Chapter 11

Chapter 11 Preparation to Retreat and Father's Guard

There were many gaily-painted pleasure boats by the lake. In the early spring, flowers were not in bloom yet, but it was enjoyable to see the sights in the boats.

After getting off the carriage, Qu Moying boarded a boat.

It was just an ordinary gaily-painted pleasure boat. One person was rowing it at the stern, and the other was about to pull the rope.

"Boatman, let's go!" Yu Chun said loudly.

"I'm so sorry. Please take another boat. This one is out of business today!" A middle-aged man came out from the stern. Looking at Qu Moying and Yu Chun, he said politely but looked gloomy.

"Hey, what do you mean? Passengers have boarded but you refuse to earn the money?" Yu Chun said.

"I want to earn the money, but I can't!" The middle-aged man forced a smile. They observed him and found him sallow and limp.

"Boatman, what's wrong?" Qu Moying asked softly.

"Nothing. I'm just not well." The middle-aged man answered.

"Now that you are not well, please go to see a doctor. I know a doctor with the family name of Ji." Qu Moying continued.

The man lifted his head suddenly and looked at Qu Moying in terror. His lips trembled. After quite a while, he said, "How old is the doctor with the family name of Ji? I know one with the same family name. I don't know whether they two are the same one!"

"Probably. The doctor comes from the region south of the Yangtze River and has just arrived in the capital." Qu Moying said with a smile.

The man began to tremble and looked excitedly at Qu Moying. Suddenly, he came to his senses, walked to the prow, untied the rope, and rowed the boat away from the lakeshore.

When the boat came to the center of the lake, the man returned to the cabin.

“Yu Chun, go to steer.” Qu Moying said. Yu Chun was born into a fishing family, so she knew how to row a boat.

Though Yu Chun thought her lady’s order was strange, she went to steer at the prow as told.

“Who...who are you?” The sallow-faced middle-aged man asked excitedly.

“How is the Ji Family?” Qu Moying came straight to the point.

The middle-aged man was a guard of her father Earl Ling’an when he was alive in her previous life. He went to battlefields with her father and then retired to be a boatman, rowing a boat and carrying passengers. But, in fact, he was an informer arranged secretly by her father.

When she married the Crown Prince, her father may had noticed something wrong and told her about this arrangement. He also told her how to get in touch with the guard. If something unpleasant happened to her father, she could come to see the man.

At that time, she thought about nothing but entering the sedan chair, so she didn’t pay attention to the facial expression of her father. She didn’t take what her father said seriously. After all, she was getting married, not going to war. Nothing could happen.

However, now at the thought of this scene, her heart couldn’t help bleeding. If... if she had taken his words more seriously, would the result have been different?

It was easy to find this boat, which was different from others. Two green ribbons were tied to it in the pattern of a green flower.

“The earl died!” The middle-aged guard kneeled tearily.

Though Qu Moying was prepared psychologically, her legs went limp and almost fell. She grabbed the corner of the nearby table and bit her mouth corner hard. The sharp pain made her mind clearer. She stabilized herself and asked with difficulty, “How...how do you know that?”

“After the Ji Family got into trouble, I went there with some guys, only to see the Earl...the Earl...” The middle-aged guard sobbed too bitterly to describe the scene, “We wanted to rescue the Earl, but...but everyone else was killed except me. The Earl also...also...”

So her father was killed in the Earl Ling'an's Mansion instead of the Crown Prince's Mansion? Ji Youran told a lie?

"How many guys are left?" Qu Moying asked with tears.

"Not many. Just over ten!" The middle-aged guard answered.

Qu Moying gulped hard and stated her identity calmly, "I'm the cousin of the Crown Princess and the Fourth Lady of the Mansion of Vice Minister Qu. Before the Crown Princess died...she had someone tell me your information. You held military posts before. Can you return to the armies? I'm afraid that you raised doubts when you showed up that day!"

"Yes, we can. The earl prepared military posts for us early." The middle-aged guard said, "Was the Crown Princess... murdered, too?"

They were still waiting for news about the Crown Prince's Mansion, but they couldn't get in touch with the Crown Princess.

"Yes, she died. Please hide first and I'll...I'll get in touch with you later!" Qu Moying stated decisively. It was the best arrangement she could make now. They were useless for her for the moment. Her father just died, and they were in a muddle. It was very dangerous. If they were unattended, perhaps none of them could survive.

Blood for blood. She would seek revenge at all costs, but now she needed to maintain the strength.

"Miss Qu, my name is Zhou An. I'm an official in the Ministry of Justice. If you need my help in the future, I will try my best to serve you, even at the expense of my life!"

Zhou An was grateful. He hadn't expected that the Crown Princess would be concerned about them before she died. Now they were in a muddle, and what Miss Qu said showed them a direction.

After the discussion, Qu Moying didn't stay longer. Zhou An returned to the stern and continued to steer, while Qu Moying and Yu Chun enjoyed the sights in the boat as ordinary tourists.

The boat went toward the lakeshore.

Suddenly, with a bang, the boat seemed to collide with something. Qu Moying lost her footing and almost fell.

When she was about to speak something, several more bangs followed. The boat nearly turned over...

Chapter 12

Chapter 12 Who Was the Victim of the Malicious Collision?

“What happened?” Qu Moying grabbed the window to stabilize herself and asked.

Yu Chun lifted the curtain and poked her head out for a look, only to see a gaily-painted pleasure boat of the same size parked near theirs, “My Lady, another boat crashed into ours.”

Before she was done, another bang was heard. The boat shook. Qu Moying’s hand went limp, almost getting her thrown out.

“My Lady, it crashed into us deliberately.” Qu Chun also found something wrong and said angrily.

“Tell the boatman to fight back.” Qu Moying grasped the window corner with force and said coldly.

Yu Chun nodded and shouted to Zhou An outside, “Fight back!”

Zhou An had found the other boat crashed into theirs deliberately. In such a case, he used to fight back regardless, but now he didn’t want to make trouble for Qu Moying, so he tried to avoid the collision.

Hearing what Yu Chun said, he knew Qu Moying’s intention and decided not to dodge anymore. He turned around the prow quickly and ran hard into the hostile boat.

Though the two boats looked alike and were both ordinary gaily-painted pleasure boats parked by the bank to attract passengers, the other one was no match for Zhou An’s in terms of strength and toughness. That was why his boat didn’t shake violently after the unexpected collision.

If it was an ordinary boat, the passengers in it would have been thrown into the water after the collision.

Now the tables were turned. With just two bangs, someone was thrown into the water from the other boat and screamed.

A middle-aged woman fell into the water. She was in servant uniform which was familiar to Yu Chun. She kept shouting for help in the water. A boatman jumped into the water from the other boat and rescued her.

“My Lady, she is a servant of the Third Lady.” After careful identification, Yu Chun’s face changed suddenly.

Qu Moying still clung to the window. Through the window, she stared coldly at the servant who was just rescued.

“Bring her here!”

“Yes!” Yu Chun replied and then went out of the cabin carefully.

Both boats stopped and were parked side by side. It seemed that the collision was just an accident.

The passengers in the passing-by boats glanced at the two ones parked side by side and found the woman was rescued from the water, so they didn’t take it seriously.

“You. Come here!” Yu Chun pointed at the woman servant who just climbed up and ordered angrily with her arms on her hips.

In the early spring, it was warm in the sunlight. However, it was piercingly cold if you fell into the water. The woman glared at Yu Chun and ignored her.

She took over a blanket from her boatman and staggered toward the cabin.

“Bring her here!” Qu Moying appeared at the entrance of the boat at an unknown time and ordered Zhou An coldly.

Zhou An leaped to the other boat, dragged the woman servant and leaped back together.

No one had expected that he would drag the woman servant over. The boatman on the other boat was an ordinary person. He was stunned and wanted to rescue her. But Zhou An glowered at him so coldly that an ordinary boatman couldn’t withstand it.

The boatman trembled in terror and could just dare to look at the woman servant being pulled away.

It was the woman servant that ordered to crash into Qu Moying’s boat.

The woman servant didn’t realize what happened until she was dragged to Qu Moying. She shouted, “What do you want to do? I am the wet nurse of the Third Lady.”

“You are scared now?” Qu Moying smiled. The long fine gauze covered her eyes as if the better part of the veil covered her face. Only a small part of snow-white skin was exposed, and her pink lips curled up. But what frightened the woman servant was the imposing manner of Qu Moying.

The woman servant even doubted the people she had seen. When did the Fourth Lady become so awe-inspiring?

But she knew the servant nearby was Yu Chun. There was nothing wrong. Except for the Fourth Lady, who had eye disease and wore such a long and wide veil?

Therefore, the eyes of the woman servant didn't deceive her?

"Who...who are you..." The woman servant stammered with a guilty conscience. Was the wrong person crashed into?

"Push her into the water!" Qu Moying ordered coldly.

"How...dare you..."

Zhou An had pushed the woman servant into the water before she was done.

The woman servant fell into the water again and struggled desperately. The boatman of the nearby boat wanted to rescue her, but Zhou An stopped him with fierce eyes.

The woman servant sank and rose in the water. She swallowed much cold water and struggled hard. She waved her hands desperately and grabbed something at last. After she managed to stabilize herself with difficulty, she looked up and found it was a rudder.

Qu Moying stood at the edge of the boat with Yu Chun and looked down at the woman servant clinging to the rudder like a life-saving straw. Qu Moying still wore a faint and soft smile, but such a smile nearly made the woman servant faint from fear.

The girl couldn't be the Fourth Lady who used to be timid and solitary. This...this must be a devil with her appearance.

If she had known it, she wouldn't have ordered her boat to follow Qu Moying's. In fact, she just came across Qu Moying, not follow her on purpose...

Chapter 13

Chapter 13 A Reversal that the Woman Servant Framed Qu Qiuyan up

"Who is your master?" Qu Moying asked casually.

"I...I serve the Third Lady and just come back." The woman servant replied hurriedly.

"You wanted to throw me into the water by running into my boat, right?" Qu Moying continued. Though her eyes couldn't be seen, the coldness in her words was clear.

"Who came up with the idea?"

"I...I..." The woman servant let her eyes wander and looked around.

Suddenly, the rudder to which she clung was pressed into the water, making her sink with it, too. Her head was submerged, so she swallowed much water. Her hands and feet went limp, and she felt again that she would die here.

“My Lady, I mean...the Third Lady sent me here...” The woman servant shouted and struggled desperately to get out of the water. She wanted to browbeat Qu Moying by virtue of Qu Qiuyan’s influence.

The rudder rose out of the water, and so did the woman servant. She almost lied prone on the rudder and coughed heavily.

“My sister wants to throw me into the water? Why?” Qu Moying looked indifferently at the woman servant and asked by misunderstanding her meaning deliberately.

“Does she want to damage the reputation and the eyes of my lady?” Yu Chun was furious. At the thought that her lady nearly had an accident under her nose, she was so angry that she wanted to kill the woman servant here.

“No...no...” The woman tried to explain while coughing.

She went out on an errand this morning and just came back. On her way back, she saw Qu Moying and her servant girl board the boat by chance. Knowing the Second Madam and the Third Lady hated the Fourth Lady deeply, she boarded another boat by the lake and paid the boatman a high price to crash into Qu Moying’s boat to throw her into the water.

She intended to let the boatman rescue Qu Moying after she had swallowed enough water. In this way, not only Qu Moying’s reputation was damaged, but her eyes might be blinded. She heard that the eyes of the Fourth Lady were burnt in childhood and were almost blind. If she fell into such an icy lake, her eyes would probably be blind completely.

If so, the Second Madam and the Third Lady would reward her.

But now the woman servant just wished to save her life and didn’t dare to have any evil intentions.

“The Third Lady wanted to throw my lady into the water and damage her reputation and eyes?” Taking Qu Moying’s hint, Yu Chun rebuked loudly with her arms on her hips.

“No...” The woman servant subconsciously wanted to explain that the Third Lady had no idea of it. The rudder was pressed into the water again, and she swallowed more water. As a result, her eyes became red.

“Then it’s you that want to murder my lady? Yesterday, a hateful servant attempted to murder my lady. Do you want to do it again today?” Qu Chun’s face darkened. She stared at the woman servant who was pulled up and rebuked seriously.

The woman servant was clear about what happened yesterday. Neither Granny Wang nor Qing He’s family came to a good end. What Yu Chun said warned her that if she didn’t pass the buck to the Third Lady, she would lose her life here and her family would be involved.

She shuddered and glanced at Qu Moying subconsciously.

The smile had disappeared on Qu Moying’s face. She pressed her pink lips tightly, looking cold and heartless.

The woman servant was frightened. She was afraid that she might die here and her family would get into trouble because of what she did rashly today. After all, Qing He’s family were sold!

“The Third...Third Lady...” The woman servant had to give such an answer. She was trembling all over, not knowing whether she was scared or cold.

“You mean the Third Lady told you to murder my lady. Why?” Yu Chun continued to ask loudly.

The woman servant was forced to give a more detailed answer. She stammered, “The Third Lady said...if the Fourth Lady fell into the water, her eyes...eyes would be really blind, and even if the boatman rescued her, her...her reputation...would be damaged...”

The noise attracted several boats. Hearing what the woman servant said, some people began to criticize her and guessed who the sinister Third Lady was.

“Pull her up.” Finding the time was ripe, Qu Moying said so and returned to the cabin.

Zhou An pulled up the woman servant. Yu Chun found a blanket in the boat and threw it to her. She shuddered with cold and wrapped herself with the blanket. Her face looked blue with cold, and her lips became colorless. She followed Yu Chun into the cabin like a drowned mouse.

“Will you go back to testify against Qu Qiuyan now?” Seeing the woman servant come in, Qu Moying asked coldly. Her eyes behind the veil were cold. She showed the servant a way.

The servant’s feet went limp, and she kneeled on the ground heavily, “Please forgive me. Please forgive me!”

Even if the woman servant was instigated by Qu Qiuyan, she didn't dare to testify against Qu Qiuyan in her presence. Let alone it was a lie that she was forced to tell.

If the Third Lady knew it, she would have no chances to survive.

"You don't want to testify against her?" Qu Moying asked.

"My Lady, I beg your mercy! I beg your mercy!" The woman servant kept pleading. Now she was in a dilemma. She regretted why she had an impulse to fawn on the Second Madam and the Third Lady by crashing into the boat of the Fourth Lady and throwing her into the water.

"You can save your life, but..." Qu Moying paused.

"I will do whatever you say. Please don't kill me!" The woman servant cried and kowtowed hard to Qu Moying. Her forehead became red instantly.

"After going back, you have to say in this way..." Qu Moying had an idea. She crooked her finger, and the woman servant craned her neck instantly.

Now she was willing to do anything, so long as Qu Moying could let her go. She couldn't testify against the Third Lady. She knew it would be a road that led to death. If the Third Lady and the Second Madam knew it, they wouldn't let her go...

Chapter 14

Chapter 14 Another Important Person

Two boats collided. A woman servant fell into the water and was rescued. Afterward, she fell into the water again and was interrogated on the rudder. At last, she was released.

It lasted a long time and was noisy. Though people on the bank didn't see that, many passengers in the boats heard the noise and came to see the fun.

Some of them saw the girl wearing a long veil on her eyes and handling things calmly. Though they just caught a glimpse of her, they couldn't help guessing her identity secretly.

A young lady, ranked fourth in her family, had an eye disease. Besides, according to the woman servant, the ringleader was the Third Lady.

Various clues led some people to focus on the Mansion of Vice Minister Qu. Qu Zhizhen had a blind girl, didn't he? He also had an elder girl with a good reputation.

And the two daughters were not born of the same mother.

Indications showed that it was the Third Lady with a good reputation that plotted against the Fourth Lady. Those people discussed it in boats and increasingly believed their deductions were correct. They even raked up what happened in the Qu Family long ago.

Qu Zhizhen's concubine entered the Qu Family later, but she gave birth to a baby earlier than the wife did. After his wife died while bearing her daughter, the concubine became the mistress of the family immediately. Then the daughter born of his wife was sent away from the Qu Family with the excuse of eye disease and was kept in a village out of the capital, which made others think the Second Madam was sinister.

Once a child had a stepmother, her father would treat the child like a stepfather!

There was a medium-sized gaily-painted pleasure boat in the center of the lake. People in it witnessed the scene too.

Two young men were sitting in the cabin. One looked elegant and gentle, while the other was more outgoing. Seeing Qu Moying's boat run to the bank, the latter patted the hand of the opposite gentle man with a fan and joked, "Won't you go ashore to meet her? She is your fiancée!"

The gentle man put down his cup and said emotionlessly, "Our engagement is just the arrangement of our parents and the match-maker."

The outgoing one was Yan Yu, a good friend of Xu Lipeng, the eldest son of Marquis Yongning. As the second son of Earl Fengyang, Yan Yu didn't need to succeed to the position of his father like the eldest son, so he was unrestrained. He studied in the Imperial College with Xu Lipeng, so they were classmates.

"It's really unfair to you. You were betrothed when still in womb by parents of both parties. Don't you want to break the engagement?" Yan Yu said and leaned back. He was defending his friend against injustice.

Xu Lipeng was a talent in the capital and the eldest son of Marquis Yongning, so he was promising. Many madams in the capital thought highly of him and wanted to marry their daughters to him. Unexpectedly, he had been engaged. What was worse, his fiancée was a talentless, plain-looking, and most importantly, incapable and blind girl.

Unfair. Very unfair!

"She has been so miserable. How can I add insult to injury?" Xu Lipeng shook his head and stared at the boat that went farther and farther as if deep in thought.

He once met her, but he just saw the top of her head last time. Her voice was too low that he could hardly hear it clearly. Was she really that girl with an imposing manner just now?

He recalled that face for no reason. Even though the veil covered most of her face, it could be judged that she was not ugly. The wind lifted her long veil, and her slim figure almost danced in the wind just like a fairy. Could such a girl be ugly, blind, talentless, and plain-looking?

"You're too kind. But you shouldn't waste your whole life!" Yan Yu felt more indignant. He thought his friend was great, but he had a woman's soft nature and was too gentle. Apparently, they are not a perfect couple, but he still obeyed the engagement.

"Wait and see. If she is really not suitable...let's talk about it later!" Perhaps because of Yan Yu's kindness, Xu Lipeng became less stubborn and said smilingly. He looked down and couldn't help frowning. If what he saw today was the true side of Qu Moying, his earlier plan wouldn't be achieved easily.

He had to look for a chance to know more.

What he said showed clearly that he was perfunctory, but at least he was less stubborn, so Yan Yu was excited and didn't insist on what happened just now. He changed the topic to something interesting...

The woman servant returned to the Mansion of Vice Minister Qu first. Qu Moying boarded the carriage waiting on the bank, traveled around on the streets, zigzagged, and then stopped at the door of a clinic.

This was her other destination.

The clinic wasn't large. It couldn't be reached unless you walked along several paths. If a person wasn't familiar with its location, he couldn't find this place.

The clinic door was ajar, and no one could be seen. The clinic was isolated, and its business was bad. Who chose to run a clinic here?

Qu Moying looked closely and told Yu Chun to knock on the door.

The unlocked door was opened, and a servant came out. Looking up and down at Yu Chun and Qu Moying, he asked casually, "Can I help you?"

"Excuse me, is Mr. Zhang at home?" Yu Chun asked smilingly.

"Mr. Zhang isn't here. Please go to the Zhang Family for him. This is just a clinic." The servant said while curling up his lips. As a servant of the Medical Officer in the Imperial Hospital, he thought he was qualified to speak in this way.

"Could you please show the painting to Mr. Zhang?" Qu Moying looked at the servant. If he was just an ordinary servant, he couldn't dare to speak so impolitely. It seemed that Mr. Zhang was in the clinic, but he didn't want to see visitors.

Medical Officer Zhang was keen on the paintings of a famous painter, and this one was created by that painter. The Old Lady hung it out, which meant it couldn't be fake. She authenticated it last night.

She heard about his hobby by chance from Pei Luo'an, the Crown Prince, in her previous life. So was the unknown clinic. No one could expect such an old, small, and isolated clinic was run by the Medical Officer of the Imperial Hospital.

It appeared that there was only an old sleepy doctor that treated patients, but if Mr. Zhang had been satisfied, he could treat patients himself.

The servant was clear about the hobby of his master. He took over the painting, glanced suspiciously at Qu Moying and Yu Chun, raised his head, and said proudly, "Wait. Don't look and move around."

Then he left. Qu Moying looked at his back and smiled. Mr. Zhang could play an important role...

Chapter 15

Chapter 15 The Sinister Scheme of Yu and Her Daughter

"My Lady, I'm glad you come here!" Once getting off the carriage, Qu Moying saw Granny Miao waiting aside.

"They came to see me?" Qu Moying asked. She guessed what happened through Granny Miao's anxiety.

"They have come here several times for you. I said you had been gone to fetch a doctor." Seeing Medical Officer Zhang get off the carriage behind, Granny Miao breathed a sigh of relief.

"Granny, please take Medical Officer Zhang slowly to the Furong House of my sister. I'll visit the Old Lady first and then go there." Qu Moying said.

She emphasized the word "slowly". Taking her hint instantly, Granny Miao nodded repeatedly and smiled happily, "OK, My Lady, I will take the Medical Officer there."

Granny Miao hadn't expected that Qu Moying would fetch the Medical Officer of the Imperial Hospital.

She wasn't worried about her medicinal powder. The way to prepare it was arcane, and it was alien to the Central Plains.

The Medical Officer of the Imperial Hospital could prove that the pimples on the face of the Third Lady had nothing to do with her lady. No matter which doctor came later, he wouldn't be so authoritative as Medical Officer Zhang.

Granny Miao led Medical Officer Zhang "slowly" to the Furong House. To delay, she made a long detour deliberately.

Qu Moying went to the Kangming House of the Old Lady with Yu Chun.

As soon as she walked to the door, she heard someone crying inside. She sneered. As expected, Yu came here to complain.

Seeing Qu Moying arrive, a woman servant lifted the curtain of the central room. Qu Moying entered and saw the Old Lady sitting inside and Yu crying besides. The latter's eyes were red and swollen.

"I greet grandma and Madam!" Qu Moying saluted.

Yu turned her head away to wipe tears with a handkerchief. Looking at Qu Moying, she appeared some angry.

"Ying, where did you go this morning?" The Old Lady pressed her forehead and asked with a headache. Yu had cried since the morning.

"I went to fetch a doctor for my sister." Qu Moying replied softly.

"Where did you fetch a doctor in the morning?" The Old Lady asked in surprise. Yu had fetched several doctors, but none of them could give a feasible solution. They all said she was allergic and needed a good rest.

"I fetched the doctor from the street." Qu Moying replied.

"Moying, Yan is your sister. What did you do to hurt her face so seriously? How could you be so cruel? How could you leave no mercy to her survival?" Yu's eyes became red again. She looked angrily at Qu Moying and seemed to seek justice from the latter.

"Nonsense!" The Old Lady pulled her face and rebuked. Then she told Qu Moying softly, "Now that you have fetched a doctor, take him to treat your sister!"

The Old Lady had given up hopes. She told Qu Moying to take the doctor there to ease the tension between the sisters. She always thought Qu Qiuyan and Qu Moying were not close and their worsening relationship was caused by Yu.

She kept Yu here and told Qu Moying to see her sister. No matter whether the doctor could treat Qu Qiuyan, their tension could be eased.

"Yes, grandma, I'll go now!" Qu Moying nodded.

Yu was glad. She meant to deceive Qu Moying into Qu Qiuyan's house. Unexpectedly, the Old Lady told the girl to do it before she said.

Then what happened to Qu Moying in Yan's house had nothing to do with Yu.

The Old Lady was to blame, and Yu was not related to it at all.

From her eyes, you could see she was triumphant. But for fear that the Old Lady would find it, she lowered her head at once and pretended to wipe tears with her handkerchief. She didn't raise her head, but her ears focused on Qu Moying's movement.

As expected, she heard Qu Moying walking out. Then she raised her head slightly and complacently.

However, Qu Moying stopped suddenly, turned around, and asked her, "Madam, will you go with me?"

Yu was surprised and replied hurriedly with a numb face, "I...won't. I'm afraid that if I see Yan...I can't help crying. She can't cry now. The doctors said she was too emotional. It may cause a heart attack."

Heart attack? It was a good excuse!

"Madam, won't you go for a look? I'm afraid my sister will be more emotional if she sees me." Qu Moying frowned slightly, "As you said, she may misunderstand that I hurt her face."

"She won't. I was wrong and misunderstood you. Your sister kept explaining that it had nothing to do with you. I misunderstood you!" Yu said kindly.

Hearing what Yu said, the Old Lady became more calmful. She waved and said, "Ying, go to see Yan."

"Yeah. Right. Go to see her. Perhaps the solution of your doctor will work!" Yu was nervous and afraid that Qu Moying found something, so she urged with the Old Lady.

She had negotiated with Yan before coming here that they were determined to torture the girl and blind her eyes completely by virtue of this allergic accident.

Yan was treated unfairly. Couldn't she vent her anger when she was out of control?

Yu was resentful, but she tried to pretend to be kind. Qu Moying sneered in heart. How Yu wished Qu Moying would go there at once!

Yu wouldn't go there. She said Qu Qiuyan might have a heart attack because of it. The meaning was obvious.

The so-called heart attack meant it was reasonable for Qu Qiuyan to do something unusual and even hurt Qu Moying!

The mother and her daughter were so sinister that they didn't forget to scheme against Qu Moying even now.

Luckily, Qu Moying had prepared. That was why she went to fetch Medical Officer Zhang. It was a good chance...
