Chapter 511

Sheena and Rachel were stunned for a moment.

Then, their expressions looked weird.

Rachel snorted.

"I think he only came for the proposal you made. He will not even let go of you up to this minute! What a rascal!"

The look in Elisa's eyes tensed for a while. She went silent.

Sheena spoke awkwardly.

"I still think that Gareth has fallen for you..."

Rachel was speechless. Her lips twitched. She felt that Sheena was out of her mind.

Elisa chortled gently. She did not believe it.

But Sheena could not help but continue gently, "Gareth arrived at the hospital not long after you were admitted. He seemed pretty worried and even specially assigned Jeremy to treat you and see if you were okay. Jeremy only left after making sure that you were okay. Then, he chased us all out and kept watch outside your ward alone. He was there for six hours..."

Elisa was nurtured. She did not expect Gareth to spend such a long time here. He was really determined to get the proposal.

Sheena hesitated for a short moment again before continuing.

On the third day.

Time flew.

Three days passed, and Gareth had not come to revisit Elisa. He seemed to be angry.

But Elisa had not planned to pay attention to him from the beginning. She had completely forgotten about this person.

Gareth Wickam...

Suddenly could not stand this anymore.

Just as Elisa was about to take a rest, the door of her ward opened. She opened her eyes. She had expected Sheena or Rachel.

After all, Carle was kept in the dark all along. She had to be careful since she was in the same hospital as Carle.

Both she and Rachel couldn't be seen by Carle.

So Rachel stayed with her in her ward the whole time.

But...

When she saw that Gareth was her guest instead, she frowned lightly. She stared at him quietly. She was obviously not delighted to see him.

Gareth ignored the look on her face. He walked over to her side and sat down.

once tempted to offer James to work for him, but when he discovered James' relationship with Elisa's father, he gave up that thought.James smiled. Then, he put the fruit basket on Elisa's bedside table. When he saw Elisa trying to get up to help, he quickly stopped her, "Don't move. You have a broken rib. Don't you dare move."Elisa smiled. "I'm not that fragile. Moreover, I am almost recovered. I have undergone fixation of the ribs, and I've been doing physiotherapy."She got up as she spoke. She looked active and alert and did not look like a patient. Rachel had been taking care of her these days. She knew how far Elisa could go, so she did not stop her. Gareth kept staring at her. He realized that she wasn't a person with a bad temper. She was just bad-tempered toward certain people. And he was one of them. The sneer on Gareth's face widened when he thought of this. James sighed. "How did this happen to you? Are you feeling better now?" "Yes. I'm almost recovered. Please have a seat." James smiled as he nodded. He sat on the other side of Elisa's bed, facing Gareth. James looked at Elisa pitifully. "Have a good rest for the time being. Don't worry too much about work. Put your health first no matter what." James was not concerned about Gareth being there at all. After all, the managing officers' relationships in Benett Corporation were pretty obvious. People knew that he was on Elisa's father's side. Since his friend was gone, he was, of course, on his daughter's side. Gareth sat in his seat quietly. He seemed like he wanted to today." Although... Everyone ignored him just now. He did not mind since he was a cold person. Even if they ignored him, it would not make him wait on them. Rachel, too, could feel the awkwardness in the air. She paused for a moment, then spoke with a smile. "Well... I'm heading out for some air." Elisa nodded at her. Three people were left in the ward. Elisa gave Gareth a look. Although they did not speak, it was obvious what Elisa wanted from Gareth. Are you not leaving yet? Gareth avoided Elisa's gaze and looked at James. "Mr. Markee, you are having quite a hard time at the company recently, aren't you?" The smile on James' face froze. But shortly after, James regained his composure and answered, "Why are you asking this out of the blue?" He almost blurted to Gareth about how rude it was for him to say such insensitive words. Gareth did not seem to realize anything wrong with his words. He simply answered, "Mr. Markee, you wish to help your old friend achieve his dreams. But you can't do it. Perhaps I can help you." James hesitated for a moment. Then he chuckled, "There is no free lunch in this world. I don't think I'll be able to repay you." Elisa frowned lightly. She glanced at Gareth. Was he planning on getting Uncle James on his side? Then he could have Uncle James convince me to work with him. But Uncle James likes Will more. Elisa leaned against her bedhead. She did not plan to interfere in this. The two men continued exchanging opinions. But it was all just small talk. Nevertheless... Elisa could feel Gareth's sincerity. He had offered quite a few benefits that seemed appealing to James. But the next moment, he smiled. "We appreciate your sincere offer, Mr. Wickam. But as you can see, I'm occupied with many tedious tasks. If I make the wrong decision, I might get into deep trouble. Elisa is my old friend's daughter. I must protect her no matter what." Gareth glanced at the woman coldly and answered in a calm voice. "Elisa is my grandma's biological granddaughter." Elisa was stunned. She turned toward Gareth. Is he

His voice was soft. It was almost a whisper.

But...

Elisa could hear the sarcasm in his words. She pursed her lips. She wanted to ask him to leave right away. But she remembered that James was present. It would be humiliating for Gareth if she told him to leave now. She did not want to get on the wrong side of him.

She hesitated for a while before speaking. "I'm sorry I cannot agree to work with you. We should keep a clear line between the both of us."

Gareth frowned quietly.

James could feel Elisa's eyes on him. He quickly said, "Mr. Wickam, Elisa. I rushed here when I heard that you got hurt. But I'm glad to see that you are fine now. Take good care of yourself. I will come and see you again tomorrow."

Elisa shook her head and smiled. "You don't need to take the trouble, Uncle James. I'm perfectly fine. I will go back to work soon."

James sighed. But he knew that he couldn't stay here any longer. He smiled and nodded, "Then I shall leave. Nice meeting you, Mr. Wickam."

and said, "I don't know what your intentions are, but I'm happy that you will break the engagement with Linda. I know you are not doing it for me, but I'm still glad you are doing it. Thank you." The look in Gareth's eyes turned colder. "Elisa, are you too lazy to even put up an act anymore?" She was obedient, docile, gentle, and understanding in the past. But now, she was reckless, unruly, ruthless, and cruel. Perhaps this was her real personality. Elisa smiled. "You have always thought I was over the top. What's the use of me pretending anyway?" Gareth frowned once more. Then, he sneered. "Let me give you a piece of advice about the this collaboration. It would be best if you didn't promise Will Darcey too much, or it will be hard for you in the future." After Gareth finished speaking, he got up. He did not want to stay any longer. This woman might anger him to death. Elisa watched him leave warily. "Wait." Gareth paused. But he did not turn around to face Elisa. Elisa confirmed with him again. "Are you going to keep your word and really not getting engaged? You are not joking with me or teasing me, are you?" Gareth snorted coldly. He left without answering Elisa. The ward fell silent instantly. Elisa took out her phone and read the few messages on it. She sighed gently, then replied to said that she would carry her plan out slowly. I know you are in the hospital now, so... I think they are planning another attack on you!" Linda had come over these two days when she was in the hospital. Norman and his wife came too and put up a show of affection toward her. They looked so sincere that she almost mistook them for her biological parents. "Do you know what they are planning?" Elisa sounded calm. A flash of admiration flashed across Yara's eyes. Ms. Bennett was always calm when she encountered emergencies like this. She was so much better than Linda in this way. When Yara had worked for Linda, she had always acted like a gentle lady in front of outsiders. She was kind to everybody and acted like a noble lady. Everyone thought that she was like an angel, precious and beautiful. But... She was the only one who knew how evil Linda was in private. Elisa, however, was different. She was always noble and could get everyone's admiration and respect from the bottom of their hearts. "This... I don't know about it yet." Elisa simply answered. "Okay. You should be more cautious during this period too. Don't let her find out about you." "Okay." Yara expressed her concern, "Ms. Bennett, you... Please watch out!" "Okay. Goodbye." "Okay." Elisa put away her phone and lay down on the bed once more. She had a troubled look in her eyes. She wondered what their plans were this time. But... Just as she was thinking about it, the door was pushed open suddenly. Elisa thought that it was Rachel. But she did not expect to see Charli when she raised her eyes. "Charli..." The look on Charli's face was dark and scary. "Did you plan to keep this from me if I never came?" Elisa quickly shook her head, "No..." Then, she got up. But Charli quickly strode towards Elisa. She held one of her shoulders and spoke in a low tone. "Why are you getting up? Lie down properly!" There was a warm, fuzzy feeling in Elisa's heart. She smiled gently and nodded. "Alright." There was no need for her to put up an act in front of Charli. When she saw the dissatisfied look on Charli's face, Elisa chuckled, "I'm fine.

stopped me from telling you." Charli sighed helplessly. "You two!" Elisa smiled and said nothing. Charli stopped talking about Linda because Rachel was here. And the end of this topic... Made Elisa feel much more relaxed. They happily chatted until Elisa looked a little tired. Charli got up to leave. "Okay, I will come again tomorrow to see you. Have a good rest tonight." Elisa smiled and nodded. "See you." Rachel quickly got up as well. "I'll see you out, Charli." "There's no need for that. You should stay back and look after Elisa. If not, no one will be here to watch over her later when I leave." Rachel nodded with a smile. "Alright then. See you." Charli smiled and left. Rachel brought Charli to the door. Then she returned to Elisa's side and sat down. "Elisa, what do you plan to do about Gareth?" Elisa got up and freshened herself up. "I can't say anything about the current situation. Perhaps we should just go with the flow." Rachel sighed helplessly. "Yes. You need to regain your health too..." She looked more disturbed than Elisa. Four days passed, and it was already the third day since Elisa got discharged from the hospital. She stayed at home on those days to rest. She recovered quickly, so others did not worry much about her. As for Will Darcey... He was overseas when he learned about Elisa and could not get himself off work. He could only call Elisa. "Mr. Darcey." Will frowned and asked immediately. "How are you?" Elisa replied casually, "I'm fine. Everything is good." Will looked guilty. "I'm sorry, I have been busy dealing with business overseas. Elisa, I..." He wanted to go on, but Elisa interrupted him. "Mr. Darcey, you don't have to feel bad. Moreover, I'm fine." "Elisa." Will's tone deepened, and he sounded helpless. Elisa frowned and kept quiet. But Will continued to speak gently, "I know you don't like me and are avoiding me. But sometimes, feelings come naturally. You cannot stop me." Elisa frowned lightly. "I can't believe Mr. Darcey is talking about his feelings." This time, Will kept quiet. He sighed gently at the other end of the phone. He paused a while and spoke. "I might only be able to return in to Elisa. Elisa hesitated for a moment before speaking. "Did someone call you? Or did you manage to get hold of any documents or information? Can you send it to me?" Her tone was slightly pleading. Will sighed gently. "The matter isn't as simple as you think. Plus, I don't know if it is credible. Give me a few more days. I will contact you when I have confirmed its credibility." Elisa frowned. Although Will usually did not look serious, he was pretty reliable. He would not lie. Although Elisa looked calm when handling matters about her father, her heart was in turmoil. She dreamed of meeting her father almost every night. Every day upon waking up, she would have the strong urge to avenge her father. After a moment of hesitation, Elisa spoke. "Can you tell me briefly what it is about?" Will did not refuse her this time. He spoke gently. "It is about a series of events when your father was in charge of some projects. But I'll have to validate its plausibility first." Elisa pursed her lips. She could not help but say in a gentle tone. "Thank you so much." She owed Will a favor for this. Elisa did not care about anything else. She would not let others manipulate her, but when it was about her father... Her father was her Achilles heel. Elisa knew Will Darcey after associating with him for quite some time. Even if he might use her, he knew his limits. Elisa would do anything for him willingly if he proved to be a great help to her this time regarding her father. He would not even need to try to take to sleep now." She was not fully recovered and still needed someone to take care of her, so Rachel decided to stay with her for the time being. After all, both she and Elisa needed to go on business trips. On the other hand, Carle had to stay in the hospital for treatment. The wound on his head was too severe that he had almost become paralyzed. So he would not be discharged so soon. "Okay, you rest early too. Call me if you need me." Rachel yawned. She had gotten up to go to the washroom and heard noises from Elisa's bedroom. "Okay." Rachel returned to her room after hearing Elisa's reply. The house was exceptionally quiet, but Elisa could not fall asleep. She was eager and impatient to know what Will had found out.... In Benett Residence. It wasn't just Elisa and Rachel who were still awake. Norman and his family were on the sofa in the study. All of them looked grim. "What should we do? Ten days have passed! Our engagement is coming up soon,
