

58 Chapter 58 Official

Max's Cruz POV 1

"What the fuck!" and I run and catch Sam as he faints in front of my eyes.

"Luke, please help me put him on that sofa" I say pointing with my head to a spacious sofa from Cara's hospital ward.

"He's a pussy!" Luke said laughing and looking at Sam as he lays pale. "Why the fuck did he fainted like that?" and Luke can't stop laughing.

"Just wait to be in his place and then we will see if you will not faint just like him" I say and then I realized that I said something stupid. "I am sorry" I say and look at Luke.

"It was too much for him and the emotions were too big. Hurting Cara was already too much for Sam." Meredith said saving the situation and changing the subject.

"Cara is pregnant" Luke said looking at her with some sad eyes but at the same time I know that he is happy for Sam.

"Yeah, it's just been a week since they got married and he's already scored, putting the ball in the basket. That brat!" I tell him laughing. "My dear, I think we should try that sofa from your living room, it seems very efficient" I tell Meredith laughing at her, but Luke looks at me and doesn't understand anything.

"Yeah, you should" Meredith tells me, smiling at me. "You will sleep on it tonight" and looking at Luke she said.

"I catch Sam and Cara last night "making babies "on my couch".

"Holy shit! This is a masterful scene! Did you film it?" Luke asks laughing and holding his belly.

"Are you nuts?" she asked him.

"I think you really want that fight!" Sam said starting to recover.

"Look at him, the deadliest beta of all time." Luke said tapping him on the shoulder.

Sam gets up easily and walks over to Cara and he kisses her forehead.

"I am scared," he said.

"Why, are you scared Sam?" Meredith asked him and he just kept looking at Cara.

"What if she won't want this baby? It's so soon. It's just a week since we got married. I don't even have a house prepared for us. " He said and kissed her face again.

"Are you nuts?" Luke asked him. "This woman loves you. And she loved you and wanted you before you realized how important she is in your life. She will be glad to wear your pups in her womb, you stupid man!"

"I need to take care of her," Sam said. "And you!" he said pointing to Luke. "Stop pestering me, about taking Cara away from me. I now that this is a joke but I can't control myself at all"

"I will stop. This can't happen again." Luke said. "Tell me what you need in your house and I will help you prepare at least one room until you bring her home."

"We will help you too," Meredith said, looking at me and whispering to me a soft "Please, say yes"

"Yes, Sam. Tell us what you need. You must stay with her until she is awake and she will be discharged." I tell him, but he just looks at me and moving his shoulders he tells me.

"We wanted to prepare that house together but it seems that is not possible. "And looking at Meredith he said. "You know what she likes and what she hates. Can you choose something for our bedroom, please, so she will feel nice when I will bring her home?"

"Count on me," Meredith said and took my hand. Signaling Luke she said.

"Let's go. We have a lot of work to arrange a room in just a few hours.”

And she choosed the furniture from the internet and sent Luke to brought it. And looking at Sam's bedroom she said to me.

“This room is too white. I would put some colors here, something neutral, but to feel more like a home and not like a hospital room.”

“Sam let you choose for him and Cara, so it is your decision but if you ask me, yes it is too much white here.” And I pull her to me and kiss her.

Seeing her so involved and watching the care she has for Cara makes me feel proud of her. She will be a great luna one day, when she will deeply accept me in her life.

And she did it. Five hours later, Sam's bedroom had a new face. The walls were paint in a medium gray color, making all the room look a more relaxing comfortable space. And she was right. Gray is a very versatile color and can evoke different moods based on the shade you choose.

Meredith chose to leave the ceiling completely white.

“It's about Feng Shui,” she said, laughing sweetly at me.

And from this point she started to add furniture and decorations. A dark gray bed with a voluminous and decorative headboard, which is the masterpiece of this bedroom. For the huge windows that go down from the ceiling to the floor, she chose the curtains in the color of the wall. Some greyscale painting with silver frames, a glass table, a comfortable velvet armchair, linens and bedspreads, and a lot of decorative pillows with different textures.

For contrast next to the bed, he chose some bedside tables with silver metal inserts that contrast strongly with the carpet with silver inserts and different tones of grey.

She put all her heart in this room. The final object that she put in this bedroom was a splendid chandelier, circular, which shines the room.

Everything is perfect, even the small glass table next to the armchair, on which, out of love and care for Cara, she placed a bouquet of white and pink roses and a box of chocolates.

"This will relax her," she said.

"Is this the way you see your home?" I ask her and take her in my arms, and I remember looking here how she put her imprint on the house I let her to live alone after we got married.

"Yes, if you want to know. For me a home is about the emotion that the house offers you, not about luxury or anything else. And looking at me she asks.

"Do you think Luke finish arranging the dressing room?"

"Why?" I ask her.

"I finished here and I want to go home and..." and she just looks at me.

"And what?" I ask her putting my hand on her cheek.

"And cuddle you" she said and I take her in bridal style and mindlink Luke.

"I am at Meredith apartment. We just finished. "

"I already left, man. I finished too, I am on my way to the hospital to help Sam" and he closed the link.

Entering her apartment I look at her and tell her without any other preparation.

"Move with me please. Official. "

"Max" she whispered. "Didn't you see their eyes today? How they lookd at me and Cara? Your house is full of your former lovers. I will need to fight for your attention all the time. "

"You will not, after you will become their Luna they will be forced to submit to you, or they will be forced to leave this pack. I will protect you."

"I don't want protection, Max. I just want all this to be natural, effortlessly." Meredith tells me gently.

"All I know is that I love you, Mer" and I put her in my lap and cuddle with her on her sofa.

"Tonight come with me at my pack house, have dinner with my parents and that old grandpa who is ashamed to call you after everything he did."

And I kiss her lips, sucking from its and feeling how my body asks for more, but I know that she needs time.

"Dinner with your folks?" she asks smiling on my lips while I kiss her.

"Yes, like a family" I say and she nods her head and kissed me back.

"I would like that!" she said.

"Stark" I say to my wolf. "Be vigilant tonight, if anyone tries something against her, kill him!"