

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 276 The Wedding

Alice finally found Swedum and Dahlia, who was hiding under the table at the banqueting hall.

The two of them got cream and chocolate all over their mouths, like two little kittens.

"Hurry and get out!"

"The wedding is starting. It's time for you to show up. Go wash your face quickly!" Alice said as she pulled out the two of them.

She took them to the bathroom to wash their faces and returned to the break room.

"Ceres, I finally caught these two greedy pigs."

Alice complained as she panted heavily.

The woman sat still in front of the mirror.

Alice felt it somewhat weird. She found Ceres didn't even touch the juice and cake on the dresser at all. "Ceres, why not eat something? Then you will starve for a long time before the ceremony and dinner party are over."

Then the woman looked up, with her face covered with a veil. "I won't eat, or my make-up will be ruined."

"What's wrong with your voice?" Alice looked at her suspiciously.

"I had a sore throat because I choked accidentally just now when I drank some juice." She coughed as she spoke.

"Then what about getting you some water?"

"No, thanks."

At this point, a worker ran over. "It's going to start. Please get ready for it!"

Alice's heart was almost in her mouth. "Oh my god, I'm so nervous."

Nyla happened to hear it upon entering. "It's not your wedding, okay?"

Ceres walked out directly, followed by Nyla. After bustling around just now, Alice felt very thirsty. She picked up the juice bottle but found that there was no lipstick left on the straw.

She wondered, 'Didn't Ceres say she had drunk it and choked? If so, then why is there no lipstick mark on it?'

As she was thinking, Nyla called her. Then she quickly put it down and ran out.

The three of them walked out together with the two kids.

They took Ceres to the door and had the two kids stand in front of her. As bridesmaids, Alice and Nyla needed to be on the stage.

"Take it easy, Ceres. We are all here!"

"Exactly, Ceres. You can do it!"

Alice and Nyla cheered Ceres on and then left for their positions.

The host's voice came from inside. Then the door opened, and a beam of light was cast over the bride. Everyone looked at her.

"This bride wearing a veil is much too beautiful."

"She's so mysterious. Everyone must cheer when the veil is removed later."

"They're a perfect match."

The guests on both sides of the stage praised from time to time.

Holding a bouquet, Johnny walked along the path decorated with flowers and colorful lights to Ceres. As the host read the guiding words, he went down on one knee and presented the bouquet in front of the bride.

Then the bride took it and stretched out a hand.

When Johnny held the hand, he frowned. He stood up and stared at the bride.

She was startled by his gaze and quickly tilted her face.

Johnny looked away, and the bride took the chance to hold Johnny's arm. They walked along the path, with two kids scattering flower petals on them.

The petals and colorful bubbles were all over them. So were the blessings.

The path to the stage was long and short, and they walked under everyone's loving gaze.

Jack sat among the distinguished guests. Anyway, he finally came to witness his son's wedding and couldn't help but shed tears.

Sitting beside Jack, Zara glanced at him with contempt.

Alice and Nyla were also excited and kept waving to the bride, while Bob and Bill stood straight lest they would embarrass Johnny.

"Bob, are we the most handsome groomsman ever?" Bill nudged Bob.

Bob glanced at him and did not speak.

"Say something to ease my tension."

"It's not your wedding." Bob fixed his gaze on Johnny and the bride, greatly envious.

He was also old enough to be married. Recently, his parents had been urging him to marry Nyla. He glanced at Nyla. He heard that Nyla had another date and was going to marry.

He felt somewhat bitter.

Even if she did not have a date, he wouldn't marry her. After all, she once loved Johnny and even wanted to have sex with him. He felt uncomfortable at the thought of that.

"I'm just rehearsing. Maybe I'll marry at some time."

When Bill spoke, Alice was peeking at him. He felt a hot gaze. When he looked at Alice, she instantly looked away.

In the applause, Johnny and Ceres finally came to the center of the stage.

They went through a series of procedures, vowing, exchanging rings, and kissing.

Bill sighed, "I have to say Johnny's getting old. Even wedding is so boring, typical of a veteran."

Alice heard Bill's words because she was very close to him and couldn't help but smile.

Bill looked at Alice and smiled. He even winked at her.

"This is Ceres's wedding. Stop flirting like this." Nyla hurriedly stopped them.

"Don't be envious. You can also flirt with Bob," Bill said to Nyla.

Nyla glanced at Bob and said nothing.

As for Bob, he glared at Bill.

He thought, 'Bill always managed to say the wrong thing.'

"That's it!" the host shouted.

The guests gave them a big round of applause.

The host signaled everyone to quiet down. "This couple has made it through ups and downs and finally ended in marriage. Here, the bride, Miss Ceres, has prepared something to bring back their memories and to give the groom a surprise!"

The audience applauded again.

Alice and Nyla looked at each other in dismay and wondered why they had no idea about it.

The bride lowered her head with a shy smile.

"This surprise will be presented on the screen. Well, now let's look at the screen and see beautiful memories of the groom and bride's meeting and falling in love!"

The screen lit up.

But when an image appeared on it, everyone was shocked!