

One Night Stand With The Alpha King

7 - A Beautiful Temptation

Father asked random questions to Trevor, expecting to find a mistake in his identity. He never allowed Trevor to express himself at ease which made me a little upset. Yet, I trust him, and I don't have to worry about anything.

While they were having a deep conversation, I noticed a group of girls outside of our house. They were looking at Trevor, giggling like a kid. Their eyes were glowing, imagining a wild scene with him.

I watched them from the window. I liked how they admired my soon-to-be mate, Trevor. I know how it feels like seeing him for the first time. He attracts anyone without doing anything and that's insane.

I thought the girls would stop and leave after a few minutes. But, they remained persistent until most of the girls in the pack gathered outside.

“Dang it! I should have stopped them right away!”

I whispered into the cold air.

Out of the blue, Riger, Allison's twin brother, appeared behind my back. He's breathing heavily while looking in the same direction as me.

“The man you were with earlier, is it true that he is an alpha?” He asked.

I simply shrugged my shoulders. I didn't know he was an alpha, but I'm happy he is.

“At first I wasn't certain because his scent wasn't too strong. But when we arrived here earlier, everyone gave the same impression.”

Riger sighed.

“Well, you hit the jackpot. If he's an alpha, you can live here back with the twins.”

I don't exactly know what to feel. My heart is beating too fast, hoping father will give his approval to us.

A deafening silence embraced us. I turned around and ignored the girls who were watching and trying to get Trevor's attention. After all, he will always come home to where his children are living.

As the twins' mother, there's no room for jealousy and competition. The only thing that matters is their safety until they can live by themselves in the future. I will make sure they will grow up healthier and stronger than ever.

At that moment, the deep conversation turned into an interrogation. Father looked at me, telling me to sit next to Trevor.

“Come here!”

I gasped.

I don't know why father summons me to be part of the conversation. But the only thing in my mind are the twins and to get his approval.

“Do you know the reason why he disappeared a year ago?” Father asked.

I shook my head.

“No, I didn't know father.”

Father grimaced.

He was probably thinking that Trevor can't take care of me and our children. I will make sure to convince him right now or else I will marry Valor, my mate.

“With due respect, Sir. I didn't tell Therese the reason why I chose to disappear not because I am a coward. But it is to protect her and the twins from danger.”

“What do you mean?”

I asked, wondering why he suddenly vanished without any trace.

Trevor holds my hand tightly. He's telling me to listen and trust in him no matter what.

“Explain yourself, young man.” Father commanded.

“A year ago, after I met Therese, my greatest rival cornered me. He gave me two options, to disappear and let him be the alpha or stay and watch Therese suffer.”

My hands are shaking. I never thought he had to sacrifice to keep us safe.

“I wanted to stay knowing you got pregnant. But imagining a scene where Therese is suffering and dying in my arms— I can't bear to witness it with my naked eyes. That's the reason why I left and didn't have the chance to say goodbye.”

Trevor looks deeply into my eyes, telling me that he's sorry for everything. He can't bring back the time and take a risk, but he's willing to make things right in the present. I appreciate how brave he is for meeting my father and introducing himself as soon as he comes back.

“I see, but may I ask why you didn't tell my daughter about your plans? We could have helped you before.” Father asked.

I look at Trevor and he seems nervous. But he still managed to respond with enough conviction.

“The night before I left, I went here hoping to talk to Therese. Luckily, I found her at the falls nearby. I saw an unexpected scene that convinced me not to say goodbye anymore.”

I couldn't believe he was there. I still remember that day when Valor invited me to go to the falls. He told me it was a friendly date but it turned out to be him kissing me against my will.

“Why didn't you stop him?” I asked, holding back the tears from falling down my cheeks.

Trevor sighed.

“In his arm, you will be safe and happy.”

Tears fall into my face. I can't believe he had to bear the pain and longing by himself. To protect me and the kids, he surrenders everything without any sign of fear.

“That's quite convincing. It makes me emotional right now, but I'm warning you. Once you hurt my daughter again, you will be dead. Do you understand?”

“That's too much, father! Trevor sacrificed to keep me and the twins from death! How could you be so stone-hearted?”

Trevor stops me. He holds my hand and tells me to calm down or else we won't get my father's approval.

“I promise, Sir. This time around, I'll stay with them and be a great father.” Trevor replied.

Father crossed his legs and took a deep breath. He looked at Trevor one last time.

He said, “What is your plan with my daughter?”

For a moment, Trevor looked at me and smiled sweetly. We talked about our plans and there's nothing that can stop us right now.

“I came here to formally ask for your approval.” Trevor said. “I'll marry your daughter, Sir.”

Father's expression suddenly changed. He narrowed his eyes, looking at Trevor for a second.

“P-pardon?”

“I'll marry Therese, Sir. This may be too late, but I am willing to do everything for her. I can't lose her anymore, never again.”

Everyone around us was surprised. They couldn't believe how brave Trevor was for speaking what was in his head in front of my father. His confidence caught their attention, making me proud and happy.

After everything that I'd gone through, a beautiful moment finally happened. I was hoping father would approve our wedding as soon as possible.

“Keep your promises, young alpha. I won't hesitate to put your life in vain once you break her heart.” Father spoke.

“Yes, Sir. I promise.”

Trevor replied.

Finally, we got his blessings. My heart was full of joy, and I could no longer wait to live happily ever after with Trevor.

Since we still had ample time, I've decided to show my room to Trevor. I told him to follow my lead or else he would lost. But of course, it was merely a joke.

As soon as we arrived, I gently opened the door. It has been a while, but everything was its place. My favorite vase, the closet filled with old clothes, and my comfortable bed where I used to do everything I wanted.

“Come inside and make yourself comfortable.”

Trevor silently sat in the chair on the corner. He roamed his eyes around, smiling widely.

“Why are you smiling like that?” I asked.

“Your room is impressive. It makes me imagine our house looking so vibrant and peaceful like this one.”

Genuine laughter echoed around the room. I couldn't believe how his mind worked, making me nervous and blush at the same time. Trevor had a soft and funny side that made him more attractive than the first time we met.

At that moment, I showed him my childhood photographs. We were both laughing so hard until I realized that our faces were too close at each other. I swallowed and cleared my throat which caught his attention.

Trevor lifted his face.

“What's wrong?”

I shook my head, but my eyes were stuck on his lips. I've tried to look away and fought against temptation. However, it was too difficult to resist his charm until I took a deep breath and moved my face closer to him.

Our lips met and it lasted for a few seconds. I thought he didn't want it to, but he immediately threw the photo album and pinned me on the wall.

“Damn, you're so gorgeous and I can't walk away from a beautiful temptation as you are!”

Trevor whispered into my ear which completely took my sanity away.
