

O Summoner 1611

Chapter 1611 Search For The Valkyries II

Adrian entered the pub in his disguise and the people inside suddenly looked towards him. He thought that he would be harassed as he was a beautiful woman, but they soon returned to their drinking and chatting. The people of Asgard would not dare to lay their hands on beautiful women because there have been instances of people getting killed for doing so.

One instance is that they were actually a member of the Valkyries. The poor soul that did not know what he was dealing with lost his head that day. Another instance would be a god that wants to masquerade as a mortal. The poor soul that did that had his entire body eviscerated on the spot because of his poor choices.

"You new here?" The bartender asked as he knew that Adrian does not look familiar.

"Actually, I am. I was swept away by a handsome man called Freyr, but he left me here. He said that he will come back once his business was done. I wandered off to this pub to kill some time as he would return when the sun goes down." Adrian stated as he made use of the information that Frey has given him.

The God Freyr is said to be a playboy god that likes to invite beautiful women he finds in other worlds. This was actually true, but he did not do so because of malicious intent. He collected these women because of the orders of his sister the Goddess Freyja.

All the women that the God Freyr takes from other worlds are women that are actually mortals that could become Valkyries. The selection process is extremely difficult which is why there is only one every year or so. The mortals on Asgard created the rumor that the God Freyr is a playboy due to this but the god himself made use of it.

"I see that you have become another victim of such a handsome man. Let me tell you that looks are not everything in life. Get yourself someone that can make you happy and could protect you." The bartender stated.

"Handsome faces make me happy though." Adrian stated as he took a sip of the ale that he was offered.

The people at the pub almost choked on their drinks as they did not expect such an answer on a frail looking lady. Still, the bartender already given her the advice that she needs which is why they no longer need to warn her. She already picked her poison, and she was old enough to make her decisions.

"If that is what you want then I will not tell you anything regarding your choices. You might be here for a longer time though." The bartender stated.

"Why? Will he not return for me?" Adrian asked as he has already gotten the trigger that he needs.

"He will return for you, but I do not know if it will be before sundown. The God Freyr is not in a very good spot right now." The bartender stated.

"He is a god!? I thought that he was just someone that was incredibly handsome and exuded such an ethereal aura." Adrian exclaimed in a shock tone, but he is clearly acting.

"You might be here longer young miss. The God Freyr is in a tight spot right now." One of the pub drinkers stated.

"Oi! You should not talk about such sensitive topics like that." The bartender warned his customer.

"Why is that? I want to know as I was promised that I will be returned to my family after a few days." Adrian asked as he acted like he did not know what they were talking about.

"We are not really in a position to talk. All we can tell you is that he might even take a few days before he returns for you." The pub customer stated.

"Can you really not tell me? If that is the case, then I want to go home. I do not like to be taken somewhere then discarded in a place that I do not even know." Adrian stated as he mustered a crying type of tone. He even used fake tears to make him look even more pathetic.

"It is not that you will be abandoned. The God Freyr is in a tough spot because his twin sister is locked up. That is all I can say as there might be ears around us. I like my life very much you see." The bartender whispered to Adrian.

"Are there no people that can help me return though? He said that he has private guards that are beautiful but not as beautiful as me." Adrian stated in a soft tone as he threw another bait.

"I am afraid that he does not have a guard detail that he told you. Those people are working for her sister. They are also imprisoned which means your best bet would be to wait for the God Freyr. I can offer you a room in pub for you to stay as he will definitely pay me for your accommodation." The bartender stated in a soft tone as well.

"That would be great, but I am afraid that I would be inconveniencing you. I do not want to do that to such a great gentleman like yourself." Adrian stated.

"Do not worry, young miss. I already have a tab here for all of your expenditures. You are not the first one that has such a backstory. I will get paid by the God Freyr anyways which is why you should make yourself comfortable. My wife will take care of you and lead you to your room." The bartender stated as he called his wife who was in the kitchen.

"Thank you very much. I will not forget this debt of gratitude." Adrian stated with a smile, but it was a smile that indicated that he got what he wanted. He already has information on what happened to the Valkyries as they are imprisoned as well. He just needs the location of the prison, and they will be set.

Chapter 1612 Search For The Valkyries III

Frey headed to a location where she regularly gets information from. Just because society is being controlled by the gods does not mean there are no places that can get secret information. She headed to a shed where flowers are being sold and arranged.

The owner of this shed is none other than a Valkyrie as well, but she was not active like the others. She is also quite old looking but she was still beautiful despite a few wrinkles in her face. Frey thought that she would be the only one there but is surprised that a man was there.

Frey stood quietly as she actually found that the man is rather familiar despite this being the first time that she saw him. There was something oddly familiar with his presence as if it was incredibly familiar with her. Frey was not the only one that found the man familiar as the latter also looked at Frey as if he knew her.

"Sister, is that you?" The man stated which shocked Frey.

"I am sorry, but you have the wrong individual. I am not your sister that you are looking for." Frey stated as she thought that her current form might have looked like the sister of the man.

"Frey, Is that you?" The old Valkyrie asked as she felt the same presence as a Valkyrie.

Valkyries can sense the energy of another Valkyrie as long as they are near or have visual sight of them. The old Valkyrie immediately knew that it was Frey despite the disguise. Frey thought that her disguise is compromised and tried to make the man fall asleep but could not move.

"Apologies for the rude behavior of my sister, God Freyr." The old Valkyrie stated.

Frey is shocked upon seeing that the man before him was the God Freyr. The man before him did not even have golden locks of hair but had dark colored hair instead. He also looked incredibly haggard and not the ray of sunshine that the God Freyr always exudes.

"I apologize for not knowing your identity, God Freyr." Frey stated as she was released from her bindings and bowed down to the man before her.

"Did anyone follow you here? How were you able to come here when the Bifrost is heavily guarded?" The God Freyr asked Frey as he already knew her since he has met all of the Valkyries.

"I did not come alone as I asked for the aid of my friend who is a demon. He was the one that activated the Bifrost which is why I was able to come to Asgard." Frey stated.

"Is that true?" The God Freyr asked in shock as he immediately created a soundproof space for them in the house.

"Can someone fill me in on what is happening?" Frey asked as she was suddenly confused because the God Freyr was in their secret information hideout.

The old Valkyrie then told Frey the summary of what is happening right now. Their sisters, the other Valkyries, cannot be contacted while their patron goddess is imprisoned. The old Valkyrie herself is not even going to the city proper in fear that she would be captured which is why she does not know the state of her sisters.

"Where is the Goddess Freyja imprisoned then?" Frey asked as she could not detect the Goddess Freyja in Asgard.

"She was transferred to Niflheim a few days ago without my knowledge. Loki has been parading his power and authority now that Odin is sleeping. I could not even visit her because all the Bifrost paths are told to reject my authority." The God Freyr stated as he tried to save his sister from imprisonment.

The reason why the God Freyr is not being imprisoned and punished just like his sister is that he is connected to the agriculture of Asgard. If he gets weakened, then all of the crops in Asgard will perish. He is the only god of life that is sustaining the life of all food in Asgard which is why he is only banned to leave the world.

"They even seized Gullinbursti to make sure that I will not make a riot and leave Asgard." The God Freyr stated as his trusted mount was taken away from him as well.

Frey and the old Valkyrie is shocked because Gullinbursti is the God Freyr's best friend. They now know why the bright sun is not shining in Asgard these days because the warm sunlight is affected by the God Freyr's mood. The crops being substandard might also be the effect of the God Freyr not being the ball of sunshine that he is.

Frey suddenly received a message from Adrian detailing that the Valkyries are imprisoned somewhere in Asgard. She immediately told this information to the old Valkyrie and the God Freyr. She thought that the Goddess Freyja would be imprisoned in Asgard as her offense might not be major, but she was sent to Niflheim to be imprisoned.

Only the worst criminals in Asgard are imprisoned in Niflheim and they do not even last a month there due to the harsh weather. It is a place where even gods will bite the dust if they get hit by the intense cold. The God Freyr has been looking for a way to save his sister from the torment of the God Loki.

"I can look for the other Valkyries and find out where they are imprisoned but you would need to help me as well. In particular, I need the help of that demon friend of yours to get my sister out of Niflheim." The God Freyr stated.

"I shall inform him of our plans right away. He will gladly aid us in helping the Goddess Freyja and our sisters." Frey stated as she told Adrian that they must meet.

"We shall return to this location after one day. I need that amount of time to look for the location where the other Valkyries are imprisoned. They would definitely be helpful in saving my sister." The God Freyr stated as he vanished from his location.

Chapter 1613 Free The Valkyries

Frey fetched Adrian from the pub or inn that he was staying at. The people in the pub were not surprised that another beautiful woman was taken in by the God Freyr. She paid for Adrian's accommodation with the guise that the God Freyr has commanded her to and left with the latter as sightseeing as an excuse.

"Thanks for finding about the state of my sisters. I would not even know that they were imprisoned if you were not able to get that information. My informant was not able to leave her quarters that far in fear that she would also be captured." Frey stated.

"No worries. I wanted to be useful as it seems that you like the Valkyries very much like I like the Daemos Elders. They are like a second family to you, and I understand that sentiment as well." Adrian stated as they appeared back in the shed where the old Valkyrie stays.

Since they needed to wait for the God Freyr to arrive, Frey made it sure to tell Adrian about the characteristics of the gods of Asgard that she knows of. She might not have met all of them, but she told him on the ones to look out for. The one of the gods that they should never encounter is the God Odin as he has ocular skills that could pierce through illusions easily.

Another one would be the God Thor as he is almost immune to all types of magic. He is also extremely powerful in his physical prowess. He could easily squeeze a human's head with just one of his hands. He is also a powerful god that wields the Transcendent weapon called Mjolnir.

Frey mentioned other gods as well, but they are often in their own territories in Asgard. They are actually in luck because only a few gods are present in the main citadel where the God Odin lives. When he is sleeping, the other gods of Asgard must not leave their territories as the barrier that protects the lands will vanish due to the God Odin's sleep.

The next day arrived, and the God Freyr returned back to the shed. He could be seen even more haggard than ever as if his life was drained. Asgard is also somewhat gloomy which might be a result of the God Freyr's feelings. He could be seen also a bit annoyed, but he delivered good news as the Valkyries were actually being sent to Niflheim today.

"What!? We have to save them then. We should intercept them while they use the Bifrost." Frey stated.

"That would be risky even from where I am standing." Adrian stated as his disguise has already worn out after a few minutes.

The God Freyr did not believe that Adrian was a demon at first as he was in the form of a beautiful female. He only believed when the effects of the Huldra Essence vanished, and his horns could be seen. The God Freyr suddenly smiled a little, but it was not enough to be noticed as he believed that Adrian would definitely be able to help him.

"What time will they be transported to Niflheim?" Adrian asked.

"They should be transported at sundown as that time would be when the cold winds of Niflheim does not ravage the land. It is also the time when the monsters in Niflheim are asleep as they become less active if there is no snowstorm." The God Freyr stated as he was also one of the people that went to Niflheim to subjugate it.

"Why did you take too long to get back though? I thought we would have started sooner if you arrived earlier." Frey asked as the God Freyr said that he will get back as soon as possible but a day passed.

"I needed to get my best friend back from the dungeons of the palace of Valhalla. It was quite a difficult thing to do as Gullinbursti is not easy to create a body double with. I had to hunt down a boar that is the same height and gallantry as him." The God Freyr stated as he is actually holding a baby golden pig.

"I am glad that you have reunited with Sir Gullinbursti. This is a sign that we are going to have good luck. We should wait for the Bifrost to be empty again." Frey stated.

"Why are we going to wait for sundown then when we can go there now?" Adrian stated.

Adrian's sudden statement made the God Freyr and Frey shocked. They could not believe that they would hear a line such as that because they know that travelling to another world requires the Bifrost. They suddenly remembered that they are in front of a demon which is a being that defies time and space.

"Do you not need the Bifrost as you need to activate it right?" Frey asked as they arrived at Asgard due to the Bifrost after all.

"The Bifrost is just a pathway and like any other pathway it can be remade as long as you have a map. I have the map and all I need to do is create the pathway myself. I have been deciphering the Bifrost while waiting for the God Freyr and I am almost done. Creating a way to Niflheim would not be that difficult." Adrian stated.

"You should have said so earlier then we I would have made haste in getting Gullinbursti back! I did not know that you have brought such an extremely talented individual. No wonder the God Odin hates the demons as they could something that he could not achieve without research." The God Freyr stated.

"So, demons are not welcomed in Asgard. Noted on that." Adrian stated as he proceeded to create the magic circle copy of the Bifrost.

The magic circle was not perfect as only five of the nine realms could be teleported to but that was still enough as long as Niflheim was in that list. Adrian managed to decipher Niflheim easily because the demigod blacksmith Aurgelmir had similar runes on his body.

Chapter 1614 To Niflheim

The Nordic gods just like the western gods are not from Pandemonium as well. They were from a universe called Norse that was also destroyed by an unknown entity. They also escaped to Pandemonium and created a colony there once they were accepted by the universe.

In fact, a majority of the people of the northern continent have ancestors that could be traced back to the Norse Universe. The human mortals there are people that were left in the main world when the Pangea broke apart. Some of the mortals in the northern continent still retained their devotion to the Nordic Gods while some integrated with the other people in the north.

The Norse Universe was not destroyed by foreign gods, but an entity called the World Devourer. It is an unknown being that even the gods fear as it can devour planets easily. It could also devour an entire universe if given time to grow which is why they are often extinguished once they are made known.

It also has powerful resistances to physical and magical attacks which is why it usually takes ten gods to defeat one that is at the size of a hill. The World Devourer will grow larger and larger until it could defeat even a hundred gods. Once it grows big enough, it will devour the universe that it is currently on.

If the World Devourer manages to eat the universe, then it would go into a period of long hibernation. It would hibernate until it will reduce back to the size of a small hill. It would then repeat the cycle of its hunger as it is a being that was created or born just to devour worlds and nothing else.

"Prepare yourselves as I will now create the portal." Adrian stated as the God Freyr and Frey gulped.

Adrian poured mana into Paradox as the astrolabe spun around them and released a gentle yet unknown mana even to the God Freyr. The God Freyr is not prejudiced at Adrian even if he was a demon as he could feel the abundant life energy in him. The God Freyr is considered a god of life in the Nordic God pantheon, but he is not under the Goddess of Life Gaea.

A magic circle suddenly imprinted itself on the ground as the mana that Adrian released created the pattern by etching itself. The pattern was indeed that of the Bifrost, but it was not etched into a stone slab like the one that they used before. The ground just looks like it was burnt but it was indeed the magic circle that is familiar with the God Freyr.

"This is not a permanent magic circle because we do not have a conduit and a material to etch it in. This magic circle is a one-time use kind of way. Only I can activate it though as I have created it to my liking and even gave it my own flare." Adrian stated as the magic circle looked like an exact copy, but it was not.

Adrian actually found flaws in the magic circle of the Bifrost or rather he used a more modern take on it. He only changed around 10% of the magic circle but it was enough to call it something that he created. In fact, even a mage from the Tower of Magic would claim an original magic circle if they edited at least 3% of it. It is incredibly difficult to modify a magic circle to fit one's needs as they are very rigid in structure.

[Congratulations on becoming a Master Rank Scribe!]

[Mana Cost for spells using magic circles will be decreased by 15%.]

[You are now able to ignore a target's magic defense for a total of 15%.]

[All spells using runes or magic circles will have 15% more power.]

[You are the first player that has achieved a Master Rank in the Sub Job Class of Scribe.]

[You have obtained the title First Master Scribe.]

[You can now take on apprentices as you have sufficient knowledge to teach on the ways of the Scribe.]

Adrian did not expect that deciphering the Bifrost runes would actually makes him breakthrough. He always thought that he needed to create a Semi Transcendent talisman or something in order to advance but this was a good welcome. He will now have better magic damage as he has a flat 15% magic penetration.

"Most of my magic is also created using magic circles which is why all of my spells are also empowered." Adrian thought as he clenched his fist.

Adrian is overjoyed at the things he accomplished even if he was not able to level up. Frey might not have been able to detect anything that changed for Adrian, but the God Freyr could. He already felt that Adrian was somewhat dangerous, but it suddenly increased which baffled him.

"Are the two of you ready?" Adrian asked.

"I am ready." Frey stated.

"I am always ready." The God Freyr replied.

Adrian then called them to the middle of the magic circle as they would need to be in it for the Bifrost to take them. Frey was about to hold Adrian and the God Freyr's hands when she was told not to. Adrian told her that this magic circle would have less burden on the body and a smoother transition which is why handholding is no longer necessary.

"Just to make sure." Frey stated as she still held Adrian's hand but did not hold onto the God Freyr's hand.

"Uhum... I will now activate the magic circle." Adrian stated as he pretended to cough while blushing.

The God Freyr looked at the two and almost choked as feelings do blossom in the face of danger. He did not berate them as he knows that the Valkyries are under her sister's care who is also a goddess of love. The Valkyries were not forbidden to love as the Goddess Freyja herself is a minor goddess of love.

Adrian activated the magic circle while his cheeks are a bit flush, but the magic circle did not have any problems. Rainbow colored light suddenly flooded down onto them as their bodies vanished from the area. The magic circle that was drawn on the ground also vanished as if the mana used to write it has been used up.

The gods of Asgard did not even notice that the God Freyr managed to leave the realm despite not going to Heimdall. All of the Asgardian gods except for one who was asleep was aware that the God Freyr escaped. The God Odin felt the shift of energy from something that is similar to the Bifrost, but he could not tell the other gods as he was still fast asleep.

The God Odin is not entirely asleep when he is sleeping but his soul separates from his body. He might not be able to leave his physical body for too long, but he gains the incredibly sensitive sense for energy. He could sense any energy disturbance in the whole realm of Asgard and could even distinguish the owner of that energy if he is familiar with it.

"The God Freyr has left Asgard using a way that I do not know. The location of that spatial shift was not the Bifrost that Heimdall guards. It seems that he also plans to betray me for his sister. So be it, I shall end their lives when I awake from my slumber." The God Odin's soul stated as he lingered near his physical body.

A powerful rainbow light suddenly poured from the skies of a world filled with eternal ice. A world almost desolate of life as it is filled with nothing but snow and ice. The world of eternal winter and a world where Asgardians punish those that have wronged them.

[You have arrived at Niflheim.]

A notification popped up as soon as they arrived at Niflheim. Frey started to shiver in cold as even her own resistances could not protect her. The God Freyr also felt cold, but it was bearable to him thanks to the armor that he is wearing.

"Why are you not shivering?" Frey asked as she saw that Adrian was fine and his hand was still warm since they are still hand holding.

"The Daemos have incredible physiology that even lets us survive the cold depths of space. This place is very cold though since I can still feel the temperature. I have the solution for your problem. Greater Summon: Kanlaon." Adrian stated as he summoned his dragon soulbound.

The God Freyr is shocked to see a dragon bowing down to another being as they are known to be prideful. Then again, he could understand if that other being was Adrian as he is special even compared to other demons.

"Can you coil around her neck and keep her warm for the time being?" Adrian commanded Kanlaon as the dragon shrunk in size and warmed up Frey's body upon the orders of his master.

Chapter 1615 Niflheim I

The cold air in Niflheim could freeze even fire itself. Only those that are incredibly immune to the intense cold could live in such a frosty area. Adrian might be immune to sharp changes in temperature but that does not mean that frost will not accumulate on his body.

He would need Kanlaon to thaw out the layer of frost that accumulates on his body every ten minutes or he would be frozen alive. The three of them must stick together as the influence of the heat that Kanlaon is emitting would diminish if they are far from each other. They also did not move much from their location as the snowstorm was brewing at an incredibly dangerous pace.

"Can you feel my sister's aura?" The God Freyr asked.

"I can feel it, but it is incredibly faint. It is in the direction where the snowstorm is blowing." Frey stated as she could feel a faint connection in the northern location.

"I thought I was just sensing things differently, but she is actually in that location." The God Freyr stated as there is a bit of fear in his voice.

"Why? What is in that general direction?" Adrian asked as he is not that familiar with Niflheim unlike the God Freyr that has been here.

"North from here where the sandstorm blows are the settlement of the Frost Giants. They are not really on friendly terms with the people of Asgard. What even makes me wonder more is that my sister is in that direction when they do not want to even associate with us after the war." The God Freyr stated.

The people of Asgard waged war and managed to acquire some resources in Niflheim like precious metals. This world is incredibly rich in minerals that can be forged to make powerful weapons. They managed to push the Frost Giants far north while they occupy the center of Niflheim where the mines are.

"You said Frost Giants, right?" Adrian asked.

"I did. Is there something wrong about them? Well, they are incredibly tough to fight against and they cannot truly die as long as there is ice around. They will regenerate after ten years or so which is why we always fight them. The Gods of Asgard even made them something like training targets due to this." The God Freyr stated.

"Frost Giants are part of the Jotunn Race which is a one of the Five Asmodian Races. If we are against them in their home turf, then it is not going to be good for us. They are also called the most patient of all the Five Asmodian Races." Adrian stated.

"Why are they the most patient?" Frey asked.

"Not only could they be revived from their own body fragments, but they are also incredibly durable." Adrian stated.

"They are not that durable as I managed to destroy one with a swing of my weapon back then." The God Freyr stated.

"Let me finish with my explanation. They are beings that become even more durable as they continuously 'revive'. This is what earned them as the most patient as they become more durable every time that they reform their fractured body.

The people of Asgard are not the only one that turns the Frost Giants as training targets. The Frost Giants are also making all of you akin to training partners. I believe that they do not even send their best soldiers when you fight against them." Adrian stated as the God Freyr suddenly felt something true to what Adrian has said.

When they were always in wars with the Frost Giants, there would only be one or two extremely tough frost giants. The latest war that they have done had already fifty or so which means that the ones that have reformed countless times have joined as well. The God Freyr suddenly had a realization that the last war had more Frost Giants that were destroyed.

"We must hurry and save my sister! The next time for war would be in five days. They wanted to transfer the Valkyries today because they would be vanguards for the incoming fight." The God Freyr stated as he actually did not tell that information earlier.

"Why did you not tell us something that important?! A war would break out once again in Niflheim and you just happened to neglect telling us that?" Frey stated as things suddenly started escalating.

"I thought that we could use the guise of the war to save my sister who will also be used in the war. We would also use that to save the Valkyries, but his statement suddenly had me getting cold sweat. I feel that we will lose this next war with the Frost Giants as the last one was difficult to handle." The God Freyr stated.

"Next time, tell us everything immediately. You might be a god, but we are not. We can easily die and let me remind you that I am your only hope in returning should you be unable to rescue your sister. Are we clear?" Adrian stated in a rather irritated tone as he did not expect such troublesome matters.

"It seems that I did not make myself clear. Tell us everything that we need to know, or I will send you to a place where even a god like you will have difficulty breathing. You are in a weakened state in this world as you only have the power of a demigod. I can easily accomplish that feat if you wish to try me." Adrian threatened the God Freyr.

Seeing Adrian's intimidation, the God Freyr made sure to give every information that he knows of Niflheim. He knows that the demon before him does not care where he lives or dies because he was only here to help Frey and not him. The God Freyr is the one that just tagged along with them, and it dawned on him that the demon will discard him should he become untrustworthy.

"I apologize. My head was full of thoughts helping my sister." The God Freyr stated as this was actually the first time that he bowed to a being weaker than him.

Night suddenly fell and the snowstorm finally subsided which means that the Valkyries will now be transported to Niflheim. The Bifrost in the Asgard settlement could be seen being activated as fifteen beautiful women in chains and collars are dragged by a very buff god. The look of resentment could be seen on all of the Valkyries as there were also some bruises on their bodies, but they are not strangers to pain.

"I welcome the God Thor!" The head guard of the Asgard settlement stated.

"At ease. Give me the status of the movement of the Frost Giants." The God Thor stated.

"They are currently showing inactivity. They did not even come near the first defense station. We are also preparing for the upcoming battle." The head guard of the Asgard settlement stated.

"Good. Lead me to the dungeons as they will be sent there. They will be our Vanguard when the Frost Giants arrive." The God Thor stated as he dragged the chains that linked all of the Valkyries.

The Valkyries did not even speak as their menacing looks made even the normal guards steer away from them. Only the God Thor could actually have the ability to be passive. The Valkyries are also not fighting back because they are conserving their strength.

The Valkyries already knew that they would become fodder for the front lines against the war between the Frost Giants. The God Loki was mocking them for such fate as they were being punished due to the misery that their patron goddess is experiencing. The Valkyries do not hate the Goddess Freyja though they know that their goddess made the correct decision.

The Goddess Freyja protested that they should not weaken the main world's barrier as it would create danger. The people of the main world would suffer as a result of the numerous foreign entities that could slip through. What she feared is actually coming true, but these foreign entities are keeping a low profile.

"King Shivr, the people of Asgard are preparing for the upcoming training with our children. Shall I start preparing the ones that need to fight against them?" A three-meter-tall frost giant asked a five-meter-tall frost giant that was sitting on a frozen throne.

"Make sure to have at least a five thousand young ones to join the upcoming battle. For the ones that are older, offer about five hundred spots that will be for competition. We must make it look like we are pushing the people of Asgard back or else they might cower and run if they know what their real use is for us." King Shivr stated as he generated the snowstorm once more.

"My King, there seems to be another foreign entity that was reported to us that has arrived in Niflheim." Another frost giant stated as she gave information about the unique being that entered the world and it made King Shivr's raise his brow.

"Gullinbursti has informed me that the Valkyries are all sent into the dungeons of the settlement." The God Freyr stated as his golden boar did recon.

Adrian is actually shocked to see a flying golden boar as he did not expect that those two combinations would be possible. His views on how strange the creatures of Pandemonium have grown even vaster because of this experience. He looked at Gullinbursti and could feel that the golden boar is actually at least Mythical tier.

"Then we should infiltrate the settlement. We can help them immediately as long as you know the way to the dungeons." Frey stated as she wanted to help the Valkyries as soon as possible.

"I would have to put a pedal on your enthusiasm on that one." Adrian stated as the settlement that they described is actually a full-on castle town.

The place that they would have to sneak into would be a place that is fortified like a bastion. Powerful soldiers that are patrolling the walls and taking shifts. Adrian also noticed the numerous jewels embedded on the walls that detects any invisible enemy.

"The whole area is something that wards off any potential enemies. They made it so that even a frost giant masquerading as snow would not be able to set foot on that castle." Adrian added.

"I agree with Champion Equinox. There is also some bad news that I must tell you. Thor is at that castle right now. It seems that he is the one that arrived early in order to prepare for the upcoming war. We are quite lucky that it is not Loki as that one would easily sniff us out.

Thor thinks more through his heart and muscle instead of his brain. We can sneak past him given the perfect timing, but we cannot do so right now when he is vigilant. They are the most vigilant now that the war with the Frost Giants is near." The God Freyr stated.

"Why would they transfer prisoners here in Niflheim though when war is near? Are they going to use them as cannon fodder?" Adrian asked as he knows that that was usually the case when prisoners are brought to the battlefield.

"They would not be entirely cannon fodder but they would become vanguards. They will be the first one that would take the brunt of the assault. My sister would no doubt have the same fate as the other Valkyries since her strength is also restricted in this world." The God Freyr stated.

"If that is the case then we will have to modify the plans. Listen to me carefully as we will become really busy after I explain everything." Adrian stated as he told them his plan.

The God Thor walked to the dungeons of the Asgardian settlement to look for a prisoner there. Inside the deepest prison was none other than the Goddess Freyja. She was being kept there but she was still treated slightly well as she was still a goddess of war.

The Asgardian Gods would not dare to easily punish her because she has an effect of making wars into victorious battles. She is like a good luck charm in the battlefield which is why she was brought here in Niflheim for the upcoming war. In fact, all of the Valkyries would join this war as they would make sure that no soldier will fall in battle.

"You are here again. I thought I told you that I do not like visitors." The Goddess Freyja stated as she could be seen having a thin layer of frost on her skin.

She was imprisoned on the deepest parts of the dungeon which is extremely cold. A normal human would freeze to death under ten minutes if they were in the same situation as her. There are also some wounds on her body which is the proof that the God Loki did not show mercy when he punished her.

"Why do you not want to return to the main world? You would not have been in this position if you have just agreed or at least took a neutral stance like the others." The God Thor stated.

"If it is returning to the main world then I would have also liked that. We would have been able to return in a hundred years or so if all of you just waited. Instead, all of you devised plans and schemes to break down the divine realm barrier when all of you know that the mortals living in the main world are not powerful enough to combat the threats that will come for them." The Goddess Freyja stated.

"We cannot wait another century, Freyja. You know that as we cannot live in Asgard for long. The resources of that world have already been dried up by us. We need to return to the main world where the resources are abundant and never ceases." The God Thor stated.

"If you just wanted resources for the mortals then it is already too plenty. My brother made sure that no mortal that was under our care would starve. They are even living lives that they want because we have made food abundant.

It is not food you want but resources to feed your egos. You want to go back to the main world because there are some resources there that can help you ascend to a higher level of power. You do not want to return to the main world for the mortals under our care but for your own selfish desires." The Goddess Freyja stated.

"You are not understanding us because you are still worshiped in the main world unlike us! Your Valkyries can go to Midgard without problems because of the covenant that you had with the Twin Gods. You sacrificed a lot of your own divine energy to make that happen and now you are just a Greater God." The God Thor stated.

"I am worshipped in Midgard because I sacrificed what I had to maintain my connection to my followers. All of you could have done so as well and just sent out representatives like me but you have turned deaf to the followers you left behind. This is the reason why all of you do not have followers in Midgard." The Goddess Freyja stated as she knew what she has done and does not regret it.

She did not want her followers in Midgard to suffer from the sudden onslaught of powerful monsters that are now being born to the world. She tried her best to persuade Odin to not go with his plan and she thought that she did as he agreed. Later on, she learned that Loki under Odin's command had made Midgard incredibly turbulent.

She learned that Loki was the one that planted the seeds of having a Dark God descend. She also learned that Loki was the one that planned on having the angels sealed in the Silver City to be released. Her last straw was Loki helping in unleashing the fragments of Apophis which made the western continent incredibly turbulent.

Due to what Loki has done, the Goddess Freyja confronted the God Odin as he broke his promise. What the God Odin told her made her incredibly shocked because the god that she admired was no longer thinking for the people. The God Odin no longer thought of the mortals that he promised to nurture but only himself.

"What have I done wrong? They would be released even if we let them be. I only sped up the process by using the abilities of Loki. We must return to Midgard, and I will make sure of that even if I have to imprison you myself." The God Odin told the Goddess Freyja.

The Goddess Freyja tried battling Odin, but she was not able to stop him. She sacrificed a lot of her divine authority to make sure that the Valkyries will be given free pass to Midgard. She might have lost some of her divinity from being High God, but she was not an easy opponent.

The God Odin had to use his full knowledge of the runes in order to restrain the Goddess Freyja. She was not killed because she is not that easy to kill in Asgard. She is also a Goddess of War that brings forth victories and Odin needs that power should they return to Midgard.

"I will not help you in this upcoming battle even if you beg me for it." The Goddess Freyja stated as she already knew what the God Thor wanted from her.

"A pity because I have brought your precious children with me. They would be the vanguard of the war that will happen in a few days. If you do not give your blessing to the army then I am afraid that they will inevitably die a dog's death." The God Thor stated as he frowned because the one that thought of this was not him but the God Loki.

Chapter 1617 Niflheim III

"I see. It seems that I have already been weakened to the point that I could not even see through your illusions. To think that you would copy the image of your brother, Loki." The Goddess Freyja stated as the one in front of him was not the real God Thor but the God Loki.

"You actually managed to look through my disguise even though it was quite perfect this time." The God Loki stated as his disguise is lifted.

"Then again, the guards will not have the same level of respect when it is you that came to this area. You are not a proud warrior just like your brother." The Goddess Freyja stated.

"All your petty insults changes nothing because your precious children are here in the fortress. They are also locked inside of the dungeons just like you. They will be sent to the front line tomorrow and they will die if you do not give your blessing to the army.

I know how your blessings work, Freyja. You could have given individual blessings if you were still a high god but not in your current state. You should bless the army for the upcoming campaign or else your precious children would die." The God Loki stated with a smile as he transformed back to the God Thor.

The Goddess Freyja could not believe that the God Loki would resort to such tricks, but she should never expect less from the trickster god himself. She had no choice but to indeed bless the people that will go to war against the frost giants. If there is one thing that the God Loki is good at then that would be making sure that every threat is true.

"I pray that all of you will be safe, my children. Even if my power cannot assure your absolute safety, I pray that all of you would be safe enough to survive." The Goddess Freyja stated as divine energy left her body and spread to all of the beings in the castle.

"Sister!?" The God Freyr stated as he suddenly felt the energy that his sister often gives when a battle or war is near.

"I also felt it as well. The Goddess Freyja is indeed in the settlement." Frey stated as she could feel the energy from her goddess spreading near them.

Kanlaon is currently creating a snow cloak with them inside of it as they are just a hundred or so meters away from the castle. They were observing how the castle relay works as one of them would need to get inside of it should only a few of the prisoners they need to rescue be part of the upcoming battle. Adrian made this backup plan so that they would cover all the bases as unexpected things might happen in war after all.

After three days, the sound of horns suddenly blared in the castle as the sight of Frost Giants started to be in sight of the scouts. The loud sound of clanging metal could be heard, and the fires of each castle pillar blazed high. The sound of war drums could also be heard as it served as a way to give focus to the upcoming warriors.

Frey is currently flying on Kanlaon as they observed the things that are happening below. She could see the Valkyries being escorted out of the compound, but it was not all of them. About half of them were escorted out of the compound with weapons while the other half was still inside the walls.

"It seems that they will send out the other half if the first half dies. These dirty bastards! Do they not feel sympathy for what my sisters did for them in the previous years?" Frey stated but she could not openly hate all of the people in the fortress because they are only following the orders of the gods.

A while later, a beautiful maiden in armor came out of the castle as well but she was also in chains unlike the other Valkyries that are just in slave collars. The Goddess Freyja was currently clasped with magic inhibiting shackles that makes her unable to muster any type of strength be it physical or magical. Frey could also see this and reported everything to Adrian as the war is already starting.

The Frost Giants could be seen twice as great in number than the previous war. The people of the settlement are alarmed of this, but they are not afraid because they have the God Thor with them. They also have the blessing of the Goddess Freyja although she seems to be reluctant in helping them.

The people in the settlement are not afraid but there is one god cursing this development. He did not expect that the number would be twice as much, and the arrival would be two days earlier. The God Loki could be said to be internally panicking because of the situation but he knows that he must keep up the act.

"Informant! Go to Asgard immediately and inform the other gods of the situation here. I do not want to shed all of the valiant blood of warriors here. We would need reinforcements as I am not enough to protect all of you if the worst situation arrives." The God Loki pretending to be the God Thor stated as he activated the Bifrost.

The informant immediately left as the number is indeed something that the current number of people in the settlement could handle. The God Loki had to reduce the restrictions on the slave collar as the Valkyries would need to fight at full power now that the situation is this dire. He also ordered for the remaining half of the Valkyries to be sent to the front lines as well.

"If you all do not wish to die with us then do your best. There is no use joining the enemy side because they do not listen to Asgardians after all." The God Loki pretending to be the God Thor stated towards the Valkyries.

"After I am done with the Frost Giants, the next thing my sword will slice up is your head." Brunhild stated with immense contempt and bloodlust towards the God Loki.

"You would have to survive this war first." The God Loki stated with a smug attitude.

The God Loki knew that the Valkyries cannot hurt him as he possesses the master key to their slave collars. They would not be able to kill him, but they might be able to harm him to the point of being weakened. Still, he would punish them by restricting their strength before that happens as it is within the ability as someone who holds the master key.

"Frost Giants move!" A three-and-a-half-meter tall frost giant commanded the other frost giants that were waiting for their orders.

Almost all of the frost giants charged like a raging snowstorm to the walls of the settlement. The prisoners of war which includes the Valkyries all braced themselves as they would be the first ones to be hit by this surge. Some of the prisoners of war already accepted their death while some hesitated to escape. Those that thought of escaping already knew that they could not because they were sent here via the Bifrost and would die after a few minutes in the harsh and cold environment of Niflheim.

"Sisters! Prepare for impact!" Brunhild shouted as she wanted to raise the morale of her sisters, but she also ended up raising the morale of the other prisoners of war.

The charging frost giants made the snow tremble, and they actually tread across the soft snow as if it was firm ground unlike the others that sink because of their weight. A battlefield that is not only disadvantageous to the Valkyries but also, they were not properly equipped. The Valkyries have endured worse, but this is the first for them to be forcefully given this situation and not by their choice.

"Ten seconds till impact!" One of the scouts shouted to the people in the settlement as the frost giants are now near.

If the vanguards or the prisoners of war could produce cold sweat, then they would have been sweating buckets right now. Just as the first wave of the frost giants were about to clash with the vanguard, a demon suddenly appeared between the two forces. The sudden appearance of the demon halted the advance of the frost giants while it made the people in the settlement stunned.

"Excuse me for a moment!" Adrian stated as he suddenly created a rift in space and swept all of the Valkyrie members away from the battlefield as he also vanished.

The frost giants and the people in the settlement were astonished for a moment but the commander of the frost giants shouted to continue the assault. The vanguard that was stunned in place were all blown away by the assault of the frost giants. The sudden disappearance of their only hope, the Valkyries, was the only thing giving them the hope to live.

Chapter 1618 A Flying Hammer

Adrian transported all of the Valkyries away in just a split second that the other prisoners of war could not process what happened. What they did process was that the vanguard suddenly lost 75% of its strength because of the disappearance of the Valkyries. The vanguard that heavily relied on the performance of the Valkyries crumbled easily.

The vanguard is either sent flying by the frost giants or turned into meat paste because of their gigantic weapons. The God Loki could not believe that the Valkyries vanished just like that and the one who did it was none other than the demon that killed his son. The God Loki almost shed his illusion as he faced the Goddess Freyja as he attempted to strangle her.

"Gullinbursti!" The God Freyr shouted as the cute golden piglet suddenly transformed into a three feet tall giant golden boar and tackled the God Loki that is disguised as the God Thor.

Gullinbursti slammed its gigantic body towards the God Loki and sent him flying. The God Loki lost consciousness for a moment and his disguise was unraveled. The other warriors of Asgard did not process the situation as they were now focused on the fight that was happening in their doorsteps.

The God Loki created two golden short swords and charged towards the Goddess Freyja as he actually intended to kill her. The God Freyr suddenly appeared in front of him while riding Gullinbursti and defended the defenseless Goddess Freyja.

"Excuse me for a moment! Sorry for the intrusion." Adrian stated as he suddenly appeared before the Goddess Freyja and disappeared with her.

The God Loki seeing what happened suddenly spiraled into rage as all his plans are down the drain. If the Goddess Freyja is not on the battlefield, then the war with the frost giants will become immensely difficult. He could see that the warriors in the settlement are frantic as they suddenly lost direction.

"I should at least kill you before I start killing the frost giants." The God Loki stated as he charged towards the God Freyr.

The two gods started fighting against each other and the command chain of the fortress in in disarray. The next in line for command was picking up the pieces of the fractured command system but his prestige was not enough to calm the hearts. The God Freyr is not even fighting at his full power as he is just buying enough time for his escort.

"Excuse me once again!" Adrian stated as he is about to take the God Freyr and Gullinbursti away.

"Equinox! Watch out!" Frey's voice shouted as she saw rainbow lights appear.

A flying hammer made of a strong metal suddenly flew towards Adrian's head. Sirius suddenly went out of Adrian's shadow and pulled his master's head away or else it would have popped like a balloon. The hammer flew at a fast pace that it continued on to the frost giants.

The frost giants that are hit by the hammer suddenly shattered into ice shards as their bodies were not sturdy enough to handle the power of the hammer. Just as the hammer was about to lose momentum, it suddenly flew back to the one who threw it. The hammer hit another series of frost giants before it returned to the God Thor.

"Warriors of Asgard! Do not falter as reinforcements have arrived!" The God Thor shouted as the morale that was low suddenly rose as the warriors shouted in response.

The storm clouds suddenly started circling the area as the God Thor has arrived. Adrian, who wanted to leave via a rift, could not create any portal easily as the whole area was flooded with mana. The area felt like there is a slight static shock as the air felt incredibly heavy.

"Equinox!" Frey shouted as she descended with Kanlaon.

Kanlaon fired off his dragon breath that created a golden beam of light, but the God Thor actually blocked it with his hammer. The weapon itself did not even have a scratch as if the durability did not even get reduced despite the powerful dragon breath. The God Thor did not expect that attack, but it does not mean that he will be unable to defend himself.

"A dragon! I have not slain one in ages!" The God Thor stated as he threw his hammer towards Frey and Kanlaon.

Kanlaon thought that the hammer did not fly in a fast pace, but it actually broke the sound barrier. The hammer suddenly hit Kanlaon's head, and he became unconscious. Frey and Kanlaon suddenly started falling headfirst towards the ground as the impact also hit the passenger.

"Frey!" Adrian exclaimed as she will definitely die if she falls but the area is unstable due to the God Thor.

"If one of me is not enough then maybe two can. Greater Summon: Dodu!" Adrian muttered as he summoned Dodu.

Dodu did not even need an explanation as it already know what to do. Dodu took a piece of hair from Adrian and suddenly transformed into his own master. Adrian was amazed but he must act quick because the life and death of Frey is on the line.

[Your soulbound Dodu has transformed into you.]

[Your soulbound Dodu is able to perfectly mimic your abilities and skills for the first ten minutes.]

"Dodu! Sync with me." Adrian stated.

"Yes, master!" Dodu stated in Adrian's voice which made it a little bit weird as if he was actually talking to himself.

Adrian created a portal that led to him and Dodu strengthened it to make sure that the spell would be able to pass through two beings. A portal appeared below Kanlaon and Frey as they passed through it successfully. The two appeared beside Adrian and he sealed Kanlaon as he was incapacitated for ten minutes due to the hit from Mjolnir.

"We need to escape. We cannot deal with Loki and Thor at the same time. They might always clash with morals but those two are the fiercest fighting duo in Asgard." The God Freyr stated as he fears that he will not be able to defend them if both Loki and Thor are against them.

"Dodu!" Adrian stated as Dodu already started the spell that Adrian was thinking of.

A magic circle appeared below them as Adrian started to synergize with the energy that Dodu is using. The God Thor saw this and started to accumulate a lot of thunder energy to shatter the magic circle but Adrian and Dodu was faster. Adrian, Dodu, Frey, and the God Freyr with Gullinbursti vanished in a few seconds.

The God Thor still continued his attack as it was too late to stop it. The ground where Adrian and the others were severely burnt and caved in as if a powerful meteor made an impact on it. The God Thor could only click his tongue as they did not expect such a thing to happen.

"Focus on the war with the frost giants! We must not let them retake this land or else our efforts in subjugating this place would be in vain." The God Thor stated.

"Should I track them brother?" The God Loki asked the God Thor.

"Do not worry about them for now, brother. I have already asked Heimdall to use his sight on them. They would never be able to escape while they are still in the nine worlds." The God Thor stated as he already devised a backup plan for the ones that escaped.

Adrian managed to carry the others to the secret base that they carved out of the mountain. Adrian did not expect that having two of him is something that he should have done earlier. The spell structure was easier to create because Dodu already done the calculations.

All Adrian had to do was to complete the spell structure and the spells would become reality as long as it is not interrupted. The spatial spells also became easier to manipulate even if the space itself was vibrating. Even in an unstable field, Adrian was able to teleport all of them safely without creating a rip in time and space.

"We have been saved!" The God Freyr stated but Adrian poured some water on that fire.

"We are not yet safe because the entire world has become unstable. The war with the frost giants has been creating a large energy pool in the atmosphere. I cannot transport us off world if this is the situation.

It would be another situation if I just activate the Bifrost but creating it from scratch is not easy if all of us will be in it. I might teleport us to a place different to our destination even with Dodu's help." Adrian stated as the fluctuations were too much to handle in the atmosphere for safe world hopping.

"By Dodu, do you mean the other you?" The God Freyr asked as he pointed towards Dodu who is currently using Adrian's form.

"Am I still hit badly that I am seeing two Equinox'?" Frey asked as he saw two Adrians before her.

Chapter 1619 Ravens Arrived

"You are fine. Dodu just transformed into me so that we can escape." Adrian replied but it seems that Frey was still out cold as the next sentences that she said should only be said in her head.

"If there are two of you then maybe I should keep the cuter one. Boop!" Frey stated as she was still in great confusion as she touched Adrian's nose.

"Ehem. Should we leave you two alone or something?" The God Freyr stated.

"You should not bother them, brother. You do know that the battlefield is when emotions are at a high. Spilling your heart's desire for a minute or two will not change much of the outcome." The Goddess Freyja stated as she found the interaction cute.

Frey suddenly got rid of her confusion which suddenly made her realized what she just did. She screamed in shock and embarrassment before standing up on her feet. She apologized to Adrian about her rude gesture as she blushed from the things that she remembers doing.

"No worries. You were not totally yourself and I do not hold you accountable for such embarrassing things." Adrian stated so that Frey would not be too self-conscious when they interact further.

"Thank you. My goddess! I am glad that you have finally been freed but it seems that you are not yet at your full power. I can barely feel your energy even though I am this close to you." Frey stated as she immediately changed the subject as she was back into battle mode.

"I cannot use any of my energy because I am sealed with these chains. The God Odin himself has clasped these chains on me and it is made of the same enchanted material that was used to create Mjolnir. Although it was only made using the remaining scraps, the anti-magic property is still incredibly high.

More importantly, I should thank Champion Equinox for getting us out of that problem. All of my Valkyries are also safe and that is what matters the most. Thank you very much, Champion Equinox." The Goddess Freyja stated.

"Thank you for saving us." The other Valkyries stated as they bowed towards Adrian.

"You should all thank Frey for saving you because I am just someone that aided her in coming here. I would have wanted to accept that thank you, but we are currently stuck here in Niflheim." Adrian stated as he tried creating an artificial Bifrost with Dodu but all of them spells failed.

The entire world is currently being ravaged by a powerful mana storm that is due to the powerful energies clashing. The battle of the Frost Giants and the people of Asgard is so earth shattering that they could still feel the vibrations from their location. They are currently trapped in their location as they cannot go to the Bifrost for transportation.

"Let me look at those chains. Maybe I can figure something out." Adrian stated as he asked the Goddess Freyja's permission to look at it, but the runes were not familiar.

He would need to study them for a day at the very least in order for him to look what are the magic properties of the artifact. Adrian thought that the addition of the Goddess Freyja would help them navigate this world as she always took part in the wars with the frost giants. He hoped but the chains were not made using the same runes that were used in the creation of the Bifrost.

The group was brainstorming on what they should do next when Gullinbursti suddenly started to become frantic. The God Freyr suddenly told all of them to huddle up as he cast illusion magic and solidified it with his own divine power. The sound of two ravens screeching could be heard and this sound was extremely familiar with the two gods.

"Huginn and Muninn are here!" The God Freyr stated as he immediately reinforced the illusion once more.

"Huginn and Muninn? Who are they? Are they gods like the God Freyr and the Goddess Freyja?" Adrian asked as he is not that familiar with the names of the gods in Asgard.

"They are not exactly gods, but they also exude divine energy. They are the ravens that whisper every information they find to the God Odin. Although, it is said that they are separate entities, it is said that they are actually part of the God Odin's energy that he split from his body." Frey stated as she is quite knowledgeable about the gods in Asgard.

"They are basically the God Odin's eyes and ears that can fly freely to any part of the nine worlds. Even I do not know how they were created before I was born. The two ravens being here means that the God Odin is looking at this world right now." The God Freyr stated.

"How long did you think they have been observing?" The Goddess Freyja asked but no one could give a straight answer.

"If the God Odin has been observing us at the beginning then, we must part ways with this planet as fast as we can, my goddess." Brunhild stated.

If Huginn and Muninn were already aware of what they did then the God Odin is also aware of what happened in Niflheim. He might be currently sleeping but the transfer of information from Huginn and Muninn is always working as the God Odin's brain does not stop processing information. It is likely that the God Odin already knows that the God Freyr has betrayed him.

"Is there really no chance for you to create a portal to another world?" The God Freyr asked as he feels something wrong is about to happen.

"Unless the war stops or the mass of energy disappears from the atmosphere vanishes, then we are stuck here. I can try opening a portal, but I do not know where it might lead or what might come out of it. It is risky to create a normal portal when there is a mana storm." Adrian stated.

"We can maybe wait at least a day. The God Odin will not be able to wake up by tomorrow." The God Freyr told himself but even he does not know the timeline of when the God Odin will awaken.

"It seems that we have visitors." Adrian stated as he sensed some sort of energy that seems familiar outside the illusion.

The God Freyr lifted a part of the illusion and they saw three frost giants standing in front of their location. The frost giants did not have any bloodlust, but they still made sure to grasp their weapons. They are in another world where the people of Asgard terrorized the natives which means that some of them may be harboring ill intent, but they are just masking it.

"Do you think they can see us?" Frey asked as she thought that they were just scouting the area.

"They can see us. In fact, she is looking directly at us with those eyes. She can see through the illusion as she has special eyes." Adrian stated as he could see that the female frost giant was indeed looking straight at them.

"Huginn and Muninn are no longer in the area which means we can take off our cloaking spell. Will those frost giants not attack us if I take it down?" The God Freyr stated.

"If they wanted to attack us then would have already done so. A surprise attack is not unique to the battlefield, dear brother." The Goddess Freyja stated.

What the Goddess Freyja makes sense as the frost giants and the people of Asgard are at war right now. Nothing is off the table when it comes to attacking but the frost giants in front of them were just standing there. As if they were waiting for the other party to engage in discourse.

"I will go out of the cave. They would not be that angry at a demon since we have done nothing to them." Adrian stated as he started to walk to the cave entrance.

"Be careful." Frey stated to which Adrian replied with a thumbs up.

"Is there something that you need of me?" Adrian asked the frost giants in front of him.

"Are your other companions not going to show themselves?" The female frost giant asked as she could see that there are other people inside the cave.

"They are apprehensive about that because they are from Asgard. I am quite sure that you people did not follow them but followed me. You feel the energy that I am radiating despite my best attempts at concealing it." Adrian stated as he could feel that the female frost giant before him was adept at picking up energy signatures.

"You are correct. I am just here to observe whether that energy signature that was unfamiliar with me would be a threat to our race." The female frost giant stated as she checked Adrian's energy on why it feels vaguely familiar to theirs.

Chapter 1620 Spears In the Air

Adrian could feel the tension in the air as he was told that he was being observed if he was a threat. He was ready to fight of the frost giants made a move, but they were just staring at him. The female frost giant then started to move closer towards Adrian when she suddenly stopped as she noticed the flying spears in the air.

"It seems that assessing your threat level would be for another time. We need to go and inform my father of what is going to happen." The female frost giant stated.

The group of frost giants suddenly vanished by transforming into a sudden blizzard which made Adrian close his eyes. When the blizzard died down, the group of frost giants were no longer in front of him. Instead, a large raven could be seen staring at Adrian blankly, but he knows that was not an ordinary raven.

"Sirius!" Adrian shouted as his thoughts echoed the commands that needed to be done.

Sirius suddenly jumped out of the shadows of the frozen ice trees and tried to kill the raven, but it flew away in response. This raven was Huginn as Muninn was in the direction of the settlement flying above it. A loud raven cry suddenly echoed as the flying spears that manifested in the air suddenly dropped.

These spears were made from the God Odin's power and contained some divine energy as well. The spears dropped towards the frost giants that were fighting with the people of Asgard. A large number of frost giants turned into broken shards of ice upon hit as it raised the morale of the warriors of Asgard because the God Odin was there for them.

"We have been spotted! We need to get out of here as soon as possible." The God Freyr stated as he knows that Huginn would have already alerted the God Thor and the God Loki of where they are hiding.

"It is already too late for escaping because I have already marked all of your mana signatures when Huginn led me to you." The God Loki stated as he suddenly appeared in front of Adrian and the others.

"You cannot beat all of us here even if you have all your powers." The God Freyr stated.

"You are correct in assuming that, but you forget that my daughter rules over a part of Niflheim." The God Loki stated as he took out an orb that has a hand that is half rotting inside of it and smashed it on the ground.

As soon as the half rotting hand was released from the orb, the entire area is suddenly filled with miasma that resembled that of an undead. Soon, numerous hands of corpses started breaking through the thick snow and showed their forms. The half rotting hand was none other than a relic that summoned the denizens of the kingdom that the God Loki's daughter.

"Draugr!" The Valkyries exclaimed as they are familiar with this type of undead.

Adrian could feel that the undead that was in front of him was not blessed by the God Abaddon which means they are undead that release miasma and target the living. The Valkyries grabbed their weapons as they need to defend themselves against the numerous enemies surrounding them. The God Loki suddenly vanished from everyone's sight, but he did not expect that one being could see souls.

"Primordial Armament: Twin Daggers!" Adrian shouted as he parried the two short swords that was aiming for his neck.

"You are good but not good enough!" The God Loki stated as his body was now visible.

Adrian managed to parry the attacks, but he could feel that they are extremely heavy. He was slowly getting pushed down to the ground as his legs could be seen deep in the snow. The God Freyr immediately jumped into action as he knows that Adrian cannot fully handle the God Loki alone.

The God Loki might look scrawny and thin from the perspective of a warrior but do not let that look fool you. He is almost as physically strong as the God Thor but is more magically intelligent. As if he is embodying of the Trickster God title, he does not look like he is proficient in battle, but he could actually destroy a large number of enemies just like the God Thor.

The draugrs are still spawning continuously as they were being transported here via the artifact earlier but that only lasts for an hour. The draugrs are also somewhat decent in strength but not too much that the Valkyries are getting overwhelmed. If the Valkyries have their equipment, then they would have easily smacked all of the draugrs but they are exhausted and armed with faulty weapons.

"Can you make sure that he does not interrupt me?" Adrian asked.

"I can." The God Freyr stated as he engaged in combat against the God Loki.

"Vortex!" Adrian stated as a small star rose from his hands.

Adrian snapped his fingers and the small star exploded to create a powerful black hole that sucked in all of the draugrs in the area. The God Loki clicked his tongue upon seeing almost all of the draugrs vanishing, but he already knows that this black hole only lasts a few seconds. The black hole is gone, and it cleared around 90% of the draugrs that has spawned but they were not stopping from being generated.

"Gungnir!" Frey stated as she hurled her spear towards the God Loki.

The God Loki was suddenly shocked to see the attack that resembled that of the God Odin, but he actually managed to deflect the attack using just one short sword. The God Loki was not impressed as he kicked the God Freyr away from him. Adrian suddenly felt a weird sensation when he looked at the God Loki as his sense of danger was flaring up.

"Watch out! Primordial Surge!" Adrian shouted towards Frey as he teleported behind her.

Adrian's sudden appearance behind Frey was unexpected but he did not teleport there unknowingly. Adrian swiped his daggers in a downward notion which to others look like he was striking air, but they realized why he did that. The sound of metals hitting each other as the God Loki parried Adrian's attacks as the former's invisibility faded out.

Frey is shocked to see the God Loki suddenly behind her when they could clearly see his body fighting the God Freyr. When their gaze shifted to the God Loki fighting the God Freyr then they could see that it was slowly turning into ice. The God Loki actually fooled their eyes as he created a body made of ice that could move.

The God Loki once again felt that Adrian was someone that he needed to eliminate as soon as possible. The demon before him was always the one that destroyed all his attempts in the main world and now, he is also becoming a major eyesore to him. The God Loki also knows that his son was killed by this demon which he actually planted on the main world so that it could gradually recover its strength as the world's restriction lifted up.

The God Loki casted a spell and his position suddenly swapped with the ice body that he created. Adrian's attack went through, but it just hit the ice clone of the God Loki. The God Loki could be seen incredibly frustrated as he was being pinned down because of a demon that was not even as strong as him.

"If only this world did not restrict my strength, then I would have easily killed off that demon and the others." The God Loki thought as he planned on killing all the others except for the God Freyr and the Goddess Freyja.

"Fear not brother for I have come!" Huginn, who was observing the situation, suddenly spoke human words.

Huginn suddenly started to shift into a more humanoid appearance as the raven's feathers suddenly fluttered in the area. The appearance of the God Odin could be seen which shocked the God Freyr and the Goddess Freyja as they did not know that the former has an ability like this. Adrian could clearly see the being in front of him does have divine energy but not completely.

"An amalgamation of divine descent." Adrian stated as that is the only thing that he could describe it as.

The raven, Huginn, lost its physical body as the God Odin used it as a temporary vessel for its soul to descend upon. This can only happen if the two beings are compatible which is possible because the ravens, Huginn and Muninn, are beings that were created using the God Odin's flesh and divine energy. As soon as the God Odin descended onto the battlefield, numerous spears once again appeared in the air.

"It took you too long, brother." The God Loki stated as he knew that the God Odin could do this type of divine descent.
