

O Summoner 1111

Chapter 1111

The Pride Lizardmen are skilled dual wielding swordsmen to the point that even the dragonkins that are more powerful than them in strength are overpowered. This frustrated the dragonkin even more as they cannot take that a lower life form is looking down on them. Just like the Pride Lizardmen, the dragonkin also have very high pride.

The one currently leading them is the dragonoid, Hou Yiwei. He was given control of the dragonkin as he is a higher being compared to them. He is actually one step to awakening to become a dragon but that is still a long way to go. He must get the approval of the Elder Dragons and the Ancient Dragons.

He also partly blames himself for this situation as his weapon is the reason why the Horseman of Pestilence might not have been unsealed. He knows that some people respect him because of his strength but there are also those that grumble.

The ones that grumble are the ones that were killed by the Horsemen of Pestilence. Even more for the people that permanently died as a result of dying by the hands of a horseman. In fact, all four holders of the god slaying weapons could be seen in this battlefield. He could feel the other god slaying artifacts resonating with one another, but he must get a great achievement from this raid.

The Pride Lizardmen might just be lizardmen, but they could be called a pinnacle species that is perfect. They cannot be intimidated with the dragon blood present in the veins of the dragonkin because they are made from the Dragon of Revelation, but they are still lizardmen. The dragonkin might be getting pushed back earlier but they are now ramping up and getting more familiar to how the Pride Lizardmen fight.

The Greed Lizardmen are battling against the elves that use life, death, and elemental magic. The fight against them is mostly each other hurling spells at each other but being at a stalemate. The fight has been ongoing for quite some time, but they have not even landed a hit from either side.

Each side will have a defensive barrier up which will block any of the spells that reach them. The ones that could be said in the offensive are the elves as the Dark Elves are using death magic to weaken their enemies. Even the Greed Lizardmen cannot touch death energy as this is poisonous and deadly to them. It will not take long for them to crumble as long as the elves could keep this momentum.

The Lust Lizardmen are having a difficult time against the automatons piloted by the gnomes. They cannot easily use their charm magic as the surface of the automatons have a mechanism to disrupt magic. The Lust Lizardmen cannot touch the gnomes as well which mean they cannot absorb their energies.

The Lust Lizardmen ended up using their weapons which are in the form of whips. The whips might not be effective against the automatons, but it is effective in lengthening the range of attacks that they can make. Each of the whips have great elasticity and strength that they can leave small dents on the body of the automatons.

The Envy Lizardmen are facing the combined army of the east, west and southern continent. It would have been better if the combined army did not face against the Envy Lizardmen as they can steal spells and abilities from their enemies. Some Envy Lizardmen stole the ability of the western people to control sand while other stole the qi of the eastern people.

Some Envy Lizardmen stole the mystic arts of the southern people which made facing them a tall order. The three kinds of people from three different continents do not even have a shred of synergy which is why they are having a difficult time. They do not know each other's abilities which is why the confusion is rampant.

To add salt to the wound, the Envy Lizardmen will have great mastery over the spells and abilities that they steal. This made them face against an expert of the same caliber as them. Some might even say that the Envy Lizardmen are better because of their ingenuity.

If one were to see an army that is thriving, then that would be the Iron Legion who are facing the Gluttony Lizardmen. With their heavy armor and mighty hammers, they are pummeling the Gluttony Lizardmen. With one swing of their giant hammers, the Gluttony Lizardmen could not even dare to perform an attack.

The Iron Legion would use their hammers to destroy the large mouths of the Gluttony Lizardmen so that they cannot attack or ingest others. When the mouths of the Gluttony Lizardmen are entirely broken, the Iron Legion would then turn them into meat paste by simultaneously attacking them. The only problem that they might face is the fatigue of always swinging a gigantic hammer.

The Orc Lords are having fun against the battle with the Wrath Lizardmen. If there is one thing that orcs value more than their life, then that would be strength. This mindset is in great accordance with that of the Wrath Lizardmen as they are strength and rage incarnate.

The orc lords are enjoying themselves against such an enemy, but their army could be seen riddled with wounds. Even the heals and increased regeneration that the elves provide cannot keep up with the damage they are getting. The orc lord army could be called a bunch of meatheads as they only know strength and no strategy.

The ones facing against the Sloth Lizardmen are faring quite well but there have been sacrifices. There has been a small casualty count in order to know the threshold of pain that the Sloth Lizardmen can get before they turn into Raging Lizardmen. The sacrifices of the others were not in vain as the others managed to get detailed information about the Sloth Lizardmen that could turn the battle entirely in their favor.

The battle between the three horsemen against the dragon kings is something that shakes even the earth. Anyone that gets caught up in the battle between them will undoubtedly die just by being caught in the crossfire. Even if someone wants to intervene in the battle, they cannot even keep up with the dragon kings and will only end up being a burden.

The Fire Dragon King is in battle against the Horseman of Pestilence. The Horseman of Pestilence wields a bow and a special power to decay anything around her. This decaying power actually stems from her ability to control the death mist when she was alive.

The Fire Dragon King also noticed this and made sure that he will not easily touch the strange mist that is being emitted from the Horseman of Pestilence. The strange mist often takes the form of numerous small bugs that brings sickness, but the Fire Dragon King would just burn up his surroundings in order to not get hit by this strange aura.

The Fire Dragon King would emit burning flames on its body so that the bugs will burn up before landing on his body. The Horseman of Pestilence could only rely on her attacks using the bow that she wields. She would use arrows filled to the brim with plague carriers which will make any one hit get diseases.

Some players are even unlucky when the Fire Dragon King dodged and ended up getting instead. Even the ground that the plague arrows land upon will spread out sickness and diseases that immediately lower the fighting capability of those that are in the vicinity. This made the ones that see incoming plague arrows project barriers to protect themselves against the effect.

On the bright side, the plague arrows also affect the lizardmen summoned by the Dragon of Revelation. In essence, the plague arrows could either be a blessing or a curse as it can affect the flow of the battle. Some players even made use of this plague arrows by using wind magic to redirect it into the area where the lizardmen are.

The Horseman of Famine is against the Light Dragon King that has mysterious abilities. The Light Dragon King will often vanish into thin air as if she blends in her surroundings. At first, the Horseman of Famine would use her scales to increase the gravity of the area where the Light Dragon King was, but her attacks cannot connect.

When the Horseman of Famine's attention is focused on the previous area where the Light Dragon King was, the Light Dragon King would suddenly appear behind the former and launch a full breath attack. The Horseman of Famine would get hit by the breath attack but would use her powers to change the rules of the world to increase her defenses.

Unfortunately for the Horseman of Famine, the attacks of the Light Dragon King cannot be easily defended against as her attacks have a penetrating effect because of the light element. The light element is also harmful against the Horseman of Famine because it applies a stack of Lux that explodes when a number has been stacked.

The Horseman of Famine could also not hit the Light Dragon King as she would suddenly burst out into flashes of light when an attack comes at her. The battle between the two is one-sided because of the supremacy that the Light Dragon King holds. The only problem for this battle is that the Light Dragon King is using more energy than what she thought she would use.

She might be a Dragon King but that does not mean she has unlimited energy. She will tire up eventually which is why she is making sure to finish the battle before the Horseman of Famine could overpower her. The Horseman of Famine is not showing any signs of weakening despite getting large amounts of damage. The battle between them will be difficult to predict the winner.

The Horseman of Death is in battle against the Dark Dragon King. Some of their powers are the same such as they grow powerful by sapping the strength of those that die around them. The Horseman of Death and the Dark Dragon King is even decimating the lizardmen that spawn near them which increases their powers.

The Horseman of Death will heal whenever he kills any type of living being while the Dark Dragon King will get stronger stat wise when he kills anything around him. The Dark Dragon King also has a breath attack that applies a stack of Blight that also corrodes the mana of anyone hit. The Horseman of Death and the Dark Dragon King have more in common than they thought.

The area where the Horseman of Death and the Dark Dragon King has been fighting is labeled as the 'Instant Death Zone'. Any living being regardless of affiliation will surely die whenever they enter that area. Even the lizardmen that knows to never retreat are afraid of that area.

The Horseman of Death and the Dark Dragon King also exude aura abilities that affect their surroundings. The Horseman of Death uses its aura to pressure any living being around it to death while the Dark Dragon King has an aura that makes any living being around it to get swallowed by darkness itself. If Sirius was still alive then he would have found a companion with the Dark Dragon King.

The Dragon of Revelation is currently being held at bay by the Daemos Corps but even they cannot easily hold back a monster of such caliber. The Daemos Corps can only seal up its movement using origin magic spells. They use spells that can deter and buy time instead of damaging spells because the Dragon of Revelation could brush off their attacks.

When the Dragon of Revelation will use breath attacks using its seven heads, the Daemos Corps would use a spell called Space Retraction to shrink space. They would shrink the space around the mouth of the Dragon of Revelation so that the breath attack will not get released and just explode at the mouth of the dragon.

When the Dragon of Revelation would use its numerous heads to try and bite the Daemos Corps, they would use Chrono Shift and Chrono Lag to buy time to evade. Despite being a large being, the Dragon of Revelation is extremely quick to the point that the Daemos Corps needs to be vigilant with their surroundings. One mistake and their lives will be forfeited which they do not want because the Daemos are already small in number.

"To think that our attempt to kill the Horseman of Death would become so pitiful." Anastacia stated as she looked at the remaining members of the Evergreen guild.

"It is not your fault. Who knew that there would be people that will betray us when we are almost successful? I was not even able to raise those that died because I been struck by holy magic that originates from angels. If I was fast enough then I would have evaded the Chains of Light and revived those that died from the dragon roar." Creepysoo stated as he drank potions to recover.

"It is not your fault that you cannot revive them. They have been infected by that strange miasma from the Horseman of Death. I cannot even revive them even if I tried as they cannot be revived. If Equinox was present, then it would be a different ending as he could just rewind time." Levin Cloud stated as he just revived from death. He was fortunate enough to not get infected by the miasma of the Horseman of Death.

"Vayu and Kabrakan died as they were near the Dragon of Revelation when it surfaced. Lycan is out of commission as the wounds he received cannot be healed for some reason. Soleil is already incredibly tired and will take time to recover." Solstice reported as she just reformed from pools of blood.

"How is Big Brother Equinox though?" Soleil asked as all of them looked at the demon lying on the ground with a white bird on top of him.

"He is still unconscious." Mariposa replied but one could see that her butterfly wings being incredibly damaged.

All the people from the initial raid party are reduced to a miserable number and state. To make matters worse, they are now looking at the others with shaky eyes as there might be others that will betray them. The trust that they had for each other crumble just like that because of the betrayal of a few people.

"Do not be disheartened children. Life is full of ups and downs but that does not mean you must never trust someone again just because a few has betrayed yours. If you are going to blame people, then you should blame the proper ones." Ascalor stated as the three of them walked towards Adrian to check his condition.

"How is his condition?" Bronx asked Koronn as the latter inspected Adrian.

"His body is corroded by something but something strange is happening." Koronn replied.

"Is he going to be alright?" Levin Cloud asked.

"He will be fine for now. You all have done great in making sure that the brat is alive. You also held out well against the Horseman of Death. You would have won if nothing happened but that is how those angel's work." Ascalor stated.

"They look beautiful to the conventional sense of humans because of the indoctrination but their real attitudes are despicable. I would rather believe a devil than them." Koronn stated.

"We shall guard the young one in your stead. Please rejoin the battle as your strength will be needed to win this time. We shall also rejoin the battle once we get enough energy." Bronx stated.

"We cannot heal ourselves because of what the Horseman of Death did to us. We will just become a burden in this battle." Solstice stated.

"We shall help you this time. It is such a shame that those that died have already transported to Limbo or else we might have been able to do something." Ascalor stated.

"All of you group up." Koronn stated as Bronx guided the others as well.

The three Daemos Elders suddenly shifted to their true forms for a slight second as all those that were still alive from the first battle got marked. The marked that they receive is similar to a small clock on their chests. The clock did not move at first, but it suddenly started to when the Daemos Elders transferred some of their mana.

The clock did not move forward but reversed instead as the injured bodies of the group suddenly started to heal quickly. To accurately describe what is happening to them then the time on their bodies is getting rewound. All the damage that they have accumulated vanished as if it never happened because that is what happened.

"Cool! Even my skills got their cooldowns revoked." Creepysoo shouted as his body and even his skills got rewound.

"It is cool as you brats say it, but it also comes at a cost. All the experience and mastery that you have accumulated also got rewound as we interfered with time to bring your bodies back to a time before the battle." Koronn explained as they did not simply heal them.

"That much is understandable if all our skills and abilities are refreshed." Peridot stated.

"If you can rewind time then why not do so for Equinox?" Levin Cloud asked.

"Equinox' body is already filled with that strange miasma. Even if we revert time, he will still have that strange miasma as it is already bonded to his body. All we can do now is pray that he will overcome this predicament." Ascalor stated.

"Also, temporal magic is slightly ineffective against fellow demons. If Equinox himself used Rewind on himself then he might have a chance, but an outside factor will be dangerous for him. The best chance that he has now is to kill off the one that infected him with that strange miasma." Bronx stated.

"If that is the case then our first target will be the Horseman of Death." Levin Cloud stated.

"We shall aid you as well." Anastacia stated and Siegfried and Ain joined in.

"You guys do not need to do that as you need to recuperate the loss you got earlier by killing off as much of those lizardmen. We can deal with the Horseman of Death." Levin Cloud stated as this event turned into a different one when the Dragon of Revelation got summoned.

"That would leave a sour taste in our mouth. We must take revenge against the Horseman of Death as well. It has taken much of our comrades. We must do it for them." Siegfried stated.

"I thought you were just a muscle head, but it seems that you also know how to say things that could inspire others." Ain stated with a slight chuckle.

"It seems that we are all in agreement. We shall kill off the Horseman of Death to unlock our secret weapon." Anastacia stated as she suddenly thought of Adrian as a secret weapon.

"It seems that I cannot say anything else to persuade you guys. Good luck to us. We shall need it." Levin Cloud stated as they started to plan what their next course of action are.

"I think we made a good decision." Ascalor stated as he looked at the invigorated energy of Adrian's friends.

"They are the friends of the brat so they also like children to us. We only spent a couple mana on them, and they are already this happy." Koronn stated.

"I guess you two really are secretly friends." Bronx stated which made Koronn and Ascalor argue that the former's statement is not true.

In fact, the mana that they used is not little because they reverted time for numerous individuals. They also needed to protect themselves from the backlash of the Providence as they messed with the natural time of others. The Daemos Elders cannot return to their peak as of now because of the deployed spell.

If they are to regain their powers, then they will only be able to get back to about 50%. The Divine tier spell that they cast also dealt a backlash on them because only gods should be able to cast things like that. Even if they got aid from the sigils, a divine tier spell should not be cast so easily.

Some lizardmen are getting defeated while some are in a stalemate. In terms of saying who is the winning side then the united army that the demons summoned is stronger. This is only possible because each race knows what they must focus on.

It would have been easy if this is the only thing that they need to do but they also must pay attention to what is happening in their surroundings. The lizardmen that only moved in one group suddenly started to mix with each other. The battle suddenly became chaotic due to this incident which created chaos.

The battlefield is already chaotic but the new group that entered will make it even more chaotic. Creepysoo is extremely excited as all his skills got reverted back and he even got back to full health and mana. Creepysoo chanted silently as a top hat suddenly dropped down from the sky.

The top hat is decorated in an eerie fashion with skulls and bones, but he found it quite fashionable. Creepysoo took off his hood and wore the top hat that dropped towards his location. His body started to illuminate in a pale light as if he is ascending.

"God of Death's Descent: Baron Samedi!" Creepysoo stated as a casket suddenly appeared behind him and sucked his body inside.

The people fighting suddenly felt their ears tingle as they could hear party music. They thought that they were only hearing things, but the Dragon of Revelation took notice of this. The Dragon of Revelation could feel the energy of a god descending and immediately released a powerful breath attack.

The casket that sucked Creepysoo did not move at all and would seem to get hit but a golden pillar of light descended on it. The breath attack that is on the level of a nuclear attack did not do any damage to the casket as Levin Cloud already activated Holy Sanctuary to keep the casket safe.

"Are you ready to PARTY!" A boyish voice sounded from inside the casket as the lid burst open.

As if time stopped for all those in the battle as they waited what is inside that casket. A loud laugh and merry band music started to play. Creepysoo that is now in a gentleman's suit appeared, but the suit has the motif of skeletons. His eyes also glowed green, but his aura changed as a divine presence could be felt from him.

"THE PARTY IS THIS WAY!" Creepysoo shouted as numerous undead started to flow out of the casket.

The undead that flowed out from the casket are none other than the undead players that were not transported to the battle area as they were not part of the pact. The undead players thought that they were seeing things when a casket suddenly appeared in front of them but the notification to attend the party of the God of Death Baron Samedi is very enticing.

The party that they thought would be fun and games is actually the battle against the Dragon of Revelation. This raid party is definitely more enticing than the party that they thought of. Only powerful undead players were asked to come though as weaker ones would just be fodder.

"Now that the party has started, we should spice it up a bit more since we have many new friends scattered about. The more the merrier I suppose." Creepysoo stated as a powerful aura rushed out of him that appears as a pale mist.

"RISE!" Creepysoo stated one word but all attention focused on him because all those that died in the battlefield became undead.

"RISE!"

One word echoed throughout the battlefield that got the attention of all the living beings. The chills that the living felt could be pinpointed to one interaction and that is the death rising from their graves. The mist of death energy swallowed the whole battlefield to which all beings could feel.

Numerous beings that died rose from the ground as the got raised from the dead. The whole area is also filled with death energy that came from Baron Samedi's death realm. Even the undead that are summoned look like they came to party as they looked dressed for the occasion.

Creepysoo just sat atop the casket that he went out of as it is also a platform for him. It not only provided him vantage point, but it also connected him to the death realm. If he is to fight and use spells when disconnected with the casket, then he can only revive a few thousand undead.

The casket makes his powers become exponential, but it also makes him unable to move. Thankfully for Creepysoo, all of his skills are reset, and this means the death of his undead knights are also reset as well. He summoned his undead knights and tasked them with leading the undead horde while some protected him.

The summoning of the undead is not something that they have expected as they were not summoned earlier. This changed the tides of battle as they can no manage to cull the lizardmen that is ever increasing. The surprises are not yet finished though as the area that seemed to have no life started to sprout life.

Anastacia also activated Goddess Descent and an aspect of the Goddess of Life descended into the battlefield. The thing that descended on her is not the actual goddess but the aspect of her that is a part of her. Nevertheless, the power her spells that she used is also amplified as the earth itself is starting to get terraformed.

Her powers also got amplified because Levin Cloud once again summoned a part of the Tree of Life and Death that got unsummoned when he got sealed. When the Tree of Life and Death once again taken root, it showed a more beautiful appearance as the area is now lush with life and death energy. With the presence of the Tree of Life and Death, the undead and the living started to get boosted beyond measure.

[Health Regeneration has been boosted by 200%]

[Mana Regeneration has been boosted by 100%]

[All life attribute spells has been boosted by 100%]

[All death attribute spells has been boosted by 100%.]

[All damage using death magic has a small chance to execute the enemy. (This cannot be applied to raid bosses.)]

"Guardian of the Forest!" Levin Cloud stated as he got covered with numerous vines and showed his true form.

A gigantic giant made of lush leaves and dead barks appeared before everyone. If anyone did not see Levin Cloud transforming, then they might have confused him with an enemy because of the horrifying and beautiful form that he took. After transforming to his true form, Levin Cloud immediately activated the form that will make him deal damage.

The bipedal giant Leshy suddenly transformed to a glaive wielding centaur and leshy hybrid. Levin Cloud will deal damage but the damage that he deals in this form will heal those in his surroundings. The giant being in the fight is not only Levin Cloud but there are others as well. One to note is a giant flaming lion that as hot as a sun.

Regulus is once again summoned by Soleil and this time she is riding the flaming lion. Any lizardmen that encounters her, and Regulus are either crushed or burned to death because of their might. She also gave the Flame Enchant buff just because of being near her.

The next giant being to note is Hou Yiwei as he transformed to a dragon himself. Dragonoids are not fully dragons yet as they have yet to fully understand their draconic form since they are ascended Persona of dragonkin. He might only have a few minutes in this form, but he must not lose his spotlight when many others are also using their full forms.

Peridot also changed to her full dragon form as she mustered every element in her disposal to help the group. She mainly used elemental support magic, but a great support is what they need right now. If a support player is godly in her control, then no one will die under her watch. Peridot did exactly that as she used her spells to make sure that their allies will live or escape death.

"The young ones are really pumped up. I should do so as well. I call upon the moon to bless a being that loves her." Solstice stated.

Solstice made use of the spell to call upon the moon. She made sure to call upon a New Moon so that she can maximize her strength in this battle. Thankfully for her, there is not many people here that relies upon the blessing of the sun. Her golden armor soon turned to one that is made with shadows as her red hair and eyes reflected the moonlight.

"So much blood. The harvest is upon us. The Bloody Queen of the Night!" Solstice stated as all the blood that is generated in all the fights suddenly started to gather towards her.

Even the players could not believe that the blood generated by their cuts and wounds would fly towards a specific area where a beautiful woman is standing. The blood that she has collected could be seen floating above her head as a giant blood ball.

She held out her hands and two crimson blades materialized out of her hands. The giant blood ball on top of her dropped to the ground and made a giant pool of blood. The most interesting thing that happened is the pool of blood actually following Solstice whenever she fights.

When she sheds the blood of her victims or when her allies bleed, all that blood will go to the blood pool. She created numerous blood weapons that targeted the area around her. Even if she gets damaged, she will just absorb a part of the blood pool to heal herself.

This is the battle style of the vampire nobility of the purest blood as they make use of the blood, they spill to become immortals of the battlefield. This is what also made the living be afraid of the Child of the Night as they will never die as long as blood is spilled.

Anastacia is not the only one that is of the three guild leaders that is eye catching. Siegfried could be seen wielding his axe that is filled with great power and blowing groups of lizardmen into the air. Ain, on the other hand, is more sneaky and agile in his attacks as he used his Martial Sage Arts to quickly dispose of his enemies.

The tide of the battle could be said to turn in their favor when these people have acted. It is not that the previous people were weak, but they held themselves back. When Levin Cloud and the others started to showboat and reveal their strengths, the others naturally did so as well. The competitive spirit of the others flared up when they saw the powerful abilities of everyone else.

"The young ones have achieved their intended purpose. We should move as well because the Daemos Corps will not be able to hold on for that long against the Dragon of Revelation." Bronx stated.

"Are you not out of energy? The only reason we are not passing out because we have resilient bodies." Koronn grumbled.

"We should prepare the Perfect Cube just in case. Let us start." Ascalor stated but they suddenly felt a huge surge of energy from behind them. All of them looked at the unconscious lying body beside them that is Adrian.

In his inner subconscious, Adrian could be seen forcefully making the nether energy in his body devour the strange miasma that is plaguing it. At first, he was unsuccessful as the nether energy did not want even a bite, but Adrian forcefully made the nether energy in his body devour the strange miasma.

When the nether energy started to devour the strange miasma at small amounts, Adrian felt delighted as he succeeded in his first attempt. What he did not expect is that the nether energy started to devour the strange miasma in a voracious fashion. He also needs to consolidate the newly transformed energy into his body, or he will explode as well.

Adrian will need to control the nether energy in his body as his body will break down if he cannot contain it. Worst case scenario would be his body leaking out uncontrolled nether energy that is much deadlier than any type of energy in this mortal realm. If nether energy is not contained properly then only a horrifying death awaits them.

The battle against the Dragon of Revelation is becoming even more heated up. The Daemos Corps could barely hold onto the seals that they placed on the Dragon of Revelation. The Daemos Corps used numerous space sealing spells to make sure that the summoning magic circle does not proceed.

The Dragon of Revelation is not giving up when it comes making its full body appear in the mortal realm. It has been trapped in Hell for quite some time and it wants to have freedom. When it rises from to the mortal realm, it shall destroy it first and then proceed to destroy Hell next.

The Dragon of Revelation is relatively biding its time when it comes to its unsealing as it knew that the demons would tire out eventually. What the Dragon of Revelation did not expect is that it felt the energy of one of its torturers in Hell. The Dragon of Revelation could feel the energy of a Devil and a high ranking one at that.

The Dragon of Revelation's mind that is in turmoil suddenly became fixed to the direction of a woman and a teenage looking devil. All seven heads of the Dragon of Revelation then gazed at that direction and opened their mouths. All seven dragon heads converge energy into their throats and fired seven breath attacks.

The Daemos Corps immediately deployed a shield to at least lessen the impact of the attacks as they seemed to be targeted at a specific direction. The Daemos Corps created a type of barrier made of force that is similar to what Bronx uses but in a wider scale. The force barrier managed to hold off two shots of the breath attack but the remaining five are still flying towards the intended direction.

The three dragon kings knew that numerous casualties would arise if those breath attacks will land which is why they are pressed whether to help the others defend or stall the horsemen. The three dragon kings decided to do the former as they would also be backed into a corner if the others fall here.

The fire dragon king became a living embodiment of fire as he tanked the breath attack with his body and the attack exploded in mid-air. The fire dragon king could be seen damage a little bit and some of its scales are chipped off, but he is still alive. The fire dragon king thought that he was safe, but the Horseman of Pestilence made use of his current slightly weak state to attack him.

The fire dragon king suddenly got filled with numerous diseases and got weakened. The bruises that the fire dragon king has received made the bugs that the horseman of pestilence get inside his skin. The fire dragon king dropped to the ground.

The fire dragon king got weakened due to the power of the horseman of pestilence. Thankfully, there are no players or allies in the location where the fire dragon king dropped. The horseman of pestilence thought that it could get a good blow on the fire dragon king, but the gigantic body of the dragon king got covered in vines.

With Anastacia and Levin Cloud's presence in the battlefield, any great damage could be healed instantly. Levin Cloud focused more on the protection and support healing aspect while Anastacia focused on the healing and cleansing aspect. The fire dragon king that got covered in vines got cleansed of its weakened state and even recovered great amounts of health.

The fire dragon king looked at the people that healed it and admitted in his heart that he has a great debt to them. The fire dragon king once again unleashed his fury upon the Horseman of Pestilence as they once again got embroiled in a fierce battle.

Another breath attack got blocked by the light dragon king as she created a prismatic barrier that blocked the blow. The prismatic barrier is made of light that became physical manifestations. When the breath attack hit the prismatic barrier, the barrier shattered into numerous shards to which the light dragon king used to make a prism storm.

The prism storm that the light dragon king created is directed towards the Horseman of Famine that she battled. The Horseman of Famine shook her scales and made the prism storm directed at her to be dispersed by an unknown force. She also increased the gravity around the light dragon king which sent the latter crashing down.

The light dragon king did not crash to the ground because she dispersed into particles of light. The Horseman of Famine already expected this as she used her power to invert the area where the light dragon king dispersed. The area suddenly got flooded with darkness which is the opposite of the light dragon king.

When the darkness spread throughout the area, the light dragon king's body is suddenly shown. The Horseman of Famine immediately increased the gravity of the light dragon king which caused her to come crashing to the ground. The Horseman of Famine did not stop there as she tried to affect the light dragon king with her power to overturn the truths of the world.

The light dragon king's body started to see visible corruption of darkness. Her white scales that looked like diamonds started to discolor. The light dragon king looked very much in pain, but she endured as she tried to use a spell called Lux Explosion. The spell did not activate as the light dragon king is severely weakened by the darkness tainting her body.

When the light dragon king is about to succumb to the darkness, a gem made of pure gold light suddenly came dropping to the sky on top of the light dragon king. The gem of pure gold suddenly emitted a bright flash of light that expelled the darkness tainting the light dragon king. The light dragon king noticed her savior and it is none other than another of the dragon race, but they liked to be called Ryujin.

She wanted to express her gratitude, but she could not do so immediately as she needed to deal with the Horseman of Famine. Three more shots of the breath attack remained, but the dark dragon king also blocked one of the shots as he made a vortex of darkness that swallowed one. The vortex of darkness that the dark dragon king made shattered when the last two shots impacted it.

It would have been fine if the vortex of darkness is only made of magic, but the dark dragon king used his shadow as a medium for that magic as well. The shadow of the dark dragon king also got damaged when it shattered which created an opportunity for the Horseman of Death to send his scythe flying towards the dragon king's chest.

The scythe accurately hit the chest of the dark dragon king and he crashed to the ground with it still embedded in it. The strange miasma that flowed through Adrian also started to flow towards the dark dragon king as he started to weaken. What the dark dragon king did not expect is that a small mummy suddenly materialized in front of it.

Even though the small mummy is an undead, the dark dragon king wanted it to escape as it knew that they were his allies in this battle. The Horseman of Death seemed to ignore this mummy, but it could feel great energy from its body. It is an energy of a god of death which coarse in its body and also the aura of a king.

"Unlock the First Seal of Tut: Titan!" Creepysoo suddenly shouted from afar as he commanded Mummie to unlock the first seal placed on him.

When Creepysoo got Mummie as an undead knight, the only condition for this would be to always be around him for the ancient mummy has been alone since it woke up from being an undead. Each undead knight has strict conditions, but Mummie is different as his condition is the easiest, but he is also the strongest of all the undead knights.

There are very few undeads that have the aura of a king as kings often become lesser gods when they die. Mummie is also different as he is said to have been a descendant of a God King in the Western Continent which means he has both divinity and royalty running in his body. Due to this, Mummie was placed with numerous seals when it transformed into an undead so that he will not become an undead disaster.

When Creepysoo commanded Mummie to unlock the first seal, an ankh suddenly appeared and passed through the undead mummy's body. As the ankh passed through the body of the undead mummy, Mummie could be seen becoming incredibly bulky and he grew to a height of ten meters. The giant mummy then took hold of the scythe and tried to pull it out from the chest of the dark dragon king.

The scythe that should not have been easily pulled out got removed from the dark dragon king.

Mummie, which is now in its Titan form, pulled out the scythe that the Horseman of Death uses. Since the scythe has been pulled out, the dark dragon king is no longer being tainted at an alarming rate. The strange miasma is still present in his body, but it is no longer progressing faster than before.

The dark dragon king grunted and its body that is getting tainted with the strange miasma suddenly exploded in energy. One of the magics that dragons with the darkness attributes uniquely possess is called Elemental Devour. Dark dragons could easily swallow any attacks or energy of a different element into their body and turn it into energy.

With the dark dragon king no longer being corroded at an astonishing pace, the dark dragon king managed to activate this ability and instantly turned the strange miasma into its energy. The conversion is not complete though as there are still signs that the dark dragon king is infected with the strange miasma albeit at a miniscule amount.

The dark dragon king emitted a dragon roar as if to boost the morale of its own troops. With the new energy that he got; the dark dragon king could recover what he has lost when he blocked one of the breath attacks. He once again flew to the sky and battled with the Horseman of Death with the intention to finish the battle.

Two more orb like projectiles made of pure energy is still hurling towards Cersei. She knew that it is coming towards her because Vepar already warned her that the Dragon of Revelation does not take kindly to the devils that were its captors and wardens in a sense.

Just as she thought that she will get hit and die as she does not have a means to protect herself, another being blocked one of the breath attacks. It was none other than a woman with a beautiful armor that is said to sparkle in platinum and gold. She also held a spear with a rose motif on her hands and rides a Pegasus.

It was Frey that blocked one of the breath attacks as she used a skill to make herself invulnerable. Not only that she takes no damage, any attacks or spells that hits her will disappear upon doing so but it can only be used once every hour. This skill is called Golden Time and is one of the core abilities of the Valkyries.

"It might be doable." Vepar stated as he suddenly tried to presume his original form, but Cersei is still too weak for him to do so.

One could see visible chains trying to restrict Vepar of actually descending to the world, but he cannot. Vepar could feel that the restraints of the world became loose because of the Dragon of Revelation. He fears that the damned angels have succeeded in their plan, but he knows the truth.

"If the gate to Silver City is unsealed then so shall the seal to the Infernal City." Vepar thought but he still tried his best to temporarily assume his true form.

Vepar knew that not all devils are like him that has interest in humanity. Some are also conquerors and schemers to pass their immortal lifetimes in a fun way. He needed to prevent that from happening as he cannot exert his dominance because he has ascended to godhood and gods could barely contain any of the people in the mortal realm.

"Cersei darling, take care of yourself as I will be silent for a while due to protecting you from this attack. Beware of angels and demons while I cannot directly speak with you." Vepar stated as he suddenly created a huge orb of water to nullify the last breath attack.

When the breath attack hit the huge water orb, the water orb immediately turned into vapor, but the people are safe. Vepar vanished and Cersei could feel that Vepar cannot talk to her as even the icon to summon him is grayed out with a timer for one week. Cersei floated down to the ground as it took quite a lot of her to summon Vepar.

The Dragon of Revelation knew that its attack failed but it felt triumphant that the energy of the devils is no longer present in its area. When the Dragon of Revelation had this jolly expression on its face, the Daemos Elders started their moves as a cube suddenly formed around the dragon. The Dragon of Revelation could see that it was the Daemos elders that trapped it.

The spell Perfect Cube is a complete prison that stops the flow of time inside and also makes the one trapped unable to release spells. The Dragon of Revelation could still be seen able to move despite being trapped with the Perfect Cube, but the Daemos elders already expected as such. Since the Dragon of Revelation is part divine being, spells and abilities to stop time that can affect it should only be in the Divine tier as well.

The spell Perfect Cube is a Transcendent tier spell that locks up space and time inside which means it cannot fully affect the Dragon of Revelation. There is still an effect on the magic circle that summoned the Dragon of Revelation though as it stopped functioning or rather became still. As long as the Perfect Cube spell is active, the Dragon of Revelation will not be able to take flight in the mortal realm.

The players and NPCs fighting against the Dragon of Revelation thought that they can finally take a breather, but things are much more than it seems. The Dragon of Revelation tried to examine the Perfect Cube spell by bashing its heads on it and even firing breath attacks. When the Dragon of Revelation knew that it cannot break free from its own, it hatched a plan that took the world by surprise.

"Hear me pitiful creatures! I shall give you the chance to take my side and gain power beyond your belief. As long as you help free me from my prison then I shall reward all of you handsomely. In fact, I shall give you a taste right now!" The Dragon of Revelation stated as all players across the world suddenly received a notification.

The passive skills that the title temporarily gives is definitely something that any of the players want. It is a passive skill that could increase Perception by a hundred percent. Perception is related to reaction time and thoughts which is a great boost for any type of player. The Terror of the End is also a great skill to get as Horrify status ailments is a great game changer.

For every ten stacks of terror, the afflicted being will have a one percent decrease in stats. When they get the Horrify status ailment, the afflicted being will be trapped in a horrifying illusion for five seconds. The affliction time could be decreased due to tenacity, but the catch is that the Horrify status ailment cannot be cleansed by purification spells below the Epic tier.

Cleansing spells that are epic tier and above usually have high cooldowns which means the Horrify status ailment could dictate the flow of the game. All players received this notification but those in battle cannot look at it due to the nature of the battle against the Dragon of Revelation. The other players that were not participating in the fight have a different opinion though.

One by one, the players accepted the proposition as they will have rewards based on the contribution. To make it even more enticing, there is no negative implication towards them should they fail. The most handsome reward is also the first place which is becoming an envoy of a god. The Dragon of Revelation might not be one of the holy gods in Pandemonium, but it is still a god. All the players that were jealous of powerful envoy players immediately jumped to this opportunity.

A lot of players accepted the proposal of the Dragon of Revelation. With a mighty roar, the Dragon of Revelation exerted its power to warp reality and create some sort of passageway for those that accepted its offer. A red stormy mist came out from behind the Dragon of Revelation and numerous players started to come out of it.

The players that were summoned are majority members of the Followers of the Dark Gods. Unlike what others thought that followers of the dark gods, they are not all envoys as only those specifically chosen can become one. The position to becoming an envoy is also rather shaky and is difficult to get chosen.

The fact that the reward for coming first in the contribution list for this becoming an envoy is the most wanted prize. The Horsemen of the Apocalypse do not like this, but they could care less about the world that abandoned them. All they have in their hearts is the annihilation of the world. They wish for the universe to be annihilated and the creator to remake it.

The lizardmen that were getting pushed back suddenly evened the scales with the addition of the players. The increase in Perception and the passive skill to apply the Horrify status ailment is something game changing indeed. Still, the players cannot easily overpower the powerful NPCs, but they are more coming as many accepted the offer.

The power of the Dragon of Revelation also slightly weakened because it created temporary contracts with all those that came to its call. It needed to sacrifice a small portion of its power in order to be able to rally a great number of followers. It is not only players that answered the call though as there are even powerful sentient monsters that received the invitation.

The most powerful of the monsters that answered the call of the Dragon of Revelation is a Venomous Wyrn. The Venomous Wyrn wants to become a member of the Dragon of Revelation's body and ascend to become a full-blooded dragon. Many monsters that have dragon blood also answered the call as they hoped that they will be blessed with dragon blood to help them become a true dragon.

The Dragon of Revelation did not disappoint them as it said that those loyal to it will be rewarded. The number of monsters and players that entered the opposition is not something to be disregarded. To make matters worse, the army fighting against the Dragon of Revelation could be seen having tired faces as they have been fighting for quite a while.

The tides of the battle soon shifted in the favor of the side of the Dragon of Revelation. The only reason that the side against the Dragon of Revelation could easily battle is due to the fact that they have the Envoy of Life and Envoy of the Twin Gods with them. Just those two alone could easily heal numerous members of an army as they specialize in healing large areas.

Even now, the grass that they are standing on is under the influence of the two. They are continuously pouring their life energy and mana into the soil to increase the healing effect. With the help of the Tree of Life and Death, the healing is also boosted as well.

One could see Anastacia creating green butterfly shaped leaves wander around the battlefield to heal those injured. Levin Cloud, on the other hand, heals the area that he stands in as long as he is in the vanguard form of his true form. Although, Levin Cloud could be seen riddled with small wounds as well because of the numerous enemies that targeted him. To add more enemies on his way, the Venomous Wyrn that arrived also targeted him for some reason.

Knowing that he will endanger more people if he stays where there are lots of players, Levin Cloud decided to lure the Venomous Wyrn to another area. As if the others expected it or by instinct, they all shifted their attention to helping Levin Cloud. Creepysoo commanded his Undead Knight Robin Hoodie to assist him.

Solstice also stopped her indiscriminate slaughter of the lizardmen to try and kill the Venomous Wyrn with her friends, but she suddenly got circled by numerous players. It is not just Solstice that got circled by numerous players but also Creepysoo, Ain, Siegfried, and Peridot.

It seems that the high-level players that accepted the task of the Dragon of Revelation decided to kill them first. It seems that they deduced that the battle turned tides when these people entered the battle. They know that they need to kill their group first in order to succeed and they are also tagged by the Dragon of Revelation as priority targets.

"I did not know that I was a famous person that a lot of people are fawning over me." Solstice stated as she is still bathe in the blood of her enemies.

"Clear the blood! As long as she cannot access that then we shall win." One of the players stated.

"She is the sister of the Demon so be very careful." Another player warned as she is surrounded by them.

The only reason that Solstice got surrounded is the fact that she charged closer into enemy lines. She basically healed as much as she got damaged since her skill is active. Some of the players on Solstice's side wanted to help her as well but the other players summoned by the Dragon of Revelation blocked them.

"It seems that they wanted to kill me first, but they should only made elites handle me." Solstice thought as she smiled.

It is not that she is bragging about her strength, but numbers are not great against vampires. There is a reason why Vampire Hunters often work in twos or alone. The more blood that will be shed then the stronger the vampires will become. A True Vampire like Solstice is even more dangerous when it comes to this phrase.

"Blood Throne!" Solstice stated as she has satisfied the requirement for the skill to activate.

The blood red pond that she has accumulated suddenly started to coagulate and form into a throne. The air around Solstice also started to change as if the great aura of nobility has descended. A blood red throne suddenly formed behind Solstice which surprised everyone around her.

They are not only surprised by the throne but the air in the area also started to become heavy. Even some of the powerful NPCs looked at Solstice because they know that throne. It is the special skill that the most powerful Progenitor of Vampires once used. It is said that those that can summon the Blood Throne will lead all the vampires.

The players knew that they are caught in a trap but does not know what kind. They can feel the ominous power emanating from that throne, but they know that they could kill Solstice as long as they worked together. What they did not know is that they missed the opportunity because she already summoned it.

The sound of heavy music played by an organ can be heard when the Blood Throne emerged. Solstice's armor that is made of shadows also changed as some of the blood became red mist that weaved into her armor to create a gown fit for a queen. Even a blood red tiara made of blood floated on her head as if crowning her the Blood Queen.

The players do not know why they cannot move as they stared at Solstice walk towards the throne and sat with such a domineering yet elegant posture. When she sat down on the Blood Throne, an even more powerful pressure pressed upon those near her while the lizardmen locked their attention on her and charged towards her.

The Blood Throne is made up mostly of the blood of the lizardmen which is why they are enraged upon seeing it. Solstice did not mind that though as she radiated the energy of a monarch when she sat down. The players finally snapped out of the pressure that Solstice emanated and tried attacking her but they small in front of her.

When the players looked at Solstice sitting upon the Blood Throne, they suddenly felt small and insignificant as if a god was looking down on them. Still, some of them carried with their attacks when they saw the lizardmen charging towards her. The players got carried away by the intense emotion of the lizardmen but that only provided them with their demise.

Solstice did not even think of blinking or running away when she saw the number of enemies charging towards her. Instead, she is even smiling happily as their blood could extend the duration of the Blood Throne skill. Their blood will be the sacrifice she needs to show her power.

"The Impaler." Solstice stated and the next scene shocked those that were watching. They did not expect a horrifying scene to emerge from just two words.

"The Impaler." Solstice stated as her voice reverberated around her.

As soon as Solstice said the skill name, the blood pond that is below her feet suddenly turned into numerous blood red spikes. The most horrifying scene also gave birth to this moment as numerous players and NPCs got impaled.

Some even got impaled by their whole body with the blood spike coming out of the head. It gave rise to such horror that some viewers even barfed when they were watching while eating. Numerous players got killed as the power of the Blood Throne is synonymous to the volume of blood that is collected.

Solstice did not just collect blood because it healed her, but it was for this very moment. The only weakness of this skill is that she will not be able to leave the area as she must sit on the Blood Throne to activate all the abilities that it gives. The Blood Throne gives two sub skills that deal area of effect and one sub skill that can buff and heal allies.

All the skills that are provided by the Blood Throne are extremely powerful to the point that the numbers are insane. The skill does have a great weakness though as the Blood Throne will lose effect if all the blood disappears or it disintegrates. This is the reason why Solstice needs to time all her skills perfectly.

"Bloodbath!" Solstice stated as she activated the buff skill immediately.

All the players and NPC allies that they have suddenly have this red aura around them. Their weapons seem to have this sharpness to them as well because they applied Bleed to their attacks. The Bleed might only be limited to physical attacks but that is still a great help for Solstice.

When the players and NPCs died due to being impaled, they eerily left a skull being impaled by a thin blood spike. Just this effect alone made the players not want to deal with Solstice, but the Dragon of Revelation commanded them to kill her. The Dragon of Revelation felt the aura of an Overlord from her which are peak existences in this world.

"To think that did not scare them enough. The Blood Moon!" Solstice muttered as she activated the second area of effect skill available.

The sky that is filled with dark clouds suddenly moved as a giant blood moon rose from it. The blood moon looked ominous as if it signified the bloody war happening right now. Solstice sat on the Blood Throne while basking on the red ominous light that the blood moon gave her.

She looked like a powerful goddess sitting with her background being the blood moon. As if waiting for her to make a signal, the blood moon suddenly illuminated in a crimson glow. Solstice selected the area around her as the target since there are numerous enemies charging at her.

The people charging at Solstice thought that all she did is a mere bluff since nothing is happening but soon found out their delusion. Numerous crimson rays of light shot down from the blood moon as if giving judgement to those below them. Since the crimson light rays were randomly hitting, some people did not get hit but that also added more to the chaos.

Players that are safe from the crimson light rays tried to escape only to be hit a few seconds later. This crimson light show lasted for at least ten seconds and left the area completely devastated. The crimson light rays did not even have heat as those hit by them will have that part burst.

The blood splattered from the area hit by the crimson light rays fueled the Blood Throne even more. Just the sight of an enemy's head blowing up from the hit of the crimson light rays is already something to run away from. Those that are weak hearted can only retreat from attacking Solstice but there are still those that are skilled enough.

When the crimson light show ended, a hooded player suddenly appeared in front of Solstice. She expected that there would at least be talented individuals that reach her, but she did not expect it to be this early. From her observations, this player must have very good perception and it has been upgraded even further with the title given by the Dragon of Revelation.

"Die!" The hooded player stated but Solstice did not move an inch.

Solstice just flicked her hand and numerous spears suddenly manifested in front of her that impaled the hooded player. It might not be in the skill description, but the Blood Throne is still made of blood which means she can still control it. Her control of blood is even more pronounced now that she is sitting on the Blood Throne.

The hooded player could not even react to the sudden appearance of the blood spears as he did not have an aerial maneuver skill. The hooded player disappeared into particles of light with an impaled skull on the area he died. The death of one elite player did not make the other elites retreat though but only made them wary.

Soon, three players confronted Solstice that are a warrior, an archer, and a mage. The warrior wielded dual swords and charged towards Solstice. She created multiple blood spears from the ground to try and impale the warrior, but she easily evaded the sprouting blood spears.

Solstice wanted to create more blood spears to impale the warrior, but the mage and the archer also attacked her. She needed to create blood shields to protect against the long range attacks. Knowing that she cannot block the warrior with just controlling blood, Solstice took out the blood weapons that she uses from the Blood Throne and stood up.

She did not use the Blood Throne and directly confronted the female warrior. When she stood up from the Blood Throne, the wary elite player suddenly started their attacks on her as well. One person even thought of sitting on the throne as they have experience of special skills that summons items can be used by others when stolen.

The quickest one to thought of this idea immediately sat on the Blood Throne expecting that they can control it. The only thing that waited for the person that sat on the Blood Throne is a body impaled by hundreds of blood spears. The blood of the dead player trickled down on the Blood Throne and even made it stronger.

The ones attacking Solstice also noticed that she is smiling when that happened. She already knew that no one could sit down on the Blood Throne other than her. She purposefully stood up to make them think that they can steal it.

"Make sure that she never sits on the throne!" One player stated as they could easily infer that Solstice needed to sit on the throne to activate the powerful skills that she used earlier.

"I still have a skill for this occasion though. Queen of the Night!" Solstice stated as her ability to control blood skyrocketed. Numerous blood swords surrounded her and spun around to kill all her opponents. The screams of agony of her enemies echoed throughout the area. The Bloody Queen has descended to the battlefield.

Adrian started the process of devouring the strange miasma, but he did not expect that the nether energy would indeed voraciously eat all of it. He wanted to slowly eat all of the strange miasma in a stable fashion but the rate he is going is not safe. At this rate, his body would explode as he is getting overloaded.

"It seems that you are starting to die." A voice that sounded the same as his voice stated.

Adrian looked at the one who said the sentence and saw his Arch Demon Inner Demon. His inner demon suddenly showed himself which shocked Adrian. He knows that he should only be able to see this Arch Demon when he is undergoing an upgrade in Persona.

"If I die, you also die as well." Adrian stated as he knows that his inner demons are also part of his soul.

"You should not be that depressed though. I am here to ease your burden. Start the trial now while the energy inside you is devouring the strange miasma. If you do not do that then you might die permanently and even, we do not want that." Adrian's Inner Arch Demon stated.

"I still do not fit the requirements though." Adrian stated.

"That is why I told you to multi-task. We are good with that." Adrian's inner Arch Demons stated.

"Can you not see that I am busy trying to not get myself killed by my own energy." Adrian replied but he grunted it as his focuses shifted for a bit.

"You forget, other self. You have another mind inside you and yet you do not use it." Adrian's Inner Demon stated as he provided a clue to Adrian's current predicament.

"Another mind?" Adrian thought but he only got blanks.

Adrian thought that his Inner Arch Demon is just making him think of something else so that he loses focus, but he did not perceive that intent. If his inner demon were to trick him then they shall die as well. Inner demons would not endanger the host and only try to replace the current conscious.

"What if he did not mean a literal brain but another ego? An ego that is not me but is a part of myself." Adrian muttered as he suddenly got a realization.

Adrian has always had another brain for him. A brain that calculates most of the complex angles of his spells and even the timing. He has grown used to his ego weapon doing these calculations that he did not think that it is another brain per se.

"Paradox!" Adrian shouted.

When Adrian shouted the name of his ego weapon, a small twinkling light suddenly fettered down above him. The Cube of Paradox manifested above him and crackled with the same energy it has. An unknown energy that even the strange miasma is afraid of getting close to.

"Paradox! Activate the True Aether Reactor and feed the excess nether energy!" Adrian shouted.

"Affirmative. I am glad that the master has thought of me." The Cube of Paradox replied but Adrian did not hear it clearly because he needed to focus on the nether energy eating the strange miasma.

Adrian could only focus on stabilizing his nether energy as the speed at which the strange miasma is being devoured has peaked. Just as Adrian commanded, the Cube of Paradox immediately went to work as it emitted a dark purple spark. The nether energy that is floating inside the subconscious started to move slowly towards the True Aether Reactor.

The nether energy in Adrian's body is too potent and thick that the area around the pedestal is filled with nether mist. This nether mist is then forced towards the True Aether Reactor by the Cube of Paradox. The True Aether Reactor did not work at first, but it soon started to spin around as if it has gained momentum.

The True Aether Reactor started to gain speed in rotation as it started to convert the Nether Energy into what is called Aether Energy. Aether Energy is different in material and color compared to Nether Energy. If Nether Energy is dark and eerie when it touches a person, then Aether Energy is the opposite as it is warm and inviting.

Nether Energy comes in three distinct colors which is white, black and gray. Aether Energy, on the other hand, has the distinct colors of green, cyan and yellow. If Nether Energy took the form of mist, then Aether Energy takes the form of small glistening stars. One represents Absolute Death while the other represents Absolute Life.

Adrian continued this process as he could see that the burden he is feeling is starting to lessen. This Aether Energy that is being created balances out the heaviness of the Nether Energy. All he needed to do is continue this process and he will be successful in progressing into an Arch Demon.

Just as Adrian is becoming optimistic, he suddenly heard nothing as absolute silence came down upon him. Adrian looked around and he is no longer in his subconscious as the area around him looked nothing like his subconscious. All he sees is a background full of stars but when he looks again all he sees is nothingness.

"A child of mine. Strange. To think that one of mine will come to visit me in this long-lost world that even others cannot perceive." A voice echoed in the distance.

The voice that Adrian heard is a mix of different tones and sounds. When he heard the voice, it had a mixture of a man and a woman with different ages. As if two children, two middle-aged man and woman, and two elderlies spoke all at the same time. To make it even more confusing for Adrian, he felt as if this voice is familiar to him.

"Who are you?! Wait, where are you?! No, better yet...Where am I?" Adrian stated as his confusion is visible. He does not know here he ended up or how he ended up here because he knows that he should be in his inner subconscious.

"Look here, my sweet child." The multi toned voiced stated once more and Adrian followed that voice to see a massive being in front of his eyes.

The being looked like a small planet and Adrian is staring at them from afar. Adrian would describe the being he sees as them because they cannot be gendered as they look like an amalgamation of numerous beings. The being in front of Adrian looks like a planet sized sculpture that has all the looks of the voices he hears.

The being in front of him looks like a mass of something that also looks like those of the dark gods. Adrian took a closer look and within the large statue looking being are the numerous figures of monsters. The rest of being cannot be seen as its body is like darkness itself. One could even say that the other side of the being is darkness itself.

"Hello Childe! It seems that you have awakened me. I am your creator, Chaos. A fragment of it at least as I know that I have long died." Chaos stated as they with their numerous eyes looked at Adrian.

Adrian looked at the Chaos in wonder because on their main head is a hollow slot that looks like it was an eye. Adrian could more or less guess what that hollow spot is because he is also hunting for that same item. If the being in front of him is Chaos, then the hollow spot-on top of its head is definitely spot where the Eye of the Void should be located.

"Greetings, God Chaos!" Adrian greeted as the sudden appearance of Chaos diverted his thinking to the current scenario.

"I am not a god my child. We are like you as you are like us. An embodiment of the Primordial Void where all life is created and all life will end. We are but a fragment of ourselves in you. You seemed to have taken energy that used to be part of us. The full us which is why I have awakened in you. In a deeper plane." Chaos answered.

"What do you mean by that?" Adrian stated as he could not process the statement of Chaos because numerous voices would ring inside his head.

Adrian wanted to question Chaos further, but the body of the giant primordial being could be seen fading into existence. Chaos seemed to have realized something and offered Adrian their last advice before disappearing completely.

"It seems that our time is up our child. You only came to here incidentally. There will come a day where you will come to us. A day like that will be joyous for you will..." Chaos stated as their figure vanish without even ending their sentence.

Adrian also returned back to his inner subconscious where he is controlling the nether energy. The Cube of Paradox noticed that its master was dazed for a few seconds but ultimately returned back. The Cube of Paradox did not question its master as there was no harm done.

The next thing that Adrian needed to do is to perfectly sync with the Aether energy. He might have transformed the excess nether energy into aether energy, but he has yet to bond with it. If he does not bond with aether energy, then it would naturally leak out of his body.

The leakage of aether energy already started and the Daemos Elders could already feel it happening. Since the leakage is only a small amount, the aether energy is not noticeable to those that are slightly far from him. Even the Daemos Elders are shocked to find what kind of energy is emanating from Adrian's body.

"Do you know that kind of energy?" Ascalor asked Koronn as the latter is the most studied among all of them.

"I do not even know where he got his first energy in the first place. We, Daemos, rarely stray away from origin energy. He is the first in at least a millennium to attempt making his body turn like that. It might be related to the fact that he has the blood of the Perfect Ones." Koronn stated.

"Do not tell me that you used your powers to stop time and take his blood?" Bronx stated.

"Do you think I am that absurd. I got permission from him of course and I verified his bloodline. He has definitely the perfect body to carry the blood of the Perfect Ones. Even when he was born, he already has the signs that he has that blood. He is special compared to the others." Koronn stated.

"At least you asked him for the blood. If it was the old, you then you would have just used your mastery of Chronomancy to take what you want. It is also the reason why you became such a troublemaker back in the day." Ascalor teased.

"You say that yet you are worse than me. Your pranks were childish excuse of a grown man that wanted to get attention. Do not put me in the same level as you because I at least get results that can help our race." Koronn stated as he and Ascalor stared butting heads.

"Stop it you two. You know that we need to protect the youngest now as our enemies has already detected his energy." Bronx stated.

"You did not change as well. You were always the calm one that stopped our petty fights. You really do deserve your position as the Daemos Corps Commander." Koronn stated.

"I agree with you, but we are still not friends." Ascalor stated.

"Just you, agreeing with me means that you surrender. It also means that you are in a lower position than me. Wahahaha!" Koronn stated with a hearty laugh, but he already started to cast Chronomancy spells to slow down the ones attacking them.

"Just because I agree with you about Bronx' great personality does not mean I am beneath you. It just means that I have a gracious heart that could appreciate the strength of others unlike an old fart like you." Ascalor stated as he also casted spells that sent some of the enemies away into the void.

"Seriously, I am already getting tired of the petty rivalry between this two. At least, they also do that while succeeding in their duty. It would be another thing if they are not trustworthy at all." Bronx stated with a sigh as he erected force barrier to keep the enemy away from Adrian.

Just as the elders say, the enemies have already started to feel the intense life energy that Adrian is giving off. The one that felt this energy first is the Horseman of Death as he could detect a strong life force like any other in the vicinity. The Horseman of Death thought that it was the three beings that give off life energy, but he is wrong as this was a fourth one.

When the Horseman of Death locked its gaze towards Adrian, he could see the demon that he choked earlier. That was the demon that he infected with his essence. He wanted to use that demon as a sacrifice for the Dragon of Revelation, but an intense energy of death blocked him. It shocked the Horseman of Death because it was a more potent energy of death than his.

The Horseman of Death wanted to charge towards Adrian's location and absorb that intense life energy in order to fully regenerate, but the Dark Dragon King is not letting him go near the backline. The Horseman of Death started to think what it needs to do in order to get near until a burst of strong life energy erupted from Adrian's body.

A pillar of golden green light shot out from Adrian's body as this energy started to permeate around him. The ground below him started to grow strange and strong plants while the air around him felt invigorating. The ones hit by this intense invigorating energy even felt their strength coming back to them.

The first ones to get hit by this energy are the Daemos Elders. The energy that they thought would take a few more hours to regenerate started to quickly fill up because of the intense life energy that Adrian is exhibiting. They are not the only ones that looked at Adrian because the eyes of hunger emanated from the monsters that the Dragon of Revelation summoned.

Monsters have a natural instinct to become stronger and that they need intense life energy to make that happen. The monsters hungrily eyed Adrian as they plan to devour him and absorb that intense life energy. Even a wyrm can straight up evolve into a true dragon if one is bathed with that intense life energy.

"This brat! He is attempting to evolve!" Ascalor shouted as he immediately used all the energy that he regenerated to create a separate space for them but that would also cut them from the space outside. He decided to just reinforce the force barrier that Bronx has erected.

"He might have felt that his body would break down if he does not evolve now. We have lost many promising demons when they could not control the energy of their bodies. It is up to us old generation to make sure that the young ones stay alive." Koronn stated.

The three arch demons did not need to talk to each other to say that they agree. They also find Adrian to be something akin to their son as they have raised him. In fact, they do not want to say it, but they have been raising him to succeed one of them if one of them should fall.

The three arch demons transformed into their true forms once again and applied an intense gravitational field around Adrian. The monsters that can fly suddenly dropped to the ground and crashed onto those that are basically lying face flat. Seeing the great opportunity presented to them, the long-range damage dealers immediately used their skills to try and kill the monsters.

The players cheered for this as they already see the Daemos as great helpers for their contribution points. If the Daemos Elders were not whisked away earlier, then they might have helped the players in defeating the Horsemen of the Apocalypse. The players made sure to make use of the opportunity that is given to them, but they are also curious of what is happening to Adrian. Hor

The monsters that could feel the intense life energy emanating from Adrian could only try their best to reach him. Some could even be seen crawling with blood spurting out from their bodies as they knew that all they need is a touch of that intense life energy. One taste and they could advance themselves into another being and evolve to become stronger.

The desperate attempt at what the monsters are trying to do could be seen as heartbreaking and would make you want to root for them. With the appearance of the three Daemos Elders, one could say that the demons are the villains if this image is without context. But that brief sense of pinning for the underdog did not last as the monsters would shout their desires to devour the source of the intense life energy.

When Adrian's life energy started to begin rising to its peak, the Horseman of Death started to make his move. He activated his skill that created numerous apparitions once more and sent it out to all the enemies. The Dark Dragon King could not be easily fooled though as he suddenly used a skill that sees through lies.

If there is one thing that cannot hide from the darkness, then that is lies and illusions because darkness could see through all of that. The dark dragon king easily noticed the real body of the Horseman of Death and fired his dragon breath at the latter. The Horseman of Death could not dodge the breath attack because he is focused on getting close to Adrian instead.
