

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 211 Who Was the Thief

When Mary was thrown out, Ceres was sitting in a car not far away.

She saw everything clearly.

However, she felt unusually calm and even happy.

She had finally taken revenge for her son.

The window was rolled up and the car left.

Ceres returned to the hospital.

Johny had also received a call. Everything was under his control.

Ceres sat expressionlessly by Johny's bedside. Then she picked up an apple and began to peel it.

"Yes."

"Mary really used all kinds of methods. She thought she could deceive everybody, but she didn't know that truth will come out sooner or later."

Ceres could not help but make the comment.

"So this is the ending you want?"

"You know everything, don't you?" Ceres raised her head suddenly.

Johny smiled mysteriously.

Of course, he couldn't let his beloved woman be hurt.

Ceres was very unhappy. She thought that she had personally taken revenge for her son by herself, but it turned out that it was this man who secretly helped them.

No wonder everything went so smoothly.

"Mind your own business!" Ceres glared at Johny fiercely.

When Ceres had just finished peeling the apple, Johny reached out and was about to take it. But Ceres opened her mouth and take a bite. Johny had no choice but to take his hand back.

"What Mary should suffer is enough?"

Ceres shook her head. "It's worse for her to live than to die. When the time comes, the court will look for her. Nyla won't let her go easily. She was ambitious, but can't live a luxurious life. There's still a lot of compensation waiting for her. I'm afraid she would even envy the dead."

Ceres did not expect her death, not to mention that she felt that death cannot punish Mary.

"Do as you say." Johny asked with one hand behind his head, "But when are you going to come home with me?"

"When did I say I wanted to go home with you? I didn't say it!" Ceres rolled her eyes.

"You" Johny lowered his voice, "You were like that on the bed that day. What do you want if you don't come home with me?"

Johny's voice was a little teasing.

Ceres only felt her face turn red. When she saw Johny's teasing smile, she immediately threw caution to the wind. "Like what? We are all adults, and we don't really do it. It's not impossible to go home with you. It depends on your performance!"

After speaking, Ceres stood up and walked towards the door.

"What are you going to do?"

It had only been three minutes since she came back. Didn't she know that her husband more needed her?

Johny was very unhappy.

"I am going out to relax. Bye." Ceres walked to the door.

She smiled mischievously at Johny and walked out the door.

In any case, Johny could only lie down now and could not do anything to her.

However, she was just provoking him. Of course, she wanted to go home with him and reunite with him. Who wouldn't want to?

It was just because she still had things to do.

Nyla had always been fond of Johny, and she had also promised Nyla that she would never reconcile with Johny. As a result, she went back on her word. She was afraid that it would take a lot of effort to explain.

Nyla had a straightforward personality and a true temperament. If she did not handle it well, she was really afraid of losing this good friend.

In addition, over the past few years, thanks to Kirs's care for her and her child, Ceres had always been avoiding Kirs's emotions for her.

However, avoidance cannot solve the problem.

Whether to solve Nyla's problem first or to solve Kirs's problem first really put Ceres in a difficult position.

In the end, he decided to meet Kirs first.

Ceres came to Kirs's home. She wanted to invite Kirs out, but it was rare for Kirs to rest on the weekend and he had an online conference.

When she came, the door was open, and Kirs was having the online conference in the study. Kirs stopped it since she was here.

"Ceres, sit down first. The meeting will be over soon."

"Alright. You just take your time."

"You are familiar with my home, so I will be casual with you." After that, Kirs returned to the study room.

Ceres poured herself a glass of water. She had nothing to do, so she entered Kirs's research room.

Kirs himself made a small research room at home. Although he was busy now and did not have much time to do research, he was still a well-known figure in this field. It would be a pity to completely give it up, so he made a research room at home. When he rested, he would occasionally study some artificial intelligence products on the market.

The most eye-catching was the small robot on the shelf. It mainly served as a companion, mainly for accompanying the children as well as some early education. It was this robot that helped the Cosmos Group get rid of the original predicament and also allowed Kirs to successfully secure the position of the chairman and executive president of the Cosmos Group.

Ceres played with the little robot. Unexpectedly, her cell phone rang and she was shocked. The little robot accidentally fell to the ground.

Several parts rolled out.

She hurriedly picked it up.

Because the small robot was made for children, all the parts were installed very firmly, and they would not fall easily in the center of the robot.

Perhaps it was because this small robot was not the final product and this problem was thus ignored. So this accident happened.

Just in time, there was a small chip inside. When Ceres picked up the chip, she accidentally discovered that there were two letters engraved on it: SD.

"SD?"

Ceres looked at the two letters in confusion.

She remembered when she was studying robots with Johny. During that time, in order to alleviate the pain of abortion, she was focused on studying robots. She gave this chip a name, called SD.

It was the abbreviation of Swedum.

It could also be considered as a memorial for their unborn child.

Why did this little robot's chip also have the same name?

How could there be such a coincidence in the world?

Ceres remembered that when she went to the Eagle Group, Olivia said that she was a thief!

The Eagle Group did not produce the robot that they developed back then. It was said that they lost the chip.

Ceres did not participate in the production of the small robot, so she did not know much about it. Thinking about it carefully, many characteristics of the small robot were really too similar to the robot she developed in Eagle Group!

Kirs had appeared at the door of the research room. He saw Ceres holding the chip.

"Ceres, what's the matter?"

"Did you steal the chip of Eagle Group?" Ceres raised the chip directly.
