Chapter 28 Stary With Me For A While

Benjamin watched her quietly.

After a long time, he let go of her, gently leaned against the back of the leather chair and closed his eyes slightly.

He seemed so tired.

Madelyn couldn't say anything to blame him, instead, she just turned aside to look at him.

After a while, Benjamin got up and pressed a button. The roof slid off and was replaced by a piece of dark blue glass. The stars in the night sky were extraordinarily bright in the mountains...

Benjamin leaned back and didn't say anything, and he just looked up at the night sky intently.

Madelyn was about to ask him a question when she was grabbed by him.

She was forced to lean on his shoulder. Smelling the unique woody fragrance of his body, Madelyn's face was sort of blushing.

"Stay with me for a while!" Benjamin's voice was hoarse.

Madelyn couldn't refuse!

She didn't know if all successful men were inclined to show their weakness, or if all women would take that, but Benjamin had helped her, therefore, when he was tired and fragile, she couldn't push him away.

Benjamin asked her in a low voice, "What

Benjamin suddenly chuckled, which meant he was in a better mood now. He scratched her face softly with his slender fingers, "Why are you so obedient? Ms. Green, are you repaying me, or enjoying yourself now?"

Madelyn was sort of ashamed to be seen through by him! She ignored him, and moved directly to the passenger seat... Benjamin snorted softly and glanced at her.

Madelyn's face was blushing, and she tried to disguise her awkwardness by saying, "Mr. Clark, please take me home."

Benjamin saw that her face was slightly flushed.

He was surprised somehow. Madelyn and Daniel had been together for four years, so she was supposed to be experienced in such thing. But why did she always feel awkward?

Benjamin's heartstring was struck by Madelyn. He was indeed interested in her.

He sent Madelyn home. The address was not the high-end apartment but a dilapidated residential area. Madelyn said softly, "Here is where I'm living. Thank you, Mr. Clark."

Benjamin lowered the car window, looked over at the building outside, and then turned his eyes to Madelyn's thin body.

In fact, he knew well about how much she had endured, but she didn't take the opportunity to ask him for help today.

For a moment, Benjamin felt pity for her.

He even wanted to make an exception to help her!

But this thought had just flashed across his mind. In his eyes, they were not close enough for him to do so for her.
