

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 293 A Great Secret

Jamie turned pale with fright when she heard Sally.

"What did you say? Is Ceres in the manor? Why is she here? What did you tell her? Did she know something?"

Jamie pressed hard and asked a series of quick questions.

Sally stepped back until she sat down on the bed.

"Jamie, calm down first!"

Jamie wanted to shout. But thinking that the wall had ears, she lowered her voice.

"How can I calm down? Does she know something and want to take back her identity?"

Sally pulled Jamie down, "Sit down first! Ceres doesn't know anything. I've checked. She does suspect that you are not Caleb's biological daughter, but she doesn't think about herself."

Jamie felt strange, "How is this possible?"

Ceres knew that the murderer who was in prison was not her biological father and she was born to Sally and another man. Ceres should first suspect that she was Caleb's daughter!

"I don't know. I think that Ceres is a little strange this time. Before, it seemed that she was sick of me when we met. But this time, although her tone is not good, it is much better than before."

Jamie pondered carefully, but she couldn't figure out anything.

Sally pulled back her thoughts. "Jamie, you have taken Ceres's place. Just let her go. May forgive and forget. Remove the red spots on her face and let her live a good life with Johny. She won't think that she is Caleb's daughter."

Jamie's face darkened, "Let her go? Did she let me go? She never showed mercy to me!"

Sally turned around and faced Jamie again. "It is another option. Think about it. As long as she and Johnny live a good life, she won't provoke you. We will never return to Imperial City. Isn't it great?"

Jamie sneered, "Mom, your thoughts are too simple."

Sally didn't know how to persuade Jamie.

"Why is Ceres here? It was because she let us go. If we let her go, she will come back and bite us in the future!"

So why should I leave the hidden danger?"

Jamie narrowed her eyes.

Sally felt cold. She knew that Jamie was preparing to attack Ceres.

"Jamie, do you want to kill Ceres?"

Jamie did not answer.

"Jamie, don't do anything stupid!" Sally was scared out of her wits.

"Am I doing something stupid, or are you doing something stupid?" Jamie angrily scolded, "Don't forget, you came up with this idea. We are in the same boat. If someone knows, neither of us can run away. You know Caleb, right?"

Sally fell onto the bed.

She never thought she would be so forced by her own daughter.

Seeing that Sally was so scared that her face turned pale, Jamie sat down next to Sally and snuggled up to her. "Mom, you want to be biased again. We finally have a good life now. Why does Ceres come to cause trouble?"

"If you don't go to Imperial City to provoke her, she won't come." Sally's voice was very soft.

Jamie opened her mouth, "I was angry."

Sally's voice softened, "Jamie, listen to me. We should be satisfied with our current life. Don't do bad things anymore, okay? Keep Ceres's life."

Jamie could only pout when she saw Sally's determination.

"I can't kill anyone unless someone puts a knife on my neck." Jamie rolled her eyes and said, "Mom, let me test her first to see what she is doing here. Then we can talk about the next step."

Pulling Sally up, Jamie asked her to turn around and push her to the door.

"Discuss it with me before you do anything." Sally was still a little worried.

They had many good opportunities, but they wasted them.

Sally had learned a lesson after suffering a lot. She just wanted to spend the rest of her time peacefully.

"Alright. I understand!"

After pushing Sally out, Jamie's smile disappeared.

"Ceres, you ask for it. Don't blame me."

The next day, Ceres got up early and began to sweep the floor in the hot spring room.

She was in a daze when she heard someone gossiping.

"Have you heard of it? The servant who was on night duty with Miss Jamie last night was dead."

"Dead? It's too scary."

"What are you talking about?" Ceres asked.

The other two people in charge of the hot spring room waved to Ceres. "Be quiet, don't let others hear you."

"Miss Jamie is terrible! Everyone says she may be sick. She scolds and hits people at every turn. She has changed five servants!"

"Didn't she just arrive?" Ceres asked.

"Yes, she has been here a few months and changed five servants! It was said that the one who died last night committed suicide in the dormitory and took sleeping pills."

"I don't think she takes sleeping pills. I heard that Lady Sally was looking for Miss Jamie yesterday. Then Miss Jamie rushed out and shouted at the servant on duty, who died the next day. The servant probably heard something that she shouldn't have heard!"

Ceres felt cold.

Sally should have asked about the antidote for the red spots on Ceres's face. But even if the servant heard this, it would not affect Jamie.

Jamie would not force someone to die.

It was so strange.

Ceres thought that Jamie had a great secret.

"It's better for us to stay here. Although it's a little tiring, we won't have to worry about our lives."

"That's true." The two servants sighed.

"Is Miss Jamie Mr. Caleb's daughter? Her personality seems much different from Mr. Caleb's." Ceres asked carefully.

"Why not? Is the DNA fake? Alright, let's get to work!"

They began to wipe the ground again.

Ceres was thinking about something.

A voice came from outside.

"Miss Jamie is coming!"

Everyone was scared into a mess.
