Chapter 68 - 68: Signing the Contract

Klaus took his time reading the contract. He knew it was best to understand everything before putting pen to paper, so he took his time and went through everything. From it, he learned all the benefits he would be earning.

For one, his sign-up bonus is a whopping 50 billion gold coins, a car, and a hundred percent discount on all products under Nucci Fashion Trend X.

Klaus continued reading through the contract, noting the impressive details.

Aside from the sign-up bonus, the contract outlined many benefits. His percentage on all products he would be modeling was set at 5%. This meant he would earn a share of every sale from the items he featured. This includes the current clothing line and some other products currently underway. Nadia was smart and planned to rope Klaus in for as long as she could.

Klaus, who realizes that just smiles and continues with the other benefits.

His annual income was guaranteed to be at least 100 billion gold coins. This amount was fixed and would be paid out regardless of his modeling work.

Additionally, Klaus was promised performance bonuses. For each successful product launch or major campaign, he would receive an extra 10 billion gold coins.

The contract also included a housing allowance. He would receive 10 billion gold coins annually to cover the costs of his living arrangements, which was meant to ensure his comfort.

Health insurance was another benefit. The contract provided full coverage for medical expenses, ensuring that Klaus would not have to worry about health costs.

There was also a travel allowance. Klaus would receive an additional 5 billion gold coins each year to cover travel expenses related to his work.

Another perk was access to exclusive events. Klaus would be invited to high-profile fashion shows and social gatherings, enhancing his professional network.

He would receive free wardrobe updates. Nucci Fashion Trend X would provide him with new outfits each season, ensuring he always looked stylish.

Additionally, Klaus was promised professional training. He would have access to top-notch training programs to improve his skills and keep up with industry trends. This training also included his cultivation, in which he was promised to receive the best resources aimed at enhancing his strength, which, from the way he sees it, aimed to enhance his handsomeness.

There was also a public relations package. Nucci Fashion Trend X would handle all media appearances and promotions, saving Klaus time and effort.

Klaus would be given a personal assistant. This assistant would help manage his schedule, appointments, and other tasks, making his work life easier. Of course, this was already taken care of since Klaus chose Hanna as his assistant.

The contract also included stock options. Klaus could buy shares in Nucci Fashion Trend X at a discounted rate.

He would receive priority bookings, which meant that Klaus would always be first in line for modeling gigs and major projects. It's really laughable, and at one point, the Senior inside his soul sea bursts into a burst of resounding laughter, clearly pleased with where Klaus's life is headed.

Klaus is a paragon. He is meant to become incredibly strong no matter what obstacles he faces. But because of his nature as a paragon, he is bound to have a lot of enemies. This means his life will not be peaceful, so seeing him find something that will make him happy for a while brings some relief to him.

Of course, Klaus just shrugged his laughter and dived deeper into reading the rest of his benefits.

Klaus was also entitled to a yearly bonus based on the company's performance. If Nucci Fashion Trend X had a successful year, he would receive an additional bonus.

He was promised a signing bonus for every new campaign he joined. Each campaign would bring in an extra 5 million gold coins as a signing incentive.

A mentorship program was included. Klaus would have the chance to be mentored by top figures in the fashion industry, further boosting his career. Of course, he can also mentor someone for which Klaus just shrugs with a simple thought, 'Nobody is as handsome as me'

The contract also provided for family benefits. His family would receive access to health care, security, and other perks, ensuring their well-being.

There was also a loyalty reward. After two years of successful work with Nucci Fashion Trend X, Klaus would receive a special reward of 50 billion gold coins and other utilities.

The contract allowed for flexible working hours. Klaus could set his own schedule, balancing work with his life as a cultivator, something he really needed right now seeing he will always have to work extra hard to keep up with the others.

The contract also included a relocation package. If Klaus needed to move for work, the company would cover all relocation expenses.

He was entitled to a special recognition award. The company would recognize his contributions with an award ceremony and an additional bonus each year.

The contract ensured that Klaus had access to a dedicated support team. This team would assist him with any issues or needs related to his modeling work. Of course, this fell on his friends. Klaus wouldn't trust anybody outside his inner circle.

Klaus would be featured in promotional materials, and his image and work would be prominently displayed in advertisements and campaigns.

He was also granted exclusive rights to certain products. This meant Klaus would be the face of specific items, enhancing his profile in the fashion world.

The contract included a cancellation clause. If Klaus decided to leave the company, he would receive a generous severance package. Clearly, Nadia wants Klaus by her side. All the benefits are just too good to be true, yet Klaus is meant to have them all should he choose to sign with her.

Lastly, Klaus was promised a creative freedom clause. He would have the freedom to choose which projects and campaigns he wanted to participate in.

With all these benefits laid out in the contract, Klaus felt confident and excited about his new role. He signed the document, making sure to note down all the commitments he will be upholding.

First, Klaus was committed to performing his best in every modeling job. He knew that his success was tied to the company's success, so he promised to give his full effort and dedication to every campaign.

He also pledged to uphold the company's image. Klaus understood that his actions would reflect on Nucci Fashion Trend X. He was determined to maintain a professional demeanor at all times.

Klaus agreed to meet all performance targets set by the company. He was aware that achieving these targets was crucial for receiving bonuses and other incentives.

He committed to attending all required events and appearances. Klaus knew that being present at high-profile fashion shows and social gatherings was important for his role.

Another commitment was maintaining his health and fitness. Klaus promised to stay in top shape to meet the demands of his modeling work and uphold the company's standards.

Klaus agreed to work closely with his personal assistant. He understood that having good communication with his assistant would help him manage his schedule efficiently.

He pledged to be a positive representative of the brand. Klaus knew that promoting Nucci Fashion Trend X in a favorable light was essential for his role.

Klaus agreed to honor the contract's terms for the entire duration. He understood that fulfilling his commitments was key to maintaining a successful relationship with the company.

He promised to be open to feedback and constructive criticism. Klaus was ready to learn and grow from his experiences.

Klaus was also committed to maintaining confidentiality. He understood that some aspects of his work would require discretion.

He agreed to uphold the company's policies and guidelines. Klaus knew that following these rules was important for his career and the company's reputation.

Klaus promised to handle all media appearances with care. He understood the importance of presenting himself positively in public.

He committed to being punctual and reliable. Klaus knew that being on time for appointments and shoots was a key part of his professional behavior.

Klaus was ready to embrace the creative freedom offered. He agreed to choose projects that aligned with both his interests and the company's goals.

He reviewed the other commitments he had to uphold, and from the looks of things, he was more than ready to start working. He put his signature on the contract, and he and Nadia took a picture to cement the deal.

"So, Klaus, you need to establish a social media presence," Nadia said, turning to Hanna. "I hope you're prepared for that," she added.

Before Nadia could make any more suggestions, Hanna spoke up. "I've already set up his accounts and am ready to launch any campaigns whenever you are."

Nadia nodded, clearly pleased with Hanna's efficiency. "That's great. From now on, you'll be working closely with Dede here. She's my chief designer and also my clothing consultant." Hanna nodded and shifted her attention to Dede, who was eager to get started.

"Klaus, your sign-up bonus will be transferred to you soon. As for the car, it will arrive by the end of the week. You can choose the brand if you don't want to go with the company's recommendation," Nadia said.

"I'll go with your recommendation," Klaus replied with a smile.

"Perfect," Nadia said, beaming. "Even though I usually don't like to rush things, I'm very excited about this partnership. Are you ready for some check-ups and fittings? We need to get your measurements and prepare the products for the upcoming photo shoots."

Lucy and the others, watching from the side, were smiling. They were thrilled to see not only a powerful warrior but also a prominent fashion tycoon becoming part of their circle. Lucy was particularly happy, knowing she was the one who introduced Klaus to Nadia.

"Let's get started," Klaus said.

Nadia nodded and turned to Dede. "Dede, you can make the announcement and be sure to open pre-orders for the latest sunglasses and leather armor," she instructed.

"Let's go then," Nadia said, turning to Klaus and the others. They left the room, leaving Dede and Hanna behind. They were ready to prepare and launch a campaign that would take Nucci Fashion Trend X from number 10 to number 1 on the fashion charts.
