

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 284 They Looked Like Each Other

"Don't come here!"

Ceres instinctively moved backward.

But she didn't even have the strength to stand up.

Was she going to be destroyed by this crazy woman like this?

Ceres' heart was filled with fear.

The man rushed over and tore Ceres's clothes. "Oh... no, no!"

Looking at Ceres, Jamie felt extremely happy. She took out her phone and recorded the moment of "happiness".

The door opened once again.

"What are you doing here?" a berating voice sounded.

Jamie was shocked. Her phone fell to the ground.

As soon as she turned around, she saw Roy who was rushing in with large strides, as well as Caleb who had a serious expression on his face.

"Dad, I..."

The man stopped in his tracks.

Ceres hugged her body and curled up.

"Jamie, didn't you say..." Caleb was shocked when he saw Ceres.

She had clearly told him personally that she had definitely not kidnapped Johny's woman, yet there was a woman hidden here.

Jamie lowered her head. She never thought that Caleb would follow her.

Roy looked at Ceres, who was almost naked, and then looked at the red spots on her face. He hurriedly took off his coat and covered her body, then picked her up.

"Come with me!" Caleb shouted.

Jamie could only follow behind Caleb obediently.

In the room, Caleb sat on the sofa. He had just raised his hand, but before his hand could touch the table, Jamie knelt on the ground with a thud.

"Dad, I'm sorry. It's my fault. It's all my fault. Please forgive me!"

When Caleb saw Jamie shed tears, his heart immediately softened.

"You get up first."

"No, if Dad doesn't forgive me, I won't get up." Jamie knelt on the ground and cried.

"Jamie, why are you hiding it from Daddy? I have promised Johny that if you kidnapped his wife, I would definitely send her back to him. I never expected you to lie to me. You are framing me for being unjust!"

Caleb was most concerned about his reputation.

"Dad, listen to me. I was so angry that I kidnapped her."

"Why do you hate her so much? As far as I know, she is your sister from the same mother, isn't she? After all, you two grew up together. How could you..."

Caleb really did not expect that such an obedient and timid daughter would actually do such a bad thing!

Kidnapping Johny's wife in his vision was something that an ordinary person would not be able to do.

And just now, she seemed to be commanding that man to humiliate that woman.

"Dad, she doesn't deserve to be my sister! She bullied me since she was a child. Relying on her mother's love, she never took me seriously since she was a child. Her father was in prison. I felt she was very pitiful, so I always tolerated her, but she always wanted to replace me."

Jamie wiped her tears as she spoke, "She often bullied me while our parents were away. She poured laundry detergent into my mouth, and she deliberately knocked over the antiques at home and framed me, and watched as I got beaten.

"She even, even..."

"Even what?"

"She even ruined my appearance. We both look a bit like our mother, but perhaps because her childhood was too tragic, she was always full of hostility and was always very unlikeable. Others always praised me for being beautiful, but they often said that she was very fierce.

"She was so angry that she stole sulfuric acid from the lab and almost ruined my face!"

Jamie cried loudly.

Caleb held her in his arms with sympathy. He did not expect that his daughter had suffered so much.

"You said that the girl's father was in prison?"

"Yes, he did. It is said that he is a murderer. No one has ever cared about her. When she was brought home, she was very aggressive. She hit and scolded the servants at home casually. She almost even killed a servant with a kitchen knife."

Caleb sighed, "This kind of child was so cruel probably because no one has taught her since she was a child."

"Yes, but our family didn't desert her, and always treated her as a member. I didn't expect her to actually... One night, she almost strangled me to death. She said that as long as I died, she would be the only daughter in this family."

"How can she do this at such a young age!" Caleb had not expected this either.

"She was worse than that. Back then, the Windsors wanted to find a wife for Johny. According to the fortune-teller, Ceres was the most suitable. But she was unwilling to marry and said that she would be like a widow if she married. She even threatened to commit suicide. However, the Windsors' power is something our family can't resist. I had no choice but to agree."

Jamie sobbed as she said, "I don't know how she heard that Johny was pretending, so on the wedding day, she cried and wanted to marry him. In the end, Johny really woke up. Because she was willing to marry Johny when he was in a vegetative state, Johny had always been very good to her.

"However, she was too greedy. Being afraid that her previous matter would be exposed, she insisted that the person who was originally going to marry was me and that I was unwilling to marry, so I asked her to marry Johny.

"Johny's attitude towards me has always been very bad, almost taking my life a few times!"

Jamie threw herself into Caleb's arms and cried, "It wasn't easy for me to save my life. The heavens were good to me. They made Henry fall in love with me and he even wanted to marry me. But my wedding was ruined by her! She ruined my wedding and caused my miscarriage. Dad, I lost my first child..."

Caleb could not help but tears streamed down his face as he helped her up from the ground with sympathy.

"Alright. Don't cry. It's all in the past. Daddy will back you up. No one will bully you anymore."

"OK."

When Roy came in, he saw Jamie wiping her tears in Caleb's arms.

"Alright, Jamie, this matter is done. When the ship is docked, let that woman go. Send her back to the country and return her to Johny. This way, I won't go back on my word."

Jamie nodded.

"Go back and rest for a while. I have something to say to Roy."

Jamie knew that her father obviously asked her to leave, but she couldn't say anything and could only walk out.

Roy walked over.

"How is the girl?"

"Her face is disfigured," Roy replied with some regret.

"Disfigured?"

"I don't know what material Miss used on her face, but I feel like it can't be washed off. It's like a tattoo. If it is washed off, it will leave a scar. From her forehead to the corner of her eye, and half of her face is full of this tattoo."

Roy felt that without those red spots, this girl must be very beautiful.

Caleb sighed deeply, "It seemed like Jamie had indeed suffered a lot. Otherwise, she wouldn't have been so ruthless."

"Mr. Caleb believes in Miss Jamie?"

"After all, she is my daughter," Caleb sighed.

"Mr. Caleb, there is something very strange. Without those red spots, the woman would be very similar to Miss Jamie."
