

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 271 Speaking One Way and Thinking Another

Wasn't she Jamie's daughter?

Although Jamie had never seen Dahlia since she was born, Dahlia was her daughter after all. When she sent her daughter away, Jamie cried hard and kissed her tender face again and again.

In the past few years, Jamie had also asked the other party to provide her with photos of Dahlia, but because she was worried about being exposed, Jamie never dared to look at her daughter.

However, Jamie still remembered Dahlia's appearance. In her memories, Dahlia was so well-behaved and beautiful, just like when she was young.

"I'm really sorry, madam. These two children are too naughty. Are you alright?" A servant came over and hurriedly pulled Swedum and Dahlia, apologizing to Jamie.

Jamie stabilized her emotions. She was no longer Mary. She had to end everything with the past.

She was now Jamie, the heir of the Bullock Group!

"It doesn't matter. Take good care of the children."

"Yes, thank you so much."

Jamie looked down at the child a few more times. The shop assistant of guided Jamie downstairs.

Jamie suddenly realized that the little boy should be Ceres's son. Why did Ceres's son come here? There were only wedding dresses on this floor.

Just as she was thinking so, Jamie heard a familiar voice.

"Swedum, look! Does mommy's wedding dress look good?"

Jamie suddenly turned around and saw Ceres standing in front of the mirror in a white dress.

Was Ceres wearing a wedding dress?

Was she going to get married?

"Miss Jamie, did you forget something?"

Jamie hurriedly turned around and said, "No, let's go."

As she walked, she thought about something in her heart. Ceres and Johny were actually getting married.

"Miss Jamie, do you know Miss Ceres?" The shop assistant took the initiative to speak to her.

"I don't know her. It's just that she looks very familiar," Jamie said bluntly.

"Miss Ceres is so lucky. The person she is going to marry is Johny. I heard that their wedding is very grand and will invite all the celebrities to the Imperial City. It seems that it will be an unforgettable wedding."

"The wedding ceremony of Winsor family's former second young master is the grandest I have ever seen, Mr. Henry. However, it is said that something unpleasant happened at the wedding. His wife even fell on the spot and lost her face. It is said that she was pregnant at that time and thus lost her child."

Jamie's face became so gloomy.

She hadn't expected that after so many years, someone would still remember what had happened to her back then!

That was her wedding. The wedding she had dreamed of was ruined by that bitch Ceres!

"When did they get married?" Jamie pretended to know nothing and asked casually.

"It's coming soon. Next Wednesday. Miss Ceres is here to try on the wedding dress."

"I see..."

Ceres stood in front of the dressing mirror and saw a familiar figure flash through the mirror. She quickly turned around but saw nothing.

Ceres guessed that maybe she was thinking too much.

"Mommy, you look so beautiful in your wedding dress! You look like a fairy." Swedum smiled at Ceres.

Dahlia also opened her mouth and was shocked, speechless, "Ceres, you are the most beautiful woman I have ever seen."

Ceres was also happy when she heard the praises of the two children.

"I also think it looks good." Ceres's cheeks were red. She really wondered what Johny's expression would be when he saw her in the wedding dress. Ceres decided to keep this suspense until the day she got married.

"Daddy and mommy are going to get married. Your daddy and my daddy are brothers. From then on, my mommy will be your aunt." Swedum said happily.

"I have only seen my father twice, and I haven't even seen your father before." Dahlia's voice was still timid.

Ceres looked at Dahlia's pitiful appearance and thought that this child was really too pathetic. She learned from Johny that Dahlia's father, Henry, was a man who enjoyed himself and had no sense of responsibility as a father.

This child had been living in the Winsor's for a long time and had only seen him twice. It was obvious that Henry was also indifferent to this daughter.

"Dahlia, do you want to see your uncle?"

"Yes." A newly arrived child certainly wanted to see her family.

"Then I'll call your uncle."

Ceres called Johny, and the phone was picked up soon.

"What's wrong?" Johny asked in a low voice.

"Can't I call you if there's nothing?"

"Of course, you can."

"What are you busy with? Forget it. You can do whatever you want. I'm just trying on the wedding dress in the wedding dress shop. Do you want to come and take a look?" Ceres asked coquettishly.

"I still have a meeting in a while."

Hearing Johny's cold voice, Ceres could not help but mutter to herself. It seemed that Johny was not at all curious about her appearance in a wedding dress.

Johny, this conservative man, was really too cold. Ceres preferred it when he was outgoing and active.

"Then forget it."

Before Johny could say anything, Ceres had already hung up.

"Is my uncle not willing to come?" Dahlia asked with concern.

"Don't worry, he'll be here soon," Ceres said as she stroked Dahlia's head.

After spending some time together, Ceres had learned a lot about Johny. Although he said that he was unwilling, his action would not lie. Ceres was sure that Johny would definitely come over in a while.

"I still have some dresses to try. You two just stay here and don't run around." With that, Ceres immediately went into the fitting room.

Of course, there was not only one wedding dress at the wedding. There must be a wedding dress at the ceremony. Besides, when the ceremony was over, she still needed to change into a few more dresses. Each one needed to be tried on.

Just as Ceres tried the last dress, a familiar figure appeared in her dressing mirror.

"Your daddy is here!" As she said that, Ceres slipped into the fitting room quickly.

Johny walked over with steady steps. He only saw the view of Ceres's back and nothing else. Instantly, Swedum and Dahlia stood in front of him.

"Daddy, didn't you say that you didn't want to see it? Why did you come here?" Swedum smiled at Johny.

"Where is your mommy?"

"She's inside."

Johny directly bypassed the two children and walked to the fitting room.

"Don't come in! I'm changing my clothes!"

Johny was a little depressed. He was rushing over as quickly as he could, but he still did not catch up. He was really curious about what his Ceres looked like in the wedding dress, so he directly opened the door and walked into the fitting room.

"No!" Ceres screamed.

Swedum and Dahlia covered their mouths and laughed.

Ceres had just taken off her dress when she felt someone walking in. She hurriedly picked up the dress and covered her body.

The young girl's body just appeared in front of Johny.
