

No Chance 197

Chapter 197 What Can She Do?

In the next second, he feigned surprise. "That's great that you are willing to stay!"

Linda also pretended to be delighted when she heard that. "You are finally willing to stay here, Liz!"

Again, the word 'finally'.

After hearing that, Elisa was positive that they were already recording the entire conversation.

In fact, she was also doing the same thing, so she was not worried about them publishing the conversation out of context.

Elisa nodded. "I avoided this place because Dad passed in this house. I was not prepared to face the truth yet. Now that it's been a while, I know that I can't continue to run away. I'll be staying in his old room today. I'm sure no one touched his belongings in that room, isn't that so, Uncle Norman?"

course! His belongings are one of the points that Norman was unhappy about. The master bedroom was Elisa's father's old room. Even though their family was currently staying here, they could not sleep in his room property using the money he inherited from his dead brother because it would seem to the public that he was squandering the money of the dead. Now that some time had passed, he was preparing to acquire a new property in a with a grin, "Liz, this place will always be your home. Seeing how much you miss this place, shares, but they could not take this place away too so that Elisa would not were overflowing with money, another mansion was not a big deal. Since this place was good idea since this place is getting older anyway. I'll treat speechless to hear around now. I told her that I was willing to relocate to leave this place to her out of goodwill, yet contains your cherished memories, of course we would leave it to you entirely. Even if we move out, our new place will always be open to you.