally sleep. If he had done so, it meant that he was mentally exhausted and wanted a rest. The mortal body of his had been stressed too much.

"A great war is coming."

"Audi..."

"None can escape this war. Not even you Audino."

"Audino.... Audi"

"We will have to arm ourselves and fight with our best if we want to survive this."

"Audino!!"

"Good. I will train you myself so we can be helpful to him. Though they are holding on to the hope that the Wall wouldn't break but from John I can already feel that he doesn't have much hope about the Wall being intact. We will have to be prepared."

After that short whispering conversation they both left the room so that John could sleep in peace. John didn't speak about the Wall or anything of that matter to her but she had already known about this from the members of the Avengers and she had knowledge of the Wall from the books that were in the House of Mysteries.

Chapter 656: Keeping an eye on the Multiverse

She didn't want to speak about her new acquisition of knowledge to John as he would easily stop them or anyone of importance from participating in the new mess but she wanted to participate nonetheless along with Audino. People might take a liking to her and think that she is only good at healing but people forget that she is also good in close combat.

Not only her, all this time that she has been here she has made friends with many God level Pokemons of the World. John had always given them free reign and since she was a being made out of magic the higher level Pokemons were interested in her and to know more of their surroundings.

She was a treasure trove of knowledge and she acted as the news reporter to them. John speaks of many things to her and thus those news and knowledge gets passed on to the higher Pokemons. Even Mewtwo comes over from time to time to listen to her, though he had become a Guardian of Oa a long time ago.

And thus after John slept away, she called all the higher level Pokemons (except for Arceus) to have a talk and speak of about the future and their war which was coming soon.

John had no knowledge about all of this and he was just sleeping soundly at that moment. He slept for 10 hours straight. He saw himself being wrapped in a blanket while he was on the couch. He smiled seeing this. As he was spacing out, the spirit came with a cup of tea in her hand.

John didn't have much preference about tea or coffee and he hardly drank any but today was one of those days where he needed one and she could perfectly understand that. Being the 'Alfred' for John for such a long time she had got to know some of the habits of John.

"Thanks for the blanket." John said.

"You looked like you needed rest. Didn't you sleep in the Harvester?"

"How do you know of the Harvester?"

"I spoke with the remaining members of the Avengers. They spoke of the spaceship that took many of you away."

"You speak with my friends?"

"You can't expect me to be at home at all times. Do you?"

"I guess that's right."

"Did they say anything more?" John asked as his eyebrows were raised when he got to know that she had made friends with the other Avengers. None of the Avengers had spoken of this before. Not that it would matter if she spoke to them or not but this information was new to him.

John didn't think much and didn't even bother to look through her memories or the memories of other members of the Avengers. He would never in the lives of his summons until absolutely necessary.

As he drank his tea slowly he recounted his fight and the things he had to face with friends a few days ago. Of course he didn't speak of OAA or other such serious matters. He didn't want to make her worried not knowing that she had already known all of this. She just let him speak his own mind and his own perspective about the fight against Knull.

"So where is Yhwach?"

"He wanted to be in 616 so he is staying there and said something about making an army. So he is there recruiting."

"An army for what?"

"I don't know. I just let him be." John lied. After OAA spoke so many things he ordered Yhwach to make an army of his own and make their own Sternritters (Followers of Yhwach and were under the direct command of Yhwach. They are the levels of Captains).

"Will he be dangerous?"

"Naa. He will be fine. I asked GAIA to keep an eye on him."

"Any plans for now?"

"Now? I am the God of symbiotes so I was planning to send symbiotes to universes I have access to and keep an eye on the multiverse."

"Keep an eye on the multiverse? Why?" The spirit acted surprised but she could already understand what he might be thinking. John needed an army and what better army one could get than the symbiotes with powerful hosts.

"Well, like 616 I want to help every universe I can in my own way." John lied again as he wanted the symbiotes to get a powerful host and also keep an eye on Owen on every universe he could get access to.

"Oh that seems about right. Alright I will leave you to your work. I am going to bring back Audino from the ranch. She had been playing there too often."

"Let her be. It's not like we need her always here. She can lead a good life and have fun."

Chapter 657: New planet

After the spirit left John closed his eyes. He had work to do now. At first he needed to bring Klyntar here, in his universe. Klyntar was the Hive point for all the symbiotes on its planet so it being here was necessary for John as he needed to be on the control and access any memories. from the symbiotes and Klyntar would be his Hive point. He would place the planet at the satellite orbit of Saturn just like Oa.

Oa would serve both as a security for Klyntar and a deterrent for any forces that might have some ideas about this planet. Neither the aliens nor the humans dare to go near Oa. They had been warned and most of the people who come from far to Mars for trade were told about Oa and the Green Lanterns. Now the Green Lanterns were like hot potatoes in the universe and they know about their power.

Thanks to John's movies and stories which were now famous all over the universe. Lex Corp held the marketing rights and since the company was very wealthy, it didn't take long for John's movies and series to be famous all over. Disney now has a huge turnover and could easily rival the total worth of Earth in just its wealth.

Of course John gives away a lot of his wealth to charity, young orphans and Pokemon gyms. Umbrella had benefited a lot from the Disney's money and they now can rival in power against the countries too, though technically the company didn't have any kind of military power. Umbrella and Disney had stayed away from politics as much as possible. Nobody would want to poke a sleeping bear and politicians too stayed away from them.

As John closed his eyes and stayed on the couch, on the orbit of Saturn a new planet just got added. A planet almost as the size of Oa but it was eerily black. But even on this pitch black planet if one looked closely they would see small black 'puddles' wriggling and moving around. These were the symbiotes. The appearance of Klyntar sent alarm signs on the space agencies on Mars and on Earth. Only after Oa sent an announcement that this new planet called Klyntar was under their jurisdiction did the people back off.

But there would always be curiosity of why a new planet had appeared without any signs. Most people thought of John's works and went through his movies and series again to search for any clues. Sadly, they were none and the average people would not even know of what the planet was and what it signified.

SHIELD even asked John about this sudden change and the only answer they received was 'don't care about it. It is under the rule of Oa. If you can ever join the Avengers, you might know what the planet was'. This was the answer the Security Council got from John. Only Fury had knowledge about it as he had close ties with the Avengers and he had learnt a lot from the Avengers when they had returned but he would never open his mouth.

He was just surprised that Klyntar was on Earth but from all the clues he had received was that Klyntar now had a new King. And this was probably Hal Jordan or John Jameson. It was either of them. Hal Jordan was on the list because it was close to Oa and John was on the suspect list because Klyntar had come to their universe. Only John had enough free time to hop an entire planet from one universe to another.

Since Klyntar was an ally he didn't much care. In fact he was eyeing that some of the symbiotes would bond with the human agents of his. His SHIELD now had 70% shinobis and the rest humans. It was shameful to say that the shinobis were doing a better job at handling missions than the humans. Not that it mattered as the success rate was high and the Security Council were having orgasms out of it but as a Director he still felt that the humans were left behind by a lot and at times he wanted to restart the super soldier serum.

Only because of the presence of the Avengers and Steve did he stop himself from taking such fruitless decisions. Now there was Klyntar, all he needed was to convince John or Hal to hand over some symbiotes for his human agents and he would be happy. He would love to experiment on them and see if there was any use of them. He had heard a lot about Venom and he couldn't wait to talk about it with Hal and John soon.

As such weird thoughts were revolving around the head of Nick, John was having a conversation with the higher echelons of Klyntar and shared his 'visions' of the future with them.

Chapter 658: New story

"So you want us to make more symbiotes?" one member asked.

"Yes. There might be a war soon and we need soldiers. You have seen my memories. These people are endless and we will need everyone possible. But for now we would need to keep an eye on Owen Reece and see that he doesn't emerge in any universe that I can get my hands on."

"Alright. Klyntar will pool its resources and send symbiotes to multiple Earths and go through mitosis so that we can get more soldiers. But you have to understand that these new soldiers won't come fast. Mitosis take a lot of energy and we have to make sure that it is done properly or else there would another symbiote like Carnage."

"I understand. Just take your own time. I will open portals to multiple Earths and you can just dive into it." John said.

"We understand. We will do everything possible to make sure that during the war we have enough army."

John nodded while he opened his eyes on his couch. He had been talking with them telepathically and now he was back to reality. He waved his hand as new portals had started appearing inside the planet of Klyntar. There were multiple of those and all of these portals were connected to different Earths of the multiverse. There were countless numbers of Earth and it was not possible for him to send each and every one of his symbiotes to every Earth.

But even if he got access to 60% of the Earth on the multiverse, that would be enough. Owen and more soldiers that were on his first to do list. In addition he would allow the soldiers to be a superhero in their own worlds too and if possible gain more help from the local superheroes of every universe that the symbiotes would touch on.

Earth was important for the multiverse so there would not be a shortage of superheroes and people who have extraordinary powers.

John got up and went to have a bath and cool himself off. He was looking forward to having a long shower before going to work. Yes, he would go to work again in Disney and make two different series. This story wouldn't actually make any changes in the fan values as these new stories were never made in real life and it was there only in comics.

But this story was required. It was required for everyone to know the story of the other side before they faced them. Knowledge would be their weapon in the upcoming War. The enemies are of their level and they would have to make sure to use the best of it and fight them.

Before returning back to Earth he had a general discussion with Wayne, 616-Tony and TRN-891 Tony about his series and movies. When OAA came John spoke of many things that others didn't understand like Bruce Wayne being sent to past and such other words. They were curious, especially Bruce himself. They wanted to know.

All John could say was this was a long story involving many factors and he had promised them that he would tell them their story but not over words in a conversation but over moving images.

"You want to spread your work in our world?" TRN-891 Tony asked.

"Yes. I have a company named Disney and they have a proper structure. Your Stark Industries can cooperate with us and share the profits as my works gets spread all over the multiverse."

"How much profit are we speaking about?"

"50%. My profits would all go to charity and such other organisations."

Both of the Tony had accepted this deal and signed on it. John was not a lawyer so he would have to send some of his subordinates to two universes to work on them and set up Disney offices there. This would be a lengthy venture as Disney would have to mass release many movies and series over the course of time but this was necessary as his new stories would help the people get to know the story of the world and in doing so would help in gathering fan values.

He was already powering up Superman, and he needed multiple Supermans like him and new worlds would be his key to that.

John went to his office at home and started writing the script. The script was a long one and it would take some time to write them but he would be able to finish it in a day as he would be using his powers to write it. Phoenix, who had never seen John writing a movie or series script, had the time of her life when she finished reading the first script.

"This story is amazing. No wonder Wayne spoke of White Lantern and if they could be brought here. They are really powerful."

Chapter 659: New story (2)

John just smiled, though Phoenix called this as a story but by now she knew it was otherwise. Whatever that had been written in the comics definitely had happened in the other universe and whatever was written in the comics of their universe might follow the same route too.

This was a scary thing. It was as if destiny had been written for the people living here long ago. It might not mean anything to the people who are living their lives like normal but for people like them who saved the universe or multiverse as a whole it would mean there was a shackle on them. No matter how hard they tried they couldn't get out of it.

John knew that none had ever doubted him as he had always mentioned that he had glimpses of future and it was never constant. In fact his presence has already defied destiny and the past 'comics' weren't able to define their lives. But it didn't mean that it wasn't there.

According to what he understood, some people in the Wall were able to control the destiny of the people living on both sides. And they would win the war only when these 'controllers' were killed.

And for that he needed to find who was behind all of these. The comics book writers? The producers? Who?

After a full day of spending his time and writing the full draft of the story of 'The Blackest Night', he went to sleep. He was happy with what he had written. It took quite a lot of his brain muscles to come up with a script which portrayed the story of the Blackest Night. The comics were different and writing it on a script was different.

After doing this he finally understood why the producers of the movies always shied away from the comics and wanted to make their own story. Copying comics was hard as there were some ridiculous elements in the comics that a person could never portray in a movie or series.

Of course, in return they would receive the wrath of the fans. A small deviation from the comics was fine but a major deviation which changed the whole story altogether would receive nothing but hatred and lots of hate mail.

It was fortunate that Disney never had to deal with comics. Since the comics never helped in collecting fan values he stayed away from the industry, of course there were fan fictions and internet theories on his movies and series but he never cared about them.

The next day after having his breakfast he went to work again. This time it was another story that he would be releasing via Disney, and as usual Phoenix came out to read. She knew that yesterday whatever story John wrote was a masterpiece and the things that might have happened in the past in the other universe.

And today it would be another kind of story.

But as John started writing and she started reading, her face didn't look good. This was one of the most devastating and ugliest story she had ever seen or heard. She had been living on this multiverse since the second iteration, but never in her life had she seen such destruction, such horror, such cruelty ever before.

The enemies which John wrote about were not even human. They were serial killers to put it in a mild tone.

"What the hell is this?" she almost screamed out.

"This is what the story on the other multiverse is going on and it only get worse from this point."

The phoenix was more flabbergasted the more John wrote. At first she thought it was just a story involving low level players and it wouldn't matter but later it went to the height of Gods and the universes were dying left and right, planets were used as weapons against each other and their allies were dwindling as time passed by.

There were so many deaths that it was not even countable now. The whole calculation was now about how many universes remained to fight and how many of their allies had left. This was a tragic story from inside and out.

"Is that the future of the other multiverse?" Phoenix asked as she read and John was at almost the end. Even now she couldn't see a happy ending. It was as if nothing would remain even if they won the war. The multiverse was gone and only a few universes were remaining and that too was dwindling fast.

"Future? That we depend. You were asking once why I have no hope of this seal of the Wall, now do you understand why I said that war would happen no matter what and this is just their side of the future which I can look through. Their future had already changed from what I understood, and we might be facing the same situation. My prediction and dreams of the future now are just a reference. Nothing more.

Chapter 660: The Celestial Armor

"You are really being pessimistic here."

"Hope for the best but always expect the worst. This is for that. We can't hide forever. "

John took almost one and a half days to complete the other story. It was a huge story as it was about various characters and their story, even the story of the enemy was included in it in order to show why the enemies had chosen the path and why they have risen to be the prime antagonists.

After finishing and working for almost 2 days and destroying many of his brain cells and working. He had not worked hard for such a long time.

"From next time I will pay more to the screen writers. They deserve more credit than we provide them." John murmured as he went to sleep. After 2 days he was tired and wanted some rest. The next day, John went out of his home to go to Disney.

He had contacted Harvester to see if there was some progress. Since the coordinates of the crack was fixed he would always contact them, and if it was not enough Thor had sent some Ravens for proper contact. Since the Thor of their world was All-father Thor sending Ravens was the least he could do and have proper communication.

Communication was always important at war. In these 2 days there has been a slight change among the personnels in the Harvester. 616-Tony and John's universe Tony had come up with another project.

The 'Celestial Armor' project.

This project was something John had expected. In the comics after the death of Knull, Tony made himself a Celestial Armor by using the 3 dead bodies of the Celestials and the armor could be said as probably the most powerful armor if his persona of Iron God was not taken into account.

This was the newest armor he came up with when Hulk had gone into rampage. (the recent comics on Thor vs Hulk is really mind boggling. Hulk is the new Thor and Thor is the new Hulk. You should read it. Pure fan service.) But now Tony would be building it for his own personal use and for the unknown enemies they might be facing.

Even Tony of their own universe was supportive of this project. They could feel the tension around the Harvester and they knew that they needed more help in this regard. Closing up holes was never his forte anyways. He was known for destroying things, not rebuilding, so after keeping only one Tony in the harvester, they were back at 616-Earth with the help of Oblivion.

Oblivion had been on the Earth silently as a Guardian and since OAA had tasked him to listen to John till the threat was neutralised, he would have to remain as the Guardian of the Harvester and John's team.

As John entered the conference room, he was greeted by Kevin and other higher level people of the company. Disney had never been public and it remained as a private property of John. Though many have tried to interfere with their Studio but none got close to it. Umbrella was not the same case, that company had a board, though the majority of the shares was under John and Tony so they could be said to be the ultimate boss.

"Sir, it's nice to see you after such a long time. We thought you would never step foot in this room ever again." Kevin said as his eyes glowed with worship and fanaticism. He was one step away in labelling John as a God.

In fact John was pretty sure there was a church in his name somewhere, or maybe multiple churches. After earth changed and grew in size, people never looked at him the same way. Though his involvement was kept under wraps as much as possible, many people had already guessed it.

Though the inclusion of Pokemon had given rise to many churches and weird religions, John was definitely the forefront of it and Kevin looks like he was sure a member of one of those. John was amused by all of this but never stopped this indulgence as long as none were hurt.

People must have free speech and free thinking. If everyone thought the same, it would just be boring and innovation would stop.

"Did you go through the previous script I sent two days ago?" John asked as he took the prime seat at the conference.

"Yes Sir. The story looks groundbreaking. We didn't know that there were so many lanterns out there and even such a powerful White Lantern. Are there other kinds of lanterns?"

"There is another kind of Lantern but we can talk about this later." John said while his tone went down as he spoke those words. It was as if he was saying those words to himself. There really was another kind of Lantern but that power too was struck the Wall.

The Ultraviolet Lanterns