

Overwhelmed 139

Chapter 139 Nominating The Vice President

As Milton was about to continue speaking, his phone rang yet again. Raul's name flashed on the screen.
As Milton was about to continue speaking, his phone rang yet again. Raul's name flashed on the screen.

"Milton, where the hell are you? Come back now. Something's up! The major shareholders are holding an impromptu meeting. You need to be here quickly!" Raul's tone was urgent.

Milton's frown deepened. An impromptu meeting?

It seemed like these shareholders had nothing better to do all day long.

"On my way," he replied curtly.

Without wasting any time, Milton started the car and dropped Candice off at the nearest subway station.

But before she could step out, however, he stopped her with one arm.

Without wasting any time, Milton started the car and dropped Candice off at the nearest subway station.

But before she could step out, however, he stopped her with one arm.