Chapter 661 - 661: Klaus Vs Everyone (4)

"Skybound Bow Arc!" Hanna commanded from up in the air as the heavens roared with thunder dancing through the storm clouds. "Devastating Exploding Arrow!"

A thick, three-meter-long arrow made of lightning shot from her bow aimed right at Klaus, who suddenly felt a sense of danger for the first time since the start of the battle.

He tried to move, but then he felt the ground give way, and his legs sank into it as the ground turned to metal around him.

The Zhou twins acted precisely as they practiced.

"Oh shit," Klaus muttered, then his body froze when he came face to face with Kilian, who now had a tall, dark figure standing behind him, pointing a sword at him.

"Rain of Swords!" Aoi slashed down at the same time, and then a giant axe arrived from behind him, along with a tall spear and countless sword arcs and wind arcs.

Klaus, who was now locked in place and about to be overwhelmed, smiled.

The attacks were well coordinated and aimed at him with purpose. However, he was worried. He raised his finger and snapped.

"WHAT?"

There was no explosion, no shockwaves.

Nothing happened. Instead, the attacks that were coming toward him entered a dark gold mist, and that was all. None landed on his body.

The sword arcs, the countless sword manifestations, the wind arcs, the spear manifestation- everything just snapped away like they were nothing.

Only the metal ground remained, but the rest of the attacks were simply canceled.

All around the battlefield, his friends wore shocked expressions as their well-prepared attacks were neutralized just like that.

Even the overlords held shocked expressions on their faces.

"What just happened?" Overlord Mira asked, looking in Queenie's direction.

However, when she saw that Queenie was equally puzzled, she was taken aback, so she turned to Old Lu. Queenie was also staring at the monk.

So she turned to the dean, who was smiling like someone who had seen a ghost.

"That, ladies and gentlemen, is the most disturbing ice you will ever encounter. Do you see the dark gold mist around him? It has the ability to devour anything.

When I say anything, I mean anything—ranging from attacks to auras emanating from those several times stronger than him.

Of course, if the attack is more than he can handle, he wouldn't be able to devour it. But attacks from those he is stronger than can easily be consumed.

And as you all know, Klaus is already at your level, so imagine that and think about just how monstrous that is," Old Lu explained with a smile.

"Just how strong can one person become?" Overlord Mira muttered.

"This is good then; at least he is not our enemy, meaning we have a powerful ally on our side," Overlord Dharma said, smiling.

The others also smiled, knowing what he said was indeed true. Klaus is an enemy they cannot afford to have. So having him as an ally is very good for all of them.

Back on the battlefield, Klaus's friends, who had spent weeks inside forbidden zones training and creating attack patterns, stared at Klaus, who was still rooted to the ground by the Zhou twins.

They had turned the ground into metal when Anna sank his legs using her water element.

Klaus was smiling at them as he gently tapped the ground, and the metal was devoured, causing the twins to look at him like he was some kind of monster.

"Bravo, guys, you have created a really powerful attack pattern that can easily kill even a level 3 Ascendant, but I am not someone you can hurt with such puny attacks.

I know you all are afraid of hurting me, but you don't have to worry. If you are not okay with attacking me, then know that this is also a clone I made using my illusion.

This means you can kill this body," Klaus said, causing his friends to narrow their eyes at him. They were holding back their attacks because he might get hurt for real.

But hearing this was also an illusion; it wasn't something they had seen coming. In their mind, this was the real deal.

Naturally, they turned toward the lady who was able to distinguish the real from the fake.

"He is telling the truth. The real Klaus is sitting over there," Kathy said, pointing in a certain direction.

When they turned and looked, they saw Klaus sitting with his legs crossed, biting into an apple. He waved at them when they met his gaze.

"What the fuck?" Danny shouted. "So you're all telling me all this while, we were only fighting an illusion?"

"Yes. I wanted to tell you guys earlier, but your emotions were in turmoil, so I held back. Now, you know, meaning you can kill him now without worry," Kathy said, smiling.

She wanted to join, but she also didn't want to take the moment from the ladies and guys. She saw how hard they trained to create these combined attacks.

They wanted to be able to surprise Klaus with it, so they trained, and for a while, they made many mistakes until they mastered it.

However, now...

"This is heartbreaking," Anna sighed. "To think after months of training, we couldn't even handle an illusion."

She shook her head and bowed it. She was broken from the realisation that they underestimated their opponent in order to make themselves feel good.

"No need to look dejected, Anna. I just went through much more intense training than you guys, which is why I am this monstrous.

But fear not, I will turn you ladies and gents into monsters soon."

"But still, we should at least be able to handle a mere clone. Fuck, you're not even using any attacks on us. You're just defending. Shouldn't we at least be able to do something?"

"Nia already killed me once, so you won a round already," Klaus said, trying to lift their spirits. However, they were still defeated, considering some of them hadn't even gotten to attack yet.

Lucy made sure they created five different attack patterns while they were on their missions during Klaus's absence.

This meant they had devised five killer moves that could put an Overlord in a tight spot.

However, from the way things were going, they were just going to wipe those patterns from their minds and rethink their approach.

Klaus had already seen a lot of flaws in their attacks, which he planned to correct later. But they were too defeated to even consider winning against him now that he had seen most of their skills and techniques.

"Come on, guys. I didn't battle eight Overlord-level demons at the same time only to lose to you guys. So please stop whining and come up with something that—"

Klaus was about to finish his sentence when a figure moved past him, and a smile appeared on his lips.

'Axel.'

Mason moved past him, but the next second, he was behind him. Klaus turned and blocked his attack. But then, a smile appeared on Mason's face. He lost his footing for a moment there.

Mason's attack brought back past memories.

Klaus, who was chewing on an apple about a hundred meters away, smirked when he saw Aoi cut off his head.

Chapter 662 - 662: The Element of Surprise

Thousands of assassins came after Fruity, Klaus's fourth incarnation, but only one managed to impress him. From the tormented world to Valeria and beyond, he faced many assassins, but Axel was different.

He was also the only one who got close to killing him.

Back then, when they became brothers, Axel told him his strongest ability was the element of surprise.

The element of surprise is when you never expect something to happen, yet it does, and you can only try to adapt within that millisecond, or else you will die.

Back then, Fruity adapted within that millisecond when Axel attacked him, and yet again, he did that today, but he died.

Of course, Klaus saw it coming, but to lift the spirits of his friends, he intentionally lost his footing when Mason attacked, which gave Aoi the chance to end him before he could recover.

Klaus could have evaded all these attacks as if they weren't there, but when he saw Mason move, for a moment, Axel's more mature and serious expression appeared on Mason's face.

This brought back some memories, causing Klaus to let them have this.

His head was severed from his neck, bringing some color to the faces of his friends, who turned and all smiled at Mason, who had scored them a win.

"Nice one, Mason, buddy. I knew there was something special about you," Kay, who had fought tooth and nail with him just a while ago, said, tapping him on the shoulder with a smile.

This made Mason smile slightly. They were finally warming up to him.

He still needs time to adapt to his current life, but he is adapting, and this simple gesture from Kay made him feel included more.

The rest of Klaus's friends gave him a nod with smiles on their faces.

Lily turned to the real Klaus, stuck out her tongue, and started teasing him. Klaus just smirked and pointed up.

The ladies and gents, upon seeing this, looked up only to see another Klaus standing with his hands clasped behind him.

"Not again," Lucy muttered, turning to look at the real Klaus.

He just smirks, knowing the ladies are feeling down seeing another clone.

"No need to look at me. This time, I will be attacking, so you all should be ready to defend," Klaus said through the illusion clone.

"Give it your best shot," Lily shouted, causing the illusion of Klaus to smirk.

He raised his hand, and a portal appeared. From within the portal, a gong emerged along with a small red stick.

"What is that?" Aoi asked, looking at the gong in Klaus's hands.

"That is a very terrifying weapon. Everyone, fortify your minds," Lulu, who managed to see the true nature of the gong, shouted, but she was a moment too late.

"GONG!"

Klaus struck it, sending a gong sound that immediately caused his friends and the women to start seeing triple and quadruple.

Even Kathy wasn't excluded.

"Your minds are really weak," Klaus said as he struck the gong again. This time, most of them dropped to the floor, with only Lulu and Nia left standing.

Even Aoi passed out. The mind attack he unleashed was just too much for them to handle.

"GONG!"

Klaus struck the gong once more, and this time, Lulu couldn't hold on any longer and passed out. Nia, however, just stood there, watching Klaus with a smile on her face.

It was like the sound was amusing to her ears.

[She swapped with her shadow. This means mind and soul attacks won't work on her. This young lady is smart.]

"I don't think you can hurt me, dear," Nia giggled.

"I have to say, I didn't see that coming. But why don't you look behind you?" the clone said, smiling.

Nia, sensing someone appearing behind her, turned, but before she could do anything, Klaus lifted her into a princess carry, causing her to yelp.

The real Klaus appeared and swept her off her feet.

The duel was over, and on the ground now were his friends and the ladies, passed out from a simple mind attack.

Klaus carried Nia away while they waited for them to wake up. They couldn't resist the mind attacks, so they passed out.

This means Klaus would have to train their mind,s too.

The overlords who saw how Klaus easily defeated his friends looked at each other and sighed. They had expected a good fight, but this was not what they had anticipated.

Of course, his friends showed great teamwork and a display of skills, but Klaus is just too monstrous. Now, he had shown them he was someone worthy of taking on Overlords and beyond.

"You really are wicked, Klaus," Nia, who was in Klaus's arms, said, beating his chest. "Do you know how heartbreaking it felt when my dagger went through your back?"

"I know, and it was my own way of telling you to never hesitate when attacking your opponent. In fact, never hold back when facing your opponent," Klaus said.

"A day will come when your opponent will take my face and copy my style. So when that time comes, don't hold back. Trust me, you wouldn't want to hold back."

Nia nodded, but she still needed time to come to terms with the idea of killing someone who looked like Klaus. Just thinking about it seemed to sour her mood.

"Don't think too much about it. I will make sure you never enter a situation that will require you to kill me," Klaus said, making her lighten up a bit.

"You really are monstrous," Nia said.

"You too. To think you can change places with your shadow and become immune to both soul and mind attacks—that is just monstrous," Klaus said, making Nia smile slightly.

"If you're impressed, why don't you reward me instead?" Nia blushed, knowing what she was asking for was something any of her sisters would hesitate to request.

"Don't worry; I will spend the night with you alone today," Klaus said, kissing her cheek. "We'll go all night."

Her blush deepened, but she was more than happy to spend the entire night with her man.

«Looks like you have an admirer, dear. There's a beauty staring at you,» Nia suddenly said to Klaus using their connection. Klaus smiled and turned to his right.

There, he saw a tall, stunningly gorgeous lady who was looking at him with keen interest, though she pretended she wasn't staring at him.

«How can a person be both tall and beautiful? Damn, this lady is gorgeous, and from her physique, she's a brute fighter.»

«Yes. That's Vida Stronghold. She's an axe user and also the leader of the Iron Fist Clan, the 4th-ranked faction in the academy. She's also the strongest body cultivator in the entire academy.»

«I want to fight her using my bare fists like a true body cultivator,» Klaus said, making Nia smile.

«Are you sure you don't just want to get her into your bed?»

«That can be decided later. For now, I want to see just how this tall beauty can handle herself first.»

«Suit yourself. She clearly seems to want to talk to you but is shy. Approach her first, then.»

Chapter 663 - 663: Vida Stronghold

"I couldn't help but notice you were admiring my handsomeness, so I said, why not come a little closer to have a talk with such a gorgeous beauty?"

Vida Stronghold, who had taken her eyes off Klaus and Nia, nearly jumped in fright as a voice spoke from behind her.

She could swear it had been less than three seconds since she last looked at Klaus. So how, then, was he standing behind her? The dangerous part was that she hadn't noticed him appear there.

Klaus smiled, watching her move away from him and look at him as if she had seen the most dangerous monster in existence.

"You know, it's not nice to sneak up on people," she said in a calm tone.

"I couldn't resist approaching you since you were too shy to come to me," Klaus said with a smile.

Vida looked at him with so many negative thoughts before sighing.

If she were to think of what had to be done to this brat, perhaps by the time she was done, so many ladies would be shedding tears.

"I want to talk to you," she said.

"I am here, so you might as well get to it," Klaus said with a smile. The process by which he moved and appeared behind Vida was just too alarming.

I mean, with someone at her level, she should at least sense some disturbance. But even with her level 4 Sovereign stage senses, she didn't even sense a peep from him.

"I was sent here as the representative of the Neutral factions—my faction which is the Iron Fist Clan, and the Aqua Spirit Sect. We are the only two factions that didn't look for trouble with your faction."

"I know, and that was smart of you," Klaus smiled, but Vida didn't. The smile coming from Klaus was anything but friendly as he complimented them for not coming after his faction.

"We have an offer, and we would like to see if you are interested."

"Fire away. I'm listening."

"We want to form an alliance with you. We have seen over the past month how much your faction is growing, so we want to form an alliance with you so our factions can also benefit.

We would like to rise alongside you, especially since most of our members are friends with people from your faction.

I would also like to point out that we haven't accepted any of the members who betrayed your faction, and we are committed to following your orders if that would allow us to form this alliance.

My faction has 1,300 members, and the Aqua Spirit Sect faction has 980 members."

"I see. It is actually thoughtful of you to seek such an alliance. But I would like to ask: among the thousands of people in the two factions, how many of them do you really trust?

I know there are many, with a few being spies from other factions. So, how many can you trust? Also, how many of them are willing to put their lives on the line for the missions to come?

I know you wanted to find out how my faction members are growing. In truth, they are just committed and willing to embrace the danger—that is how they are rising.

Of course, not all of them are adapting to the change, but their determination is seeing them through, so they never back down.

So, can you vouch for your faction members?" Klaus asked with a slightly serious expression. This caused Vida to sigh.

"To tell the truth, I cannot vouch for 80% of them. But I know and trust a few who are willing to embrace the change and rise.

These few are the ones who are willing to enter the wild with me and fight for this Earth. To tell the truth, I only see 75 as worthy teammates.

But as a faction leader, I can only fight for all my members, which is why I am here now asking for this alliance."

Vida sighed again.

"It's good you didn't lie. This shows you are truly serious about this alliance. I will consider it, but until I make any decision, you cannot tell anyone there will be an alliance.

Also, I have something else I will discuss with you, including the people you truly trust. So, I will give you an assignment," Klaus said, glancing toward his friends, who were still passed out on the ground.

"What kind of assignment?"

"I want you to find a way to test the loyalty of your members and identify those who are truly loyal. Once you find them, gather their information and come see me.

You can relay this information to the leaders of the other faction. Tell them they should also do the same. Once they have their trusted members, I will decide on the next steps."

"Alright. Thank you for listening to my request," Vida said with a slight calmness and a sigh. She could tell she had made progress in her request.

"Don't worry about it. I cannot, in good conscience, deny a request from such a tall beauty like yourself," Klaus said, causing Vida to look down at him.

She was taller than Klaus, so it was really funny watching him from above. Klaus smiled, raising his eyes to meet her gaze.

The two appeared like the Shorty and the Mountain Titan...Such a nice story

"I will be leaving now." Vida could only sense the mischief in his gaze, so she chose to leave while she was still in control of her emotions.

The eyes staring at her were just too beautiful. If she played around too much, she would find herself in a situation she was not prepared for.

"I look forward to talking to you again, my tall beauty," Klaus said, causing Vida to trip as she moved away. However, before she could dive face-first onto the floor, a hand caught her.

"You might want to watch where you step, Madam Vida," Klaus said, helping her stand upright.

Vida hurriedly moved away, trying to hide the redness that appeared on her cheeks. Klaus simply smiled and returned to Nia, who was grinning and shaking her head.

"You really are a brat; you know that right?" she said, opening her arms for Klaus to step into.

"She is special. That body of hers is something she should not take for granted."

"Then do you plan on making sure her body isn't taken for granted?" Nia teased.

"It's only natural. Such a Titan beauty must be nurtured."

Chapter 664 - 664: Plans and Ambition

Three hours after the duel with Klaus, every last one of his women and friends who had passed out woke up with slight headaches.

"Klaus, you are very wicked. Why did you use such an attack on us when you knew we aren't that strong when our minds are put to the test?" Lucy pouted, now sitting on Klaus's lap like a baby.

His ladies were gathered around him, and his friends were also seated with their women nearby. It was a fine afternoon for Klaus and his companions.

"How else am I going to know if I don't try it? And from the results, it seems I have a lot of work to do to turn you all into elites.

As warriors, you must have mental, soul, and physical fortification. All of you, except Nia, lack that. You're basically asking to be killed at any moment," Klaus explained, prompting sighs from the group.

"Are we that weak?" Lily asked.

"Very weak," Klaus replied honestly, further deepening their sighs.

"If this were a life-and-death battle, I would have killed all of you in under ten seconds—and when I say all of you, I mean everyone, including Kathy."

"You're joking, right? Kathy is an Ascendant and a divine beast," Hanna said, clearly disliking the idea that her beast companion would die against Klaus in under ten seconds.

"She is an Ascendant, alright, but her mind is still weak. Just like how all of you collapsed, she did too. If I wanted, I could knock her out using a mind attack and kill her afterward," Klaus explained, leaving Hanna with no choice but to sigh.

"No need to look down, Hanna. When mind attack is taken out of the picture, I'll be able to kick his ass like a merry-go-round," Kathy said with a cheeky smile, bringing laughter that lightened the mood a little.

But Klaus was rather taken aback by how Kathy could now use her words like a real human.

'I guess a divine beast is not like the others out there still trying to understand human emotion. She is different.'

"Mason, how was your first day coordinating with future friends?" Klaus asked, prompting Mason to raise his head and answer.

"It was fun. I've never had this much of a fight in my entire life, so I enjoyed it. It's just that I didn't realize how big the gap is between me and the rest of you," he sighed.

"Don't worry about that. Now that you're here with us, you'll start to see progress soon. I'll make sure that by the time you reach the Great Sage stage, you'll be fighting Tier 10 monsters," Klaus said.

Though he was smiling, they all could tell he was serious.

He then snapped his fingers and locked Mason's cultivation base. "I'll unlock it when I'm done rebuilding your foundation."

Mason didn't question him and simply nodded.

This made his pals raise their eyebrows at the newcomer.

But they could understand he was just adapting. Once he gets used to the brat—whose true strength none of them could see—he will start protesting a few things.

"So, what is the plan? We are all practically cannon fodder at the moment, but I don't plan on being that for long. So, what's next?" Danny asked.

"I have a few things planned, which will start taking effect after tomorrow when the Moon-Borns arrive. First, I plan on creating an elite force that can handle the threats surrounding us.

But aside from that, I will also create different battalions that will comprise some of the finest warriors Earth has to offer.

This will mean, soon, you all will start training and leading a small group of warriors who will be your responsibility on the battlefield.

You will also be the ones to hold the banner up when the battle reaches its direst stage because, trust me, we will face harrowing dangers.

But I have no plans on attending funerals, so I will turn you all from greenhouse flowers into Black Dahlias."

You will become the heart of Earth, and when the time comes that we will have to make a stand, we will stand with our shoulders high, and chests puffed out, for we will have the strength to counter all."

"Goosebumps—I have literal goosebumps," Hanna commented, flashing a teasing smile at Klaus. His friends all laughed, but his words touched them.

Though the brat is mostly shameless, today wasn't one of those times. Klaus is being serious, which, like Hanna said, brought literal goosebumps to their bodies.

"No need to think otherwise, y'all. The moment you awaken your bloodlines, you will understand why you all are special. But before that, you will all have to put your lives on the line, and I am going to make sure of that.

It's only in true life-and-death battles through which all of you will realize your hidden potential and unlock your strength."

"We will follow your arrangements, Klaus. You are our inspiration, so whatever you have planned, we will listen," Ling, one of the Zhou twins, said, feeling her blood boiling.

"Alright. I look forward to when we put that determination to the test. For now, go spend time together with your men, for when we go out there, you won't have the energy even to kiss them."

They all laughed but nodded and dispersed.

"Mason, come see me later today," Klaus said to him before the spearman, who was now thinking perhaps his life was about to change, walked away.

"You ladies should also leave. I have an appointment with Nia," Klaus laughed, setting Lucy down. He walked to Nia and took her into a princess carry.

"Why only her? We all want to spend at least one round with you," Lily pouted.

"Tell that to your weak selves. While you all were having a nice nap on the ground, Nia stood her ground and resisted the mind attack. So she calls dibs today," Klaus said as he lifted into the air with Nia in his arms.

She cast teasing smiles at her sisters. They all can see the mocking expression in her eyes, and for a moment, Lulu contemplated using a soul attack on her.

But then she is immune, so...

"This is unfair. She only managed to resist because of her shadow," Anna also complained, but Klaus grinned and flew away.

"That bitch. Had it not been for me training with her a few times, she wouldn't have discovered that hack," Lulu complained.

She was the one who helped Nia learn of the special aspect of her shadow: the soul and mind neutrality. Thanks to her, she is now going to spend the entire night with their man.

"I say we should crash their party," Lily proposed, and the ladies nodded, but Lucy stopped them.

"Let's go for now. Since Klaus is now back in the academy, we will have all the fun with him. He knows that through sex, we grow, so he wouldn't deprive us of that."

The ladies nodded, and soon, they were gone.

Meanwhile, Klaus and Nia arrived in her room, where the rest of the day and the night would be spent doing what they loved.

Chapter 665 - 665: Shadow Demon, Nia [18+]

Nia held Klaus's dick in her hands as she sucked it with a smile and a blush on her face. She was really happy to get the attention her sisters were jealous of.

Of course, she knew Klaus was just teasing them, but she was more than happy to go with the flow, showing them all that she would betray them when it came to the paragon rod.

None of her sisters will consider their feelings when it comes to spending time with their man.

Though they trust and have each other back to the point they will die for them, when it comes to the Paragon Rod, they can be backstabbing demons.

Klaus is even thinking of using the Paragon Rod to motivate them when he begins their training. It would be the most effective tool in this regard.

"You have become very strong, Nia,"

Klaus said, causing Nia to pull back and ask, "How so? Even with dozens of us, we barely manage to scratch your back." Nia wasn't stupid.

She knew Klaus was just complimenting her because he wanted her to feel better.

But the thing is, she was already feeling better.

The fact that she thought she had killed her man in the early stages of the duel was still weighing on her heart, but she had recovered quite well, and right now, she was happy to be getting this attention.

"The you now and the one I met back in the Everlasting Zombie Forest—I can tell you have grown by leaps and bounds. It's even showing in the way you are sucking my dragon," Klaus joked, making Nia blush deeply.

She smiled and then went back to sucking him.

A while later, Klaus came, and she received the star juice with vigor. Klaus didn't object when she went down on him again and then again, only stopping after the fourth time.

When she was done, Klaus laid her on the bed with her legs spread as he planted his face between her legs and started eating her pussy.

It was like she had been given a microphone.

Her moans filled the room, and her immediate roommate, Lucy, could almost hear her through the noise-canceling devices in every room.

Klaus made sure she felt it deep, so he kept eating her and made sure she kept moaning for close to an hour before he stopped.

Nia came a couple of times, but she was still energetic enough to move on to the next phase.

However, she didn't climb the paragon immediately. Instead, she asked a question.

"Klaus, do you think one day I will be able to stand by your side and fight powerful enemies the way you do?" Her question was from the heart.

After Klaus easily defeated them, she realized just how weak she was, and it wasn't just her—all her sisters felt the same way.

They wanted to know if they had a chance to stand by him while he fought against the heavens.

Klaus had already started facing difficult odds, but now, they are also growing, and due to that, they have already started making plans to be his strength against whatever odds he goes against.

But they are also weak, so they want to know.

Klaus smiled and pinched her nose.

"Silly girl, do you really think any of you are that simple? None of you are—and when I say none, I mean every last one of you is someone worth fearing.

Take a look at yourself right now. You're just a Great Sage, but you can easily kill a sovereign and even give a transcendent a run for their money. This alone should tell you that you're already dangerous.

But since you all don't seem to sense that, just relax and let me handle your training. I promise you, by the time I'm done, you all will not only stand by me—you'll be the ones fighting my battles for me.

I trust and believe in you ladies, so believe in yourselves, too."

Nia nodded, hearing him say all that.

Klaus nodded back, for he knew now that his friends and loved ones were no ordinary people. He could already see that in Miriam, Nadia, and Queenie.

He knew for a fact that the rest also had ties to his past, and as they grew, so would their potential. He would ensure that.

"Good girl. Now that we're done with that, can we start?" Klaus asked, causing Nia to blush. But she climbed onto him and began riding him.

A couple of hours later, Nia passed out in Klaus's arms as they both drifted to sleep. They were exhausted from all the rounds they had gone through, so they relaxed, knowing they would be busy tomorrow.

However, while they slept, the power of the Paragon Stars awakened and finally connected the Shadow Demon to Klaus, causing the mark of a broken dagger to appear on his back.

For a moment, Nia's mark appeared on her forehead, witnessed only by her shadow in an awe-inspiring sight.

She would begin to sense the changes in the days and weeks to come. She will start seeing glimpses, flashes, and changes in her body.

She will start to grow just from having strange dreams.

When her bloodline finally awakens, and Klaus somehow recovers all his memories that link to Nia, she will awaken her constitution and her innate talents that once made her who she was many years ago.

Many years ago, the Shadow of Death, one of the most dangerous assassins in history, was sent after a certain Paragon.

Back then, the Shadow Demons were the masters of the assassin class. There were different clans of Shadow Demons, each with unique abilities and talents.

However, they all shared one common trait: their innate talent for assassination.

The Shadowless Clan.

The clan of the Shadow Demon race considered the most dangerous assassins to this day, sent their finest—one of the most beautiful demons you will ever meet—after this paragon.

It was said that during that time, the paragon, who never backed away from a fight, had to flee, for there was a shadow following everywhere he went.

For 365 days, he had to play the game of cat and mouse with this lady who never compromised, nor did she back away from a mission.

Nia, now sleeping peacefully in Klaus's arms, was once one of the most feared assassins, capable of killing using only her shadow.

It even became a saying that when you meet a shadowless demon with no shadow following her, know that seven lives are in trouble.

The strongest Shadowless Demon has seven shadows and each shadow is as lethal as the real body itself.

Nia only has one now, but even that alone is enough for her to neutralize someone like Lucy.

The reason they call them shadowless demons is that every breathing second, they are killing from great distances using their shadows.

Soon, the one who made even a paragon run for his dear life will be reawakened, and perhaps this time, instead of chasing after him, she will fight with him.

She will become his most lethal blade, for the shadowless demon only does one thing: kill without any reservations.

Chapter 666 - 666: Getting Ready [18+]

The next day, Klaus woke up refreshed and happy, for the first thing he saw was his woman attending to him intimately.

"Good morning, dear," Nia said with a cute smile.

"Good morning, love. Looks like you're rather busy this morning," Klaus remarked, and Nia blushed.

"Big Sister Queenie said I should tell you to get ready. You'll be joining the party that will go receive the Moon-Borns," Nia said, completing her message before ensuring Klaus rewarded her with her breakfast in the form of star juice.

After she received her dose, they bathed and left to meet the rest of his ladies, who were all in the next room.

Klaus made sure he kissed them all, promising to attend to them in pairs later. For now, he had to go to Kathy and his uncle Monk, who would be part of the welcome-to-Earth party receiving their new neighbors.

"So, only you and Kathy will be going, huh?" Lucy asked.

"Yes. Queenie wants all the top guns to create an environment when the Ascendants from the Moon arrive. We can't look weak now, can we?" Klaus laughed.

"So she wants to intimidate them," Nia asked.

"Let's say having a handsome Prince such as myself and a divine beast on her side will ensure the moon-borns get in line if they try to be cocky.

And I know they will be cocky, for I expect them to be so I can tell them the new hierarchy they've stepped in."

Klaus said, smiling.

Kathy, now an Ascendant, will be standing with the Overlords. Despite being just a Transcendent, Miriam is also on the level of an Ascendant, so she will join the War Gods and Goddesses in welcoming the new neighbors.

In fact, Klaus knew some of the Ascendants would fall if she were to clash with them.

She had begun to gain some benefits from her past without even realizing it, so it could be said she was not a normal Transcendent.

Old Lu will also be joining the team.

The Battle Monk is someone not even Queenie could look down upon because he is very dangerous and deadly. He will join, and hopefully, they will be able to welcome their neighbors well.

"Make sure you don't do anything cheeky while meeting them," Lily said. Knowing Klaus, he might just cause trouble for everyone.

"I promise. I'll just stand to the side and let the adults handle it," Klaus smiled and shared a kiss with them again before leaving to meet Kathy, who was sharing the same room with Hanna.

"Come on, Klaus, knock next time," Hanna glared at Klaus, who had entered her room without knocking.

Unfortunately, he walked in on something he had never seen the dignified Hanna doing.

"Come on, no need to look flustered; I'm like your future husband, so I should be privileged to such a sight,"

Klaus smiled and looked toward the bathroom door, where Kathy had just showered. She entered the room with a towel around her body.

She looked at Hanna, whose hands were covered between her legs, and smiled.

"I told you to do it inside the bathroom. Now look at you," Kathy laughed, making Klaus stare back at Hanna, who was naked and doing something she shouldn't have considering she was now flustered.

"You do know you can always come to me, right? I know you said you're not ready, but that doesn't mean I can't use other ways to make you feel good," Klaus said with a smile, causing Hanna to look at him and smile.

"I know, I just..." She couldn't continue her words.

"No need to be shy. It's not like we haven't seen what you look like down there. And for your information, you look amazing there. I'd like to explore there someday."

Hanna blushed. She was embarrassed that someone other than Kathy had seen her doing that. It wasn't her first time, but perhaps after today, she would become much bolder next time.

Kathy walked in and dropped her towel, causing Hanna to run and cover her. "Kathy, you can't let this bastard see you naked!"

"I don't mind," Kathy just shrugged, causing Klaus to smirk. He chose to give the ladies some room and went out, waiting for Kathy to get dressed so they could leave.

Inside the room, however, Kathy and Hanna looked at each other and smiled.

"I'd say that's mission successful, right?" Hanna said, and Kathy nodded.

"Now, all you have to do is spend one night with him, and you'll be fine. I can't help you in that aspect," Kathy smiled.

"Come on, Kathy, you know I can only rely on you. Help me one more time, and I won't bother you anymore," Hanna said with a cute pout.

"You really are spoiled. I don't know much about romance, but I've seen enough to know Klaus is in love with you. Can't you just take that and do something with it?"

"I am shy. That bastard has a way of making one shy when around him," Hanna said, smiling.

"Then do what you do best and sneak into his room when he's alone," Kathy smiled as she fixed her hair.

"You do know I'll help you when you're ready, right?" Hanna said.

"I wouldn't ask for your help when I'm ready. Since I know I want him, I'll go to him on my own," Kathy teased, and Hanna smiled.

"You and the brat are a match made in heaven. How can you abandon your own sister when she needs you?" Hanna pouted.

"You already made progress with him during the vacation. Though you're not ready to commit yet, you can do what he said and go to him. That should be enough."

"Plus, you're beautiful, so unless he hates you, I doubt Klaus would ignore you when you ask him to go down on you."

"Fine. But when I get there, I will make sure you suffer," Hanna smiled.

"You can try that, but I think from the reaction Klaus gave when I dropped the towel, even if you bewitch him, he still won't be able to resist once he sees my body."

"I am quite beautiful, you see."

Kathy laughed, making Hanna smirk, and went to shower. Her beast companion had become something akin to a big sister she could count on.

At first, when Kathy hadn't become a Divine Beast yet, she would have fallen for her schemes and actually tried to talk to Klaus for her.

But she is a Divine Beast now, so her intelligence is on another level. This made her very smart, so she wouldn't fall for Hanna's schemes anymore.

Hanna could only hope she gained the courage to take the next step.

Chapter 667 - 667: Arrival of the Moon Borns (1)

"This is KKKickinIt with Controversial News!" All over the world, everyone is tuned in to their favourite news and gossip channel.

The brown-skin beauty, who, although beautiful, men still don't want to approach due to her gossipy nature, was smiling through their screens.

She had been providing a lot of updates these past few weeks, so everyone was ready for more. It was finally time for the Moon Borns to arrive, so they were eager to listen and watch what else would happen.

"The long-awaited day has arrived. Per the announcement made by the leader of the Overlords, the people on the moon will be descending today, and as such, they will be welcomed.

Right now, the welcome party is almost ready to depart. I will be going with them, of course, but before that, I will be taking a few words from the Overlords and the other party members."

The haters are hating on her for having all the attention. But to everyone else, this was a rare chance to see their favourite Overlords.

Even if it's through their phone screens.

KKKickinIt moved toward Overlord Isaac, the Overlord from the Austria Union.

"I wouldn't want to waste your time, my Overlord, but what can you tell us about the events that are about to happen? I know you have your own opinions, so can you drop a gossip or two for us?" She smiled, showing she was very comfortable around them.

"Well, I don't have much to say, but the fact that we had neighbours on the moon all this while and never knew was just too scary.

I mean, what would have happened if they had attacked instead of coming to an alliance with us? But of course, since they came peacefully, we will also receive them peacefully.

This is better for everyone. The future depends on how we live with everyone and see each other."

He smiled, causing almost all the ladies on Earth to blush like red tomatoes.

KKKickinIt went to Overlord Dharma next. He had made thousands of ladies collapse, some even wetting themselves just from his looks—specifically, his pink eyes.

Klaus always knew that Overlord was just too beautiful for a man.

His eyes thought dangerous to someone who truly knew just how harrowing they could be like a charm to the ladies.

He is more beautiful than he is handsome.

"As for me, I think this is good.

As my brother said, it would have indeed been troublesome if they had attacked without us knowing they were attacking since we have no idea they've been there all these years, but since they are here in peace, we will also receive them in peace.

Just like we are now living peacefully with the Water People and Ice Folks, we will live peacefully with them, too."

KKK nodded to his words with a thoughtful expression. The events that happened when the ice people appeared were something nobody would want to see again.

Her next target was Overlord Sorrine from the Ice Union. She was an ice-cold beauty. She was also the strongest person the Ice People produced when they surfaced all those years ago.

"When my people arrived, we thought these humans were weak, so we became arrogant. Well, we learned it the hard way, so them coming to us peacefully was already a step in the right direction.

Of course, we can never know how many like them are still hiding out there, but we just hope when we meet, it will be as peaceful as this one."

They all assumed this peaceful decision was reached thanks to Queenie becoming a Void stage expert. Of course, anyone would assume that.

Queenie is a monster on the battlefield, so they will assume this peaceful resolve was reached thanks to her intimidating presence.

However, the truth was far from that

Klaus had shown them that even a Grandmaster could handle the tribulation of an Overlord.

This got them thinking a lot about how many like him are hiding on Earth. They didn't want to find out the hard way.

In short, Klaus scared the shit out of them, so they sought peace.

"Next is the leader of the Overlords herself. Please, what are your thoughts on the events about to happen?" she asked, and Queenie answered with a straight expression.

"It's always good to have more warriors as allies. This way, we can better protect the Earth and ensure we live much more peaceful and happy lives."

Her warrior side spoke, and everyone who heard her nodded.

Before the Ice People appeared, Earth was a rather dangerous place to live. There were limited warriors to fend off monster tides and protect cities.

But after they appeared, it became a little safer.

Then the Water Folks appeared, and more warriors emerged. Right now, most can boldly say they are living much safer and more peaceful lives.

So, if a new set of hands was on the way, it only meant there would be more warriors to fill in where we were all lacking.

"Thank you for speaking with me, Overlord Queenie," KKKickinIt said before turning her eyes in a certain direction, where Old Lu, Klaus, and Kathy could be seen landing on the ground.

She smiled and quickly approached them. She always enjoyed talking to Klaus, so this was a rare occasion for her.

"Looks like not only the Overlords will be joining the party," KKKickinIt said, stopping the three people that had just arrived.

"Hello there, KKKickinIt. Please, don't you have another name besides this? This one is a mouthful," Klaus said, smiling.

"It's my brand name, but since you asked, I can only tell you." She moved closer to him and whispered into his ear, making Queenie, who was acting like she wasn't interested, narrow her eyes at the vixen trying to steal her man.

"A beautiful name. You should use it more often." Klaus, of course, knew what would make the Overlord tick, so he decided to tease her.

"I guess I will, but only behind the camera."

"Good enough. By the way, this is the dean of the academy. You can just call him Old Lu. And well, I know you're wondering, so yes, he is a monk, which is why he's bald."

Old Lu landed a smack on the back of Klaus's head before smiling into the camera and moving away.

He knew Klaus would be doing all the talking since he could tell from the look on KKKickinIt's face that she was more interested in Klaus.

"What about the beautiful lady beside you?" KKKickinIt asked with a slightly raised eyebrow. Kathy's aura took her aback. She knew right away she was on the same level as the Overlords.

"Her name is Kathy, and as you already guessed, she is an Ascendent. She is also my servant and the one who does my—ouch!"

Klaus wasn't even done when another smack landed on the back of his head. Kathy clearly has grown a pair, so she smacks him when he calls her his servant.

KKKickinIt giggled, with Overlord Mira and Sorrine also joining in. Only Queenie controlled herself from bursting into resounding laughter.

That would destroy the cold beauty Overlord image she was painting.

Klaus just sighed after suffering such injustice in front of everyone to see. Even his mom saw it and laughed out of her stomach.

"Ladies, right? You can never know what goes on in their heads." Klaus shook his head, then looked up into the camera and smiled.

"What do you think, KKKickinIt? Do you want to comfort me and tend to the pain I'm in?"

"Hey, Klaus, we're leaving," Queenie, who didn't like where this was going, decided to end the interview before she could no longer hold her jealousy and cause a scene.

"Let's continue inside," Klaus said.

He could sense Queenie was very jealous, so he gave her a reason to be bold, for he knew she would need him in the next few hours.

He and Ohema have cooked something up.

Chapter 668 - 668: Arrival of the Moon Borns (2)

"So, Klaus, what are your thoughts on the sudden discovery that there were people on the moon all this years and that now, they are the allies we will be welcoming into our world?" KKKickinIt asked.

They were now inside the jet, speeding toward the Northern Union, where the previous Union City had been rebuilt into a nice, ultra-modern city now named Moonville.

"First of all, I have to say that it's very scary that for years, we've been living with people right up on our moon. I mean, when the moon illuminates the night and we all smile, do they also smile back at us?

The fact that we had no idea there were people right up there was very dangerous. Now, however, they are becoming our allies. They will become our brothers and sisters in arms.

So I say that is a good thing.

Of course, I know many still have so many questions, some of which revolve around the question of whether they can be trusted.

The answer is simple: the Earth is for all of us, but right now, the same Earth is housing monsters that outnumbered us in the millions.

They are both dangerous and unpredictable.

So this calls for us to have more warriors, and luckily, from what I know and have heard, the moonborns have capable warriors. So, asking whether or not we can trust them, the answer is yes, we can.

The reason is that they are now part of the same world we are all fighting to protect. So, since they are now with us, we can only trust them and believe they will not betray our trust.

But as to whether or not this is a good alliance, that one, too, I believe it's a yes.

This is a good alliance, and I believe through this, when the next race appears from either the planets in our solar system or those beneath the earth, we can coexist and fight together to protect this world."

"That is impactful. Thank you, Klaus," KKKickinIt said before returning to the camera.

"As you all heard, not only does our own Klaus think this alliance is a good thing, but he also believes that if more people were to pop up tomorrow, they would be accepted into the Earth alliance.

I say that is a big move for all of us to accept. Having more to fight and protect the weak is always the priority here.

Then again, I will wait for our neighbours to appear before coming back with more updates. For now, let's wait and see what happens next."

She turned off her camera, which is controlled by AI. Technology has made it so that only one person can open and manage a business as if dozens are working under them.

Two hours later, they arrived at Union City, where over a dozen warriors could be seen waiting for the arrival of the overlords.

Miriam was part of them, meaning this group included the war gods and goddesses of every region in all unions on Earth.

"We greet the overlords," they said as the overlords descended from the jet. KKKickinIt and Klaus had already jumped out of the jet long before the overlords appeared.

Kathy and Old Lu remained until after the overlords were greeted before they also came down. Hundreds of media houses were there, capturing everything they could.

This was a rare event, so they were there to document it all.

Arrangements had already been made, so they didn't need to do much and simply chose to wait. Thirty minutes later, a humming sound came from the clouds.

A second later, a giant spaceship—or at least that's what it looked like—appeared through the clouds and slowly came to a stop a few meters after emerging.

Across the Earth, everyone watching held a shocked expression at the sight that had appeared on the horizon. Even the war gods and goddesses present were visibly stunned.

Their neighbours had arrived in a spaceship.

That was just bonkers.

Earth had been trying to build spaceships like that for years already. They wanted something capable of travelling to nearby planets.

Before the apocalypse, humans never dreamed of exploring those planets. They only studied them and managed to send some drones.

However, now, knowing they could breathe in space or even survive extreme temperatures, they had started planning to visit them.

However, their efforts to build ships that could take them there were not going as anticipated.

However, now, stopping just below the clouds, was a ship that, from the look of things, was housing close to ten thousand people.

Yet their shock didn't end there. After the first ship appeared, dozens more began to emerge, filling the sky. Soon, the entire airspace of Moonville was filled with spaceships of different designs.

"Let's go," Queenie said, and the Ascendents, along with Klaus and Old Lu, flew up with him. The war gods and goddesses followed but maintained a distance.

When they were 300 meters from the first ship, they stopped. Then, the door of the ship opened, and 16 people appeared simultaneously.

Two veiled ladies stood in the middle, and from the energy radiating from them, one could tell they were forces to be reckoned with.

All over the world, people began wondering who the two ladies were, but it didn't take long for their questions to be answered.

"On behalf of the Earth Alliance, I welcome you all to Earth. May this alliance between us see a good and prosperous future," Queenie said, her expression softening.

The two ladies behind the veil turned and looked at each other before a giggle escaped their lips.

"Look at you, kiddo, all grown up and now leader of the Earth Alliance," Queen Lunara said before taking off her veil, shocking everyone.

"Good to see you again, baby sister," Ohema added, also removing her veil to reveal her beautiful face, which mirrored that of Queenie.

In a span of three seconds, three faces that looked exactly the same, although with different eye colours, appeared, and everyone flipped.

This simple exchange sparked countless questions, even among the Overlords, who were eager to ask. The faces staring back at them were identical to that of their leader.

Just what the hell is going on?

They wanted to find out; however, before anyone could ask a question, a figure descended from the same ship, exuding the aura of a warrior.

He had two swords strapped behind him and a look of focus and determination in his eyes. One didn't need a genius to tell that the transcendent who had appeared was a terrifying opponent.

He hovered in the air, looked directly at Klaus, and pointed forward.

"Are you the one called Klaus?" he asked in a voice that did not inspire peace.

"The one and only. Who is asking?"

"You don't have the qualification to know my name," the young man said coldly, then pulled out his sword.

"I challenge you to combat to the death. Do you dare accept?"

Chapter 669 - 669: Arrogant Simp

Today was meant to be a day of celebration, where the Earthlings would welcome the Moon Borns. There should have been merry-making, with drinking and toasting for better days ahead.

That was the ideal structure for how things should have proceeded.

Yet, an arrogant-looking young man outright disregarded the presence of two Void Stage experts and 22 Ascendants and directly challenged the innocent-looking Klaus, who was simply minding his own business.

Naturally, that is blasphemy against the heavens.

But then again, Klaus and the heavens aren't that friendly, so this is just blasphemy toward the seniors around them.

However, even after a minute had passed since he issued the challenge, nobody said a word. Klaus was the same; he just stood there, watching as a sneer appeared on the bastard's face.

"Why, are you scared?" he asked, causing Klaus to raise an eyebrow.

[Ohema, who is this clown?] Klaus asked his woman, who was doing her best not to slap the bastard trying to pick a fight with her man.

[[He is one of the seven generals in the Moonlight Army. He is arrogant, and he is angry at you,]] Ohema said, almost giggling out loud.

[Let me guess, he wanted to take you as his wife, but I beat him to it?]

[[Yes. And he isn't the only one. It's just that he is the impulsive one.]]

[I see. So he is just an arrogant simp who thinks he can what, kill me and take my wife?] A smirk appeared on Klaus's face.

He most certainly wouldn't mind slapping him silly. But today isn't a day he can just go around slapping people.

He looked at the arrogant bastard in the air and a smirk appeared on his lips.

"Hello there. Be a lamb and crawl back to where you came from. Today is a day for celebration, and I don't want to ruin it by offering your blood and life as a sacrifice.

Your blood is too dirty to be used that way. So go back and challenge me again tomorrow. I won't hesitate to send you to the afterlife."

Klaus just disregarded him and decided to focus on the triplets everyone wanted to ask thousands of questions about.

"Tsk, what was I even expecting? I knew humans are cowards; I just never realized they have no spine, too," the simp in the air said, and all the warriors who heard him drew their weapons.

Klaus, who was about to flirt with the queen and her daughters, narrowed his eyes at the bastard.

"On second thought, killing you will make today memorable." Klaus turned to the Moonborns hovering before them.

"I know today was meant to be a blissful day, but I will be killing one of your best today. I hope it won't affect our alliance," he said, and the 14 Ascendants, Ohema, and her mother couldn't find words for such a statement.

They all could tell Klaus was angry, and he meant what he said. The bastard is dead.

"Very well, I will take your silence as a green light to end him," Klaus said, and his eyes turned red, instantly plunging the entire space into an icy, cold, dead feeling.

All of a sudden, the entire space started turning ice with the ground and buildings freezing.

The Overlords and war gods around felt their heartbeats slow down.

"Since you want to die so badly, I will grant your wish," Klaus spoke, and for a moment, nothing happened.

Then, from up in the clouds, thunder rumbled, and a giant sabre appeared from the clouds, bathed in golden lightning.

It moved at an incredibly sharp speed arriving in Klaus's grip instantly. Though he was about to kill a bastard, he also had to show off a bit.

Taking out the sabre from his space ring like the others would look subpar. So he had to make it look dope.

The moment Klaus's hands touched the hilt of the sabre, the whole space shook, and then he rose to the level of the bastard who was now quaking in his boots.

"Are you ready?" he asked, looking coldly at the bastard, who was visibly shaking.

To many watching, Klaus's eyes merely looked red.

However, to the bastard, who was now shaking, he could see a terrifying face looming behind Klaus, exuding an aura of despair.

Just staring into those red eyes was enough to kill his warrior spirit.

"Well, I am waiting. Mr. Draw your weapon and let's fight. Killing you while your weapons are sheathed is not something I want to do," Klaus said, raising his Saber at the bastard.

Sword qi and intent burst out of it, adding more menace to the already overwhelming presence of danger.

Klaus's aura of slaughter and intent of the same nature was enough to make even Queenie and her Mother narrow their gaze.

The presence coming from Klaus, even without him knowing, had started affecting even Void stage expectations.

So the arrogant simp was like a baby in front of him. He was shaking like a massage chair.

Slowly, he retrieved his weapons, but they instantly fell from his hands when a terrifying red skull suddenly appeared in the air.

In fact, his legs were shaking as he stared at the red skull.

"You can die now," Klaus muttered, and then with a step, he was in front of the bastard. He swung his sabre, which was coated in red energy.

The sabre went for his neck, aiming to kill him as easily as he could be.

However, before he could sever it, a hand grabbed his sabre, stopping the attack. Klaus looked and saw Queenie holding the sabre.

"Let him go," she said, pulling back the sabre.

Klaus's eyes immediately turned from red to gold, dissipating the dreadful energy that had just appeared.

He looked toward the bastard, who was now being supported by Queenie from falling from the and turned around.

"I will be leaving first. But let this be a warning to you all listening. This is Earth; we are all one big family.

You are now part of this big family, but let it be at the back of your mind. You may have the highest number of Ascendants or the largest number of Transcendents.

But that shouldn't give you the right to look down on us. Trust me, when I am angry, you won't like me.

So take this as my warning. The next time, not even a Void Stage expert can save you."

Klaus snapped his fingers, and space cracked open. He cast one look toward Queenie and her sister before walking through.

It closed behind him, and that was how Klaus welcomed the Moonborns, who, for the first time in their lives, would learn that aside from the terrifying monsters on the moon, there was another monster here that could not be provoked.

"Haha, what a welcome ceremony. There is no need to look down; Klaus is just at that stage. Every teenage boy easily gets annoyed.

He is actually very sweet when you get to know him," Old Lu said, trying to salvage the situation.

Luckily, his cheeky words lightened the mood a bit. Queenie, who had some explaining to do to the people of Earth, used the chance to finally get the welcome party to fully embrace their new allies.

Meanwhile, Klaus, who, in an attempt to make a classic exit, chose to use the void, now appeared in a Tier 7 Forbidden Zone.

Well, more accurately, he fell into a Tier 7 Forbidden Zone and was immediately attacked by a Tier 9 beast.

Chapter 670 - 670: Queenie's Origin

[[Where are you, Klaus?]] Queenie's voice entered Klaus's head as he ducked and evaded a tail attack from a Dark Tail Panther.

The beast has recently entered the Tenth Tier, so seeing a mere Tier 7 human appear inside such a scary place, it decided to eat him for dinner.

Klaus smiled as he continued evading while he communicated with his woman, who was worried sick of his sudden exit.

[I am somewhere I don't know yet, but I think it's a forbidden zone,] He responded, making Queenie raise an eyebrow as she led the leaders of the Moon Borns into their new home.

[[Don't tell me you're fighting monsters,]] she asked, but Klaus just grinned as he severed the body of the Dark Tail Panther that had attacked him right when he fell into the forbidden zone.

[Let's say I will be coming for lectures on how to travel through the void before using it again. But don't worry, I will be fine. Just save me a seat when the festivities start. I will be back by then.]

Klaus smiled on his end, and then the sword box appeared beside him, and all 100 swords shot out. He looked at the Tier 9 beast approaching, and his smile widened.

"I missed this," he said, gesturing forward as the swords shot out of the box and attacked.

In the coming hours, satellites would pick up on his handiwork. All those who would see and watch him slaughter thousands of monsters will forever remember the name Klaus.

Meanwhile, Queenie, who had just led the newcomers into their new home, was now seated with KKKickinIt, who would be asking all the questions everyone—both the Moon Borns and humans—wanted to ask.

The sudden discovery that their finest was, in fact, connected to the Moon Borns sparked many questions.

"I don't know where to start," KKKickinIt said, looking at the head of the Earth Alliance.

"Well, I can start by asking: are you part of triplets?" KKKickinIt asked, and Queenie flashed a rare smile that appeared and vanished in a second.

"I am not part of a set of triplets. I am a twin, and one of the veil ladies you saw is my sister. The other is my mother. But I guess, thanks to the apocalypse, we all look the same and have aged the same."

"I see. But then how do you explain why you are a twin with a Moon Born? I mean, you are a human. Many knew you from the start of the apocalypse, so please, explain to us why we are now finding out you are a Moon Born"

KKKickinIt asked again. These were questions everybody wanted answers to.

"I am indeed a Moon Born by birth, but I was raised on Earth. You could say Earth is my first home, and the Moon is my second home.

But if it makes you happy to know, then you must know that I only learned about my true identity less than a year ago."

"Are you saying all these years, you never knew you were from the Moon or the existence of people on the Moon?"

"Yes," Queenie answered and sighed.

"If it won't be too much to ask, can you explain to us how this came to be?"

Queenie didn't immediately answer. She cast her mind back to when her memories started resurfacing and when she got to see how her mother and sister felt, waking up to a complete stranger every day.

It was heartbreaking, and though she wasn't showing it, those watching worldwide could tell what she was about to share must be very painful.

"I suffered from a rare disease when I was young. Of course, I only got to know about all of this recently, but when I was young, I suffered from a disease that made me forget all my blood relatives after 24 hours.

In other words, if you were to tell me you are my sister right now, after a day, I would forget and treat you as a stranger.

This also means that since all Moon Borns share the same or similar bloodlines as humans do, I only saw the faces of strangers every day when I woke up.

My mother was a stranger, my sister was a stranger, and the friends I would have made were also strangers to me. Such a life was the one I was meant to live on the Moon.

And it was so for 15 years. But I guess my family couldn't take it anymore, so my mom brought me here.

Thankfully, while I still don't remember my family, I started to make friends here, and strangely, I didn't forget them.

"So I stayed on Earth, and for the better part of my life, I was a human. As such, when the apocalypse descended, and the warrior in me awakened, I didn't hesitate to pick up the sword."

"That is... I don't know what to say." Call it drama, but KKKickinIt was actually tearing up. And it wasn't just her.

All over the world, children, teenagers, mothers, and fathers felt the same. Just thinking about waking up every day and not remembering one's family is too much for anyone to bear.

Queenie still sometimes wakes up to people who are new to her, so how must she have felt back then?

"No need to be emotional. I am human at heart and will be human for years to come.

Also, even if I were to say I want to stop being human, I know at heart I wouldn't be able to. For I have started building a family of my own, and because of this, I am forever for Earth," Queenie smiled again. These smiles are rare, so everyone is affected by them when they appear.

"Are you saying what I think you're saying?" KKKickinIt, of course, sensed the underlying message in her words.

Queenie smiled again for the third time within three minutes.

"Yes. I have a man in my life now, and he is human," Queenie said, and the entire world started demanding the name of such a man.

Those who began planning to chase that man down and kill him for taking the Overlord's heart started polishing their weapons.

"Oh my. To think our very own Leader of the Earth Alliance is a romantic. This makes me wonder what some of us are still doing being single and virgins... Hehe," KKKickinIt laughed, causing many single people to bow their heads in shame.

"But if you don't mind me asking, can you tell us about the strange man you have picked from a pool of millions of men?"

Queenie smiled again.

"Well, I have to state that this man is a brat but also a very reliable person. He was the one who cured me and made me remember my family, and also the one who has not only done more for this Earth but is still doing a whole lot for us.

He is none other than our very own Klaus. Yes... Klaus Hanson is the man I have picked to build a family with."

And just like that, Klaus became famous.
