

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 308 Like Father Like Daughter

"I see it."

Johnny's face showed no emotion. He did not understand why Ceres would talk about this.

"Then why didn't you ask me about it?"

Ceres did not believe that Johnny could ignore such an ugly red spot. Since he had seen it, he should at least ask about it. However, Johnny did not say anything.

"Why should I ask?" Johnny said.

Ceres choked on her words.

His wife suddenly had such an ugly red spot on her face. A woman who was as beautiful as a fairy became an ugly monster, but he wondered why he should ask.

Seeing that Ceres's expression was a little strange, Johnny hurriedly said, "Perhaps you need it for some reason."

Only then did Ceres realize that Johnny knew that the red spot on her face could be washed off. She probably told Johnny about this before. But it was different this time. She could not wash it off.

"Yes, I... need it. I'll wash it off in a few days." Ceres lowered her head like a child who had done something wrong.

Johnny noticed that Ceres seemed to be a little off. He cupped her face and rubbed his thumb against her cheek.

"Come home with me," said he.

Ceres only felt a burst of bitterness. She also wanted to go home, but could she go back?

She did not answer.

Johnny gently kissed her on the forehead and said, "I still have something to do. I will come back to see you later. Call me whenever you need. When you're better, I will take you home."

Ceres could only nod obediently. She did not know how to refuse Johnny.

After Johnny left, Ceres's thoughts were all mixed up again. She tried to recall what had happened before, but the harder she tried, the less she couldn't remember.

While Ceres was losing the train of thought, Caleb and Roy came in.

"Ceres, why do you look so pale? Did you lose too much blood? Let me ask the doctors to do something."

"No need." Ceres did not seem to be in the mood to talk to Caleb.

"How could that be? Listen to me! You need a transfusion."

"I said there was no need. Why are you so troublesome?"

Ceres, who was in a bad mood, shouted at Caleb.

Caleb was stunned. He never expected that nowadays there was someone who dared to shout at him.

"Ungrateful little bastard, didn't I do this for your good?"

Ceres also realized that her attitude was not very good. She quickly calmed down and apologized, "I'm sorry. And thanks so much for your concern."

However, Caleb was still upset. He complained, "Look at your attitude! If it weren't for me this time, you would have lost your life long ago. How about this? To repay me for saving your life, you should be my goddaughter. You should be filial to me from now on."

Ceres rolled her eyes. 'Why does he still talk about the goddaughter thing?'

"Mr. Caleb, it seems that I saved you, right? Yes, it was indeed you who saved me later. But I was the first to discover the bomb and saved you, okay?"

Roy tried hard to hold back his laughter at the side. He found it interesting.

"Hey, you little girl! You have to learn how to repay kindness. Yes, you found the bomb. But it was indeed me who saved you. If I hadn't kept pulling you, you would have died."

"Can you figure out the order? Let's put it this way. If I didn't find the bomb, you would have died. You would have no possibility to drag me to run."

This was the first time Ceres had met such a stubborn and unreasonable old man.

Caleb choked on his words. Then he refuted, "If I hadn't gone to find you, you wouldn't be able to find the bomb in the car."

"Did I ask you to look for me?"

They argued back and forth. Neither of them could win the battle. In the end, they even talked back about the thing that happened in Bullock's manor.

Roy couldn't hold it in any longer and burst into laughter.

Caleb and Ceres turned to look at Roy. Roy hurriedly held back his laughter and said, "You guys continue."

"What's so funny?" Ceres glanced at Roy.

"That's right! Roy, what are you laughing at? Why don't you speak up for me but giggle there? I did all this for you!" Caleb stomped his feet in anger.

It was the first time Roy had seen Caleb being so angry.

"It doesn't matter if you are willing or not. I am going to have you as my goddaughter. You have no choice!"

Caleb gave his ultimatum.

Ceres rolled her eyes at him.

"I've never seen someone as unreasonable as you."

"Who are you saying is unreasonable?"

"You! It's you! I already said I don't want to have another dad! I have a biological father. Why should I acknowledge a godfather? I haven't lost my mind."

They started arguing again.

Roy looked at the way they bickered, his smile disappeared.

"They look too similar when they quarrel!"

A bold idea suddenly flashed through his mind. 'Could Ceres be Caleb's biological daughter?'

'Otherwise, how could they be so alike?'

Roy was also shocked by this idea. At first, he hoped that Caleb could learn more about Jamie through Ceres. So he let Ceres and Caleb get close to each other.

They were incredibly similar. However, it was impossible to fake the DNA report. Who would dare to fake it under Caleb's nose?

However, someone might do something like this for money or something else. Roy decided to investigate this matter in secret.

In Bullock's Manor.

Jamie paced back and forth in her room, the news of the explosion and the gun battle had been rolling out, and the protagonist of this incident was Caleb!

"He didn't die in the explosion, nor did the gunfight kill him. How many lives does he have?"

"How could he still be alive?"

Jamie had a headache. She murmured, "How good would it be if Caleb died? In this way, I could successfully inherit the Bullock Group. However, Caleb actually survived."

When Sally heard Jamie's words, she was so scared that her face turned pale, "Jamie, is this explosion and gun battle have something to do with you..."

"You overthought it. How's that possible? It's far beyond my ability." Jamie glanced at Sally.

Sally was relieved to hear that. She said to Jamie, "Don't do anything stupid. Caleb is persnickety about integrity and loyalty. Be a good girl and he will hand the company over to you. You are his only daughter. So do anything you'll regret!"

Sally thought that Jamie was getting bolder, and she was getting more and more afraid of Jamie.

Jamie snorted and said nothing.

"However, Caleb is kind to everyone. Who wants to kill him this time?"
