

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 194 Wake Up

Johny still did not wake up.

It had already been a day and a night, and there was no sign that he was going to wake up.

Ceres stayed by Johny's bedside the whole time. She found herself so helpless that she could do nothing but pray.

She had already asked Ruby again and again. Ruby's answers were the same. At present, he was out of danger. His vital signs were stable, but the brain damage was impossible to estimate.

Ceres helped Johny tucked-in quilt, and Swedum called again. She went out and answered the call.

"Mommy, has daddy recovered? I want to see daddy in the hospital," said Swedum anxiously.

Ceres had no choice but to comfort him. "Swedum, be good. The doctor said that daddy is out of danger. It's just that daddy is too tired and needs a good rest. Go to bed. When Daddy wakes up, I'll tell you, okay?"

Swedum said, "Mommy, you can't lie to me."

Swedum seemed to already know the adults' tricks inside and out.

Ceres said, "Okay, Mommy won't lie to you."

Swedum said, "Well, daddy is awake. You must tell me. Mommy, have a good rest, too."

Ceres said, "Okay."

"Johny, you must wake up. Otherwise, how can I explain it to your son?" Ceres heaved a sigh of relief after hanging up the phone.

The windows enclosed a blue sky of infinite depth and clear sun. Ceres could not help but squint his eyes and look up at the sky.

The nurse pushed the medical cart to the door of Johny's ward.

The bodyguard at the door immediately stopped her.

The nurse smiled and said, "It's to change the infusion liquid for Mr. Johny."

The bodyguards made way and smiled, the one said, "Weren't they all young girls before?"

The other said, "Yes, an old one came today,"

This nurse was Sally. She hated it when people teased her age. She took good care of herself. She was in her fifties but looked like she was in her forties. Some people would believe her if she pretended to be in her thirties.

Sally said, "What do you know? I'm the head nurse, so I'm older."

"Okay, Head Nurse, please come in," the bodyguard opened the door for Sally.

Sally immediately pushed the medical cart inside.

Johny was the only one in the room who had not woken up. She immediately pushed the cart forward.

After all, this was the first time Sally had done something like this, and she was also frightened.

She carefully recalled what Mary had said. She was right. If The Morrises and Mary both bankrupted, then she would not be able to rely on Ceres. Ceres hated her to death. How could Ceres raise her?

That was why she had done this in the end.

If Johny died, the Winsors would be Henry's. Mary gave birth to a son for The Winsors. That was the eldest grandson of The Winsors. The Winsors would never abandon her no matter what.

Sally calmed herself down and immediately took the medicine from the medical cart. It was glucose with special medicine. If it entered Johny's body for three minutes, Johny would immediately die!

At that time, no one would check what was in his infusion bottle.

Sally took the infusion bottle, replaced it with the infusion bottle she had prepared beforehand, and hung it up again.

The liquid slowly dropped.

"What are you doing?" A shout came from behind.

Sally trembled in fear. She turned around and saw Ceres.

Fortunately, she was wearing a nurse hat and a mask.

Sally replied, "Hello, Miss Ceres. I'm changing the infusion bottle for Mr. Johny."

Ceres slowly walked over and looked at the infusion bottle with glucose on it.

Ceres said, "When I left, there was still more than half a bottle left in the bottle. Why did you change it?"

"The doctor asked me to change. I'm not sure. I'll ask the doctor." Sally prepared to leave.

Ceres grabbed Sally by the wrist and pulled off her mask, "Mom!"

She immediately had a bad premonition and turned to look at the infusion bottle. The liquid in the infusion bottle had already entered Johny's body. She wanted to pull out the needle, but found that Sally was hugging her waist tightly!

Ceres said, "Let me go! Let me go!"

Sally hugged Ceres tightly, not letting go. She only needed to wait three minutes. Three minutes was enough!

"What did you do to the infusion bottle? Let me go!" Ceres struggled with all her might.

In the end, she was younger, dragging Sally's body forward with all her might.

"Don't blame me. Everyone needs to live for themselves, me too!" Sally gritted her teeth and insisted.

Close, close, almost...

Ceres gritted his teeth and dragged Sally's body. She suddenly exerted force and pulled the needle out. Blood flowed out from Johny's hand.

Sally saw that the needle was pulled out and collapsed to the ground.

She was exhausted and panting.

Ceres looked at the liquid in the infusion bottle and felt that something was wrong. She watched the liquid enter Johny's body and wondered if it was poisonous.

She immediately ran to the head of the bed and prepared to ring the bell.

Seeing this, Sally pulled Ceres back again, "Johny is dead, and all of this is over. Why did you save him."

When Ceres was about to touch the bell, Sally suddenly rushed over. Ceres directly fell to the ground and knocked her head on the corner of the table. She was suddenly dizzy.

The bodyguards outside the door heard the movement and immediately rushed in.

"Quick, call the doctor!" Ceres shouted at them.

The bodyguards immediately subdued Sally.

Johny slowly opened his eyes.

The blood on Ceres's forehead flowed down to the corner of her eyes, blurring her vision. She finally saw Johny open his eyes.

"Johny, you're awake?" she said.

"Your head..." Johny's voice was very hoarse.

The doctor said, "You're awake!"

The doctor rushed in.

"Doctor, quick! I don't know what kind of liquid is in the infusion bottle. Look and see if there is any poison, take measures quickly!" Ceres shouted.

Johny reached out his hand to touch Ceres's forehead but found that he was in so much pain that he could not move.

"Doctor, wrap Ceres up," Johny said.

Ceres said, "I'm fine!"

"Be good!" Johny shouted angrily.

A weak voice came from Johny, it was so dignified that no one dared to disobey it.

One doctor immediately wrapped Ceres up.

Both sides carried out at the same time.

The doctor quickly found out the specific ingredients of the medicine and re-injected the liquid for neutralization.

The ward was busy for a while and finally quieted down.

Ruby took his colleagues away, leaving only Ceres and Johny in the ward.

Johny looked at the bloody gauze on Ceres's forehead, raised his hand, and put it down again.

He said, "Does that hurt?"

At that moment, Ceres was in tears.

What was that bit of injury to her?

He was so nervous!
