

Paragon 681

Chapter 681 - 681: Birth of a Great Calamity (1)

The sky was bathed in flames, and at the center was a large cocoon, too vast to comprehend.

But within the cocoon is a phoenix destined to be born a great Calamity—now being birthed as a true Calamity.

However, instead of a true calamity destined to destroy everything, a tamed one is being born.

One that now holds even greater potential to rise beyond the sorry fate the heavens had planned for her.

She is now part of a Paragon, and with the Star Monarch blood running through her veins, the heavens have lost both a weapon and a chance to stop another Paragon from rising.

A true Calamity is being born, and this time, it is beyond the jurisdiction of the heavens. This time, she stands under her own authority—an authority of a great Calamity, the Red Death Phoenix.

Around it, ancient runes glowed—runes that only Klaus could read.

Naturally, he wouldn't deny the ladies such poetry. He cleared his throat and started to read the runes.

Rise, Red Death Phoenix

Bathed in fire, the heavens weep,

A star-born fate, now hers to keep.

Bound by chains of cosmic thread,

Yet rising where the doomed once bled.

A Calamity, fierce and tamed,

By fate's own hand, yet unclaimed.

No gods shall shape, no stars confine,

For now, her will is hers, divine.

Wings unfurl, a burning creed,

Ash to ember, fate concedes.

The heavens tremble, voids take heed,

A Paragon's blood—her only need.

No whispered law, no tethered sky,

No blade to break, no gods to pry.

In runes of old, her name is sworn,

The Red Death Phoenix—reborn.

The moment Klaus said the last line, the flaming cloud rumbled, and the egg—or cocoon—cracked. The crack ran across its surface for a few seconds before coming to a stop.

Klaus gestured for everyone to move back.

Right when they did, the egg exploded into flames that bathed the moon in a red radiance. In fact, Klaus could hear and feel some stronger Lunar Beasts approaching.

But as expected, when they got within a certain range, they all stopped, for none of them could come any closer.

In fact, Klaus had to encase himself and the ladies in the Bed of Harrows and unleash the Immortal Ice, which calmed and cooled them down.

This was the only way for them to remain still and watch Nari's awakening.

"What is happening?" Queenie asked, panicking inwardly, for she knew this was Nari's life on the line.

Klaus held her hand and smiled. "She is fine, so relax and wait for when she is done with whatever she is doing there." Klaus could already sense her.

His blood was now running through her veins so he could sense her. This means she has awakened and is now whole.

But from the explosions coming from the flame clouds, he knew she was fighting against something. Though they couldn't see it, they could feel the shockwaves.

Klaus, however, was okay with letting her deal with whatever she was facing. She could tell the Nari, who faced the tribulation, was not going to let anything happen to Klaus.

Inside the flaming clouds, which looked like a separate space of their own, Nari and a figure who appeared human but had one horn on her forehead were engaged in fierce combat.

Nari is wielding a majestic red and golden bow.

Every arrow released from it contained the essence of a phoenix, and each shot cracked the space, threatening to suck the figure inside.

On the other hand, the figure wielded a sword and a shield. But from the way she fought, one could tell she was hiding her identity.

Her movements were clumsy, and every strike of her sword revealed her inexperience. The battle reached a stalemate where neither wanted to back down.

Until the one-horned lady was pushed back—that was when she made a mistake. She let go of her sword and shield and took a swipe at Nari with her dragon claw.

Her body changed, and soon, another horn appeared on her forehead, and she grew a tail. The horns were green, and her skin was covered in green scales.

"It's unfortunate the heavens picked me as your intervention, Calamity. Just take this blood essence and revert back to your great self.

I promise if you do that, you will be left alone, and this world you are from won't face any torture from the heavens."

Nari narrowed her eyes at the blood essence inside a crystal and smirked.

"To think the heavens would take possession of someone I killed millions of years ago. You really are pathetic, as the Star Monarch calls you." Her angelic yet dreadful laughter filled the air.

"I'll say what I said to the heavens all those years ago: go fuck yourself."

Wings burst out of Nari's back, and the bow in her hand turned into a spear. She arrived in front of the dragon and drove it through her heart.

The dragon's eyes widened as the blood essence fell from her hands. Nari caught it and looked coldly into her eyes.

"I am a person. I have the right to be my own person. I have the right to have feelings. I have the right to marry who I want and live a good life with him.

I have the right to love and hate, and I have the right to fight for those I love. I love this world, I love the people, and I love the one who saved me all those years ago from your cruelty.

You used me for generations, making me destroy so you could rebuild and try to rule over everything. For generations, I acted as your weapon of destruction, the calamity bringer.

And every generation, you made me the bad guy. I say not anymore.

So this is my warning to you. Walk away while you still can, for I won't be the last, and believe me, one day when he has had enough, he will destroy everything.

And I will be at his right, acting as his weapon. This time, instead of destroying generations, we will destroy the heavens, for that is the only way.

You can die now, but when the day comes, you will die for real."

The spear engulfed in flames, burning the body down to the last atom. Nari put away the spear and snapped her fingers.

Klaus, who was looking at the burning flames, suddenly vanished and appeared within the flames, perfectly safe from any harm.

"Hello, Star Monarch, or should I call you, husband... Hehe."

Chapter 682 - 682: Birth of a Great Calamity (2)

Klaus, who arrived inside the realm of flames, suddenly narrowed his eyes at the Phoenix lady smiling at him.

At once, he knew she wasn't the Nari he knew but a past version of her. This means she is crazy, and Klaus can see it in her eyes.

"No need to look at me like that Monarch. It makes me feel like you want to devour me." Her smile bloomed. "Not that I mind. I want to be devoured by you..."

Cough.

Klaus coughed, hearing such a shameless yet seductive request from the overly beautiful red-haired lady.

Nari had become a beauty. Of course, her beauty and personality are directly opposite each other.

She maintained her red hair, but now it extended further down her back. She also kept her red eyes, but looking into them, Klaus couldn't help but feel emotions radiating from them.

This caused him to smile. Her previous eyes held no emotions; even if they did, they are not what one wants to read. They often convey what you never expect.

Her body had also developed, and looking at her curves and the load she was packing behind her, Klaus knew he would be having problems with his hands.

"Do you like what you see?" Nari asked, shaking her chest.

Though a thin layer of red dress covered her body, Klaus couldn't help but gulp when those two sisters jiggled at him.

"I know you're not Nari—at least, not the Nari from this generation. So, why don't you tell me why you brought me here? I doubt you brought me just to show me what I'll be seeing later," Klaus chuckled, making Nari smile.

She vanished, and the next second, she was in front of Klaus. She took hold of his hand, and suddenly, Klaus felt a burning sensation on his arm.

"Ouch... what was that?" Klaus looked and saw a mark appear on his right arm.

"That is the mark you said I should brand you with when we meet again. Per your instructions, before you claim me... Hehe... you must have this mark on your arm.

It has something to do with the reincarnation you made us go through those years ago."

"Hmm. I see. Then what can you tell me about you... I mean, the you back then?" Klaus asked. He would have asked more questions about the mark, but he already had three keys to unlock the lives of those dear to him.

Having a mark wasn't too far-fetched.

What he wanted to know was about the lady in front of him. He knew Nari wouldn't remember a thing when she woke up, so he wanted to know something he could use against her.

The Nari, who had now gained emotions and would finally realize that she had feelings for Klaus all this time but didn't know, might act a little crazy.

Knowing something about her could come in handy.

The lady seemed to know what he was thinking, so she smiled and whispered something to Klaus, making the Paragon blush.

"You will find out the hard way, Paragon. But that is just by the way. What I wanted to say was you should prepare.

The heavens are angry, and like you said, they won't back down when it comes to killing you. So, please don't leave any loose ends for the sake of those you care about.

I know it will take some time for me to remember, but know that I am a great calamity, and as such, when the time comes, I will become myself again and fight for you."

"You won't fight for me, Nari. You will fight with me, for in my eyes, we are a family. I will never use you as a weapon."

"I know, Monarch, I know. But I want you to promise me when it's all hanging by a thread; you won't try to hold me back.

I will sacrifice my life any day to make sure you live on. Your dreams are much more important than any of us," Nari said pleadingly. Klaus could tell she was serious, so he nodded.

"Don't worry, I won't hold you back, but I also won't allow you to sacrifice your life. I have nine lives; you have only two."

Klaus laughed, making Nari smile.

"Look for the others, okay? That Qilin and the Dragon, though they are weak, are also targets of the heavens for the decision we all made years ago.

Find them and make sure they are saved. They need you, and you need them, so make sure my sisters are safe. Else, I'll burn this thing off... hehe." Nari said, pointing toward the dragon between his legs.

Klaus just chuckled.

"Here, this is a blood essence from a powerful race of Phoenix. You can use it however you want." Klaus accepted the crystal from her and stored it inside his soul sea. That was the best place for it.

"Thank you," He smiled, knowing that creating his first perfect warrior was already in the bag.

"We will meet again, Paragon. Until then," Nari moved closer and whispered into his ear, "Be gentle when we finally do the... you know." She smiled, and then she blinked three times.

Klaus saw she was gone and replaced by the Nari he knew.

"Klaus?" Nari was surprised to see him. Klaus just smiled and held her hand.

"Let's go home."

Nari nodded and then snapped her fingers. The next second, they were out of the flaming clouds, which burned for a few seconds and then dissipated.

The moment they appeared, the ladies flew up to meet them.

"Nari, are you okay?" Queenie asked, taking Nari's hand and starting to examine her body. She was like a mother looking to see if her daughter was safe from all harm.

"Relax, big sister, I am fine." Nari just smiled, finally feeling the love behind what Queenie was doing. It was like a part of her had been locked away all these years.

Back then, she only felt she could be overly protective sometimes when Queenie did things like this

Now, that part of her had been unlocked, and instead of feeling discomfort while experiencing all these emotions, she was rather calm and very happy.

"Nari, so you are the sister she could never stop talking about," Queen Lunara smiled. "Nice meeting you, Nari. I am Lunara, Queenie's mother."

"Nice to meet you too. I never knew you were also as beautiful as big sister," Nari smiled. Klaus looked at the Queen and smiled, making Ohema glare at him.

Nari also noticed his shameless act but planned to punish him.

She turned toward Klaus, and then her smile bloomed.

"Whatever crazy thing you are thinking about, don't," Klaus said. He knew that smile was for nothing good.

"Why, are you scared? I already told you we will continue where we left off," Nari's eyes glowed red. She raised her hand and placed it on his shoulder.

"Why don't we go back first? This place is not safe."

[Good luck, brat. You will finally understand what a Great Calamity looks and behaves like.] The senior's voice entered Klaus's head as they vanished into a red space rift.

For the next few days, weeks, months and years, he will know what a tamed Calamity looks and behaves like.

Chapter 683 - 683: Nari, The Great Calamity (1)

Klaus and the ladies appeared back in the skies on Earth. Nari used her authority of the Void to transport them all.

What greeted them were battle-ready warriors, each holding their weapons.

However, they all lowered their weapons when they saw the figures emerging from the space rift.

"It's good to see such a response; this shows the plans to create air defense will be very effective," Klaus said, and the ladies behind him nodded.

"Relax, everyone. Today is not for fighting but to welcome a new powerhouse who will not hesitate to fight for this world," Klaus smiled.

"Everyone, I present Overlord Nari. Most of you know her as the Crazy Fire Queen—ouch!" Klaus winced, feeling a hot sensation latch onto his ear.

The warriors laughed, finally lightening the mood.

"Hello, everyone. As he said, I am Nari, but feel free to call me whatever you want. I know you all have nicknames for me," Nari smiled, though it didn't reach her eyes.

The warriors' smiles faded, and they glanced at Klaus.

"Don't mind her; she's just crazy."

"Alright, let's all get back to what we were doing," Queenie said, finally easing the tension among the warriors.

"Nari, you can't scare them like that. They are warriors we will be fighting alongside on the battlefield," Queenie said to her sister, who hadn't changed even after becoming a beauty among beauties.

Klaus and the five ladies returned to the academy, where Klaus and Nari immediately entered the multidimensional cube.

Nari wanted to show him her transformation first before anyone else, so they appeared inside the lava space, where the flames and burning had subsided.

Klaus quickly distanced himself as Nari took to the skies.

After flying up high enough, she smiled at Klaus for a few seconds before a phoenix screeched into existence, spreading its wings wide.

Her appearance was a blend of red and gold. Her wings, mostly red, spanned over 10 meters each, with golden feathers at the tips.

She had a golden crown on her head, and her talons were a deep, metallic gold. Her tail feathers were also golden, and as she moved through the air, a red and golden fire trail followed her.

"Beautiful," Klaus couldn't help but admire the phoenix in the air.

It was simply too stunning.

Klaus had seen phoenixes before. He had met a few and even had one as a companion, based on his memories of his past as Efad.

So, he knew how beautiful phoenixes could be. But watching Nari streak through the sky, he couldn't help but admire the beauty of it all.

Nari circled the sky for a few seconds before she transformed into her demi-phoenix form.

In this form, she was clad in provocative red leather armour. It covered her body just enough that if her opponents didn't die from her arrows, they might perish from being charmed by the skin she revealed.

After her rebirth, she had become incredibly seductive, and thanks to her affinity for the fire element, her presence always exuded pressure.

So, watching her well-packaged chest, which could even give Miriam a run for her money, Klaus couldn't help but shake his head.

The leather was red, and her boots were also red. But Klaus, who understood runic words, could read the golden writing on the armour and was shocked by it.

"Nari, come down first. I want to examine something before you show me the rest," Klaus said to the bird in the air, and she arrived in front of him instantly.

Perhaps Nari was just being naughty because the way she landed caused her chest to jiggle, making Klaus stare while he gently licked his lips.

"They're yours for the taking as soon as you tell me what happened during my awakening," Nari smiled, her beauty radiant.

On the other hand, Klaus just smirked, held her waist, and pulled her closer.

"Be a good girl, and maybe I will tell you... I might even let you drink my blood every now and then," Klaus said, his voice teasing.

Nari narrowed her eyes at him and smiled. She pulled herself closer, making sure Klaus felt her chest pressed against his.

She whispered into his ear, "Be sure to examine my body well, then. You might never have the energy to examine it after we are done."

She gently bit his ear, causing Klaus to start reevaluating who the dominant one was between the two of them.

'She must be tamed soon, else the calamity that was meant for the heavens will be directed toward me,' he thought, smiling as he already liked where this was going.

He pulled her back and began examining her body, now covered in red armour.

The golden runes on the armour were all enchantments that played a key role in her armour's abilities.

As a fire-type user, Klaus could tell all the runes revolved around the fire element, enhancing defence, offence, health, and more.

"These enchantments are just..." Klaus was dumbfounded. Looking at them made him wonder why she would need skills again.

An enchantment like [Phoenix Guard] generates a protective barrier around her that automatically activates when her health drops below 30%.

But the main strength of the guard was what made it monstrous. The barrier would cut all attacks in half, lowering their potency by 50%.

In other words, if an attack that could kill her landed on the guard, she had a 50% chance of walking away with only an injury.

But while this might not guarantee her survival in every scenario, a support-type enchantment called [Phoenix Rebirth] allows her to cheat death once every 24 hours.

It has the same name as the second life aspect of her bloodline, but it's even monstrous for mere armour.

If she dies, the indestructible armour will restore her to full health. In fact, unlike a true rebirth, this works like a second HP bar.

Basically, if an attack goes through and is about to kill her, this enchantment will activate and flip her HP bar, returning her to the state she was in before the battle began.

And it resets after 24 hours.

And that's not the only enhancement. No, there are dozens of them, and each one is just as monstrous.

"This is just too..."

Klaus sighed.

Chapter 684 - 684: Nari, The Great Calamity (2)

"Are you impressed yet?" Nari asked, smiling.

"You are a cheat of existence," Klaus replied, also smiling as he read through all the enhancements on her armour.

The more he read, the more he thought that perhaps some people are indeed fortunate.

"If I am a cheat, then you are the overlord of cheats because these enchantments, armor, bow, and everything I have came from you."

"Say what now?" Klaus, who was examining her chest plate, raised his head and asked.

"What, don't you know the nature of your blood?" Nari smiled.

"I can sense my Phoenix blood, but for some reason, it has been merged with your blood. Right now, if I do this—" Nari extended her hand, and an arrow appeared. A red arrow.

"This red arrow is from my bloodline. But the moment I do this—" She channelled her energy into the arrow, and it became even more solid, with golden runes running across it.

"These golden writings and lines are from your blood. So don't look so surprised; your blood is a treasure everyone would want to have."

Klaus looked surprised and shocked at the same time.

'Senior, what are your thoughts on this?' Klaus was very happy hearing this, and if the senior confirmed his suspicion, he would know what to do next.

[I don't know much about the Star Monarch bloodline, but if you can turn a mere beast or monster into a divine being, then I don't think this is something you should be surprised about.

Of course, you can try it on your friends, too, for the Star Monarch has proven to be more than just something only beasts can benefit from.

The only moral dilemma is that you will have supreme control over them. But they are your friends, so they will understand.]

Klaus sighed.

"Let me guess, you're thinking of using it on your friends and my sisters, but you don't want to deal with the moral dilemma," Nari spoke calmly.

"I do. The moment they take my blood, I will have the power to end their lives or even control them if I want to. That's just too much, even for me."

"Then let me ask you this: Do you want your friends safe or dead?" Her question was simple and plain, making Klaus look at her thoughtfully. She truly asked the real question.

"From where I stand, you don't seem like someone who would abuse his power, so why are you concerned about their feelings when you haven't even asked them?"

"I know I'm okay with being connected to you like this. It makes me feel safe, knowing that you can pull me back when I go too far."

She moved forward, wrapped her arms around his neck, and kissed him.

"So don't think too much about it. Your friends trust you, and I know if you offer, they'll accept in a heartbeat. I know they will because what you just saw is only the tip of the iceberg."

Klaus smiled and kissed her. "Why don't you show me the rest, my overgrown bird—ouch!" Klaus smiled through the pain.

The next second, his heart skipped a beat as the armour around Nari's body dropped, revealing her naked form.

"No need to stare too much; this is all yours for the taking," Nari said, wrapping her arms around his neck again and locking lips with him.

This time, Klaus grabbed hold of her butt and even started kneading it as they kissed. They exchanged saliva and even sucked on each other's tongues for five whole minutes.

"To think you're such a good kisser—who would have thought the crazy fire queen could be this romantic?" Klaus said, and for the first time, Nari blushed.

Klaus was getting more handsy, so she seemed rather flustered.

"You can tell the dragon in your pants to relax; I have something to show you first," Nari said, stepping back and glancing at the bulge in Klaus's pants before giggling.

Klaus just smirked and waited for her to show him what she had.

Nari smiled and activated the next ability. This time, her eyes turned golden, and golden lines ran across her body, covering everywhere, from her face to her legs.

"Watch this," she said, activating another ability. Her body was enveloped by dark golden armour with dark patterns on her sides and chest.

She extended her hand, and a golden spear appeared.

"Wait a minute, what is the meaning of this?" Klaus was already liking where this was going, yet he just couldn't believe it.

"I don't know how to explain this, but in this form, I can use the spear like a spearman. In fact, aside from this form, when I am using your blood in my other form, I can use the spear and spear skills. Just that this form is meant mainly for the spear."

"So, in this form, you are no longer Nari, the queen of the bow, but a spearman?" Klaus asked.

"Indeed," Nari smiled. "This means I have four forms: my Phoenix form, my demi-Phoenix form, my Spearman form, and my human form. Cool, right?"

She deactivated the armour, revealing her naked body.

Klaus grabbed her by the butt and raised her, wrapping her legs around him.

"You have become monstrous, Nari; we should celebrate." Klaus kissed her and continued to kiss her for three minutes.

"I already planned on becoming your woman today, so don't even think about getting any sleep tonight," she smiled.

"Your mouth will be running now, but when I am done with you, I can already see you sleeping for an entire week," Klaus smiled and kissed her neck down to her chest.

"I am a Void Stage expert and a Phoenix; my stamina is something you cannot measure," she countered, but when Klaus's lips wrapped around her red nipples, she started moaning.

"You see, this small gesture already turned you on," Klaus smiled at the lustful expression that appeared on her face.

"We will see about that," Nari said, locking lips with him again.

"We should go back first. I will learn more about you after you pass out," Klaus set her down, and a red fabric gown appeared around her body.

She held his hand, and the next second, they appeared in a room where Miriam, Ohema, and Queenie were guarding the cube despite Klaus telling them he could easily hide it with an illusion.

"Klaus will be busy tonight, ladies," Nari didn't even wait for them to say anything, already claiming ownership for the night.

Chapter 685 - 685: A Paragon Vs a Great Calamity (1) [18+]

Klaus and Nari left the peak of the mountain and headed toward the outer section, where they immediately entered their room, which had been repaired after the previous incident.

The moment they entered, Nari removed her clothes and jumped into Klaus's waiting arms. He caught her and locked lips with her for many minutes before placing her on the bed.

He looked at the damsel on the bed and smiled.

"You are gorgeous, Nari. I wonder why I never had an interest in you before," Klaus smiled. "Perhaps it was because you were always crazy. No guy like crazy ladies."

Nari chuckled, sat on the bed, and started staring at Klaus.

She looked into his eyes and continued to gaze for a while until she slowly opened her legs, revealing the pink slit already wet and asking for attention.

The dragon hiding in Klaus's pants responded by nodding. This made her smile and reach for it.

"You must relax, lady. Some things are best enjoyed slowly," Klaus said as he laid her on the bed and slowly moved toward her head, locking into a fierce kiss.

This time, after breaking the kiss, he moved toward her neck and started kissing her as he rubbed her body. He slowly made his way to her breasts, kissing her neck and chest.

"AaaahhhHh!"

Nari moaned as his lips touched her nipples.

"Hmm, looks like your cute nipples aren't just for show; they are really useful," Klaus smiled as he connected his lips to her nipples again and started sucking on them.

He continued for a while, ensuring Nari's voice echoed in the room.

After breaking away from her lips, he went back to her lips and kissed her again until he had had enough and chose to move downward.

He kissed down her body until he was face to face with her pussy. That was when he raised his head and stared at the fire queen, who was already drunk with pleasure.

'Her temper is just too fiery, so every small thing excites her,' Klaus thought before spreading her legs.

"AAAaaaaHHHH!"

This time, her moan was loud enough to make any man know they had already succeeded in pleasuring their woman.

Klaus smiled and started eating her nether cave, which was already oozing with her wetness. He loved that, so he kept sucking, and she kept moaning for as long as she could handle it.

"Aahaahh!"

"Mmmhmm," she moaned pleasantly as her nether cave started spraying her love juice for Klaus to swallow and savor its taste.

Klaus cleaned her nether region thoroughly, making her pant for breath as she lay down on her back.

"How was it?" Klaus asked teasingly.

"It was better than I expected when I saw you and big sister," Nari blushed. Thinking about the good old days really is something getting flustered about.

"You were a pervert back then, you know that, right?" Klaus chuckled. Back then while he was spending time with Queenie, he noticed Nari was spying on them for a while, but he didn't give it much thought back then.

Now, he could tell she was much more active, and she craved such attention.

"Can you do it again?" she asked, covering her face. Klaus smiled and then went back in, making her moan again, and for the next couple of minutes, she could only moan and scream Klaus's name.

Klaus was very happy with the turn of events.

The Fire Queen, who had had feelings for him since the first day she saw his image appear in the news, was now moaning in his bed, and it was all thanks to him.

All the time Nari spent trying to make Klaus and Queenie a thing was her projecting her feelings onto his sister.

It was like she didn't know how to feel, so she felt for her sister. Deep down, however, she may have felt like giving her heart to him.

This was also the reason why, for the first time in her life, she started feeling things like missing someone.

It was an emotional response she had never felt and could not translate back then, but now she started to feel all these strange emotions.

When Klaus entered the dungeon, she started missing him dearly, and for the first time, she began to feel other emotions.

Missing, happiness, love, lust—and now, she was swimming in one.

"Aaaahhhh!"

Her moans grew wild as her nether cave exploded again, spraying her nether juice for Klaus to have his fill.

"Tha...gasp...that was...amazing," Nari said, breathing heavily.

"Do you like it?" Klaus asked, smiling at the flustered beauty on his bed. Nari was just too beautiful.

"I do. I want to feel this way from now onwards," she smiled. "It's like, for years, I've been restricted from feeling all this. Now that I'm experiencing these emotions, I never want to stop feeling them."

"You won't, mainly because I won't allow you to stop feeling them," Klaus said, touching her ass and kneading it.

He lowered his head and started eating her out again.

Thankfully, nobody was around to listen because even with the noise-canceling on, her moans could still be heard outside.

Klaus would have become a god if anyone were to hear how the most dangerous and unstable overlord was screaming his name.

After making her cum three times, Nari wanted to meet little Klaus.

"Let me see that thing you're hiding between your legs," she said with a smile as she pushed him onto the bed.

Klaus was already excited, so his shaft was ready for action. This made it show through his pants, causing Nari's heart to skip a beat.

'It's big,' she thought with a blushing expression. Then she reached out and touched it. Klaus wanted to ask if she was really serious about approaching little Klaus like that.

However, before he could say anything, a gasp escaped his mouth as his clothes caught on fire. Like ignited flammable liquid, they burned quickly.

"What the fuck, Nari? Are you trying to burn me alive?" Klaus asked, feeling the tingling sensation on his skin as he now lay naked in bed.

Nari didn't answer. Instead, she was staring at the third leg, now pointing at her, already coated with a liquid at its tip.

'It's very big...will it fit?'

Chapter 686 - 686: A Paragon Vs a Great Calamity (2) [18+]

"Though you nearly burnt it off, it's not angry, so feel free to play with it," Klaus said, looking at the deeply blushing Nari, who was just staring at his dick.

"It's big," she said, admiring the shaft before her.

"I know. It's also what you will be playing with for the next million years to come, so get familiar with it." Klaus smiled, and Nari slowly touched the hot rod, pumping with energy.

She turned it to the sides, admiring the nature of the paragon rod. The veins popping on it said it all. She was fascinated by it, and so she started stroking.

However, she first had to lubricate her palm and the shaft. The feeling in her palm didn't seem right. It needed something first.

Thankfully, she had seen Queenie go down on Klaus before.

Of course, it wasn't like she was spying on them. It was just that the leader of the overlords was too horny, so inside the pool, she went down on Klaus multiple times.

This made Nari switch from her hand to her mouth, so she wrapped her lips around the dick and started sucking it.

Klaus could feel her inexperience immediately, but that didn't last long, as the more she moved her head, the more she seemed to discover how best to move her tongue.

And so, she kept moving up and down until she found her rhythm.

"MmmmHhh."

That was when Klaus moaned, and that was when she smiled and started sucking him really hard.

She quickly realized that when her hands touched his jewels, his moans were different, so she started kneading them, and as expected, Klaus was moaning just like he did with Queenie.

Klaus continued to moan for 30 minutes before he felt his jizz form and ready to explode.

"Nari... position your mouth at the tip; the star juice is coming," Klaus said, and Nari raised her head back and started sucking the tip of his dick while massaging his balls at the same time.

'I wonder what it's going to taste like. Big sister always smiled whenever she received it,' her cheeks were red.

She wasn't interested back then, but now that she was doing it, she could already taste the star juice, which tasted great.

'Though I never knew how I felt back then when I saw big sister with Klaus; now that I can feel emotions, it was jealousy. I was jealous of those expressions she made.'

Nari's cheeks kept turning red.

'Now, I am about to receive my first.'

She kept sucking the tip for a few minutes before she felt something warm explode into her mouth, making her eyes widen as the second shot followed.

She quickly swallowed and then went in for more.

As she wanted, more came, but soon, it began to slow down. That was when she started to savor it and found out it was sweet.

Her body shuddered, feeling the ecstasy.

'I was really missing all this due to my sick self. Now...!' She raised her eyes and looked at the pleasure-filled face of Klaus, who was shooting his load into her mouth.

'Now, I want to always taste it. I never want to be away from him.'

The loads continued to come for close to two minutes before the last drop landed on her tongue.

Klaus smiled at her expression. "That was your first, but there will be many more to come, so don't worry about thinking of anything crazy."

"I am not crazy, Klaus," she blushed.

"Tell that to the expression in your eyes and the feeling I am getting from you. I saw you wanted to do something crazy, but you should stop."

"Tsk, I never knew you would abuse your authority over me," Nari pouted, making Klaus's heartbeat quicken. The lady is already beautiful, but with a pout, she is on the next level of cuteness.

"If that was a connection worth abusing, then wait till I am done with you." He raised her and moved to the edge of the bed, sitting down with his legs on the floor.

He sat Nari on his lap and then positioned his dick at her lower lips, starting to move her hips, making her nether juices start to coat the dick.

"I want... I want it in me... Klaus," Nari requested, but Klaus just kept moving her, making sure his dick, which was moving across her lower lips, brought out her emotions and moans.

"Please," she begged, but Klaus, who knew what he was doing, wouldn't let her run her mouth after the first round. So, for 15 minutes, he did only that until she couldn't take it anymore and climaxed.

"You... you are... wicked, Klaus," Nari said, burying her face in his chest. Feeling his manly energy coming from his body, her feelings intensified.

Klaus just smirked and continued to rub her back until she calmed down.

"Let's take the next step and finally make you mine," Klaus said after calming her.

"I have always been yours, Klaus. My body, soul, and everything are yours. Now that I have your blood in my veins, I will forever be yours." Nari smiled, planting a kiss on his forehead.

"You are sweet with your words, Nari, sweet as honey. I wonder if you can maintain the same decorum after the main sex."

Klaus smiled, knowing the now docile and cute Nari wouldn't hesitate to grab hold of his ear in public. She is that crazy and lively.

"Be ready; you will only feel the pain for a moment, so endure." Nari nodded, and he placed his shaft at her tiny red and pink entrance, slowly pushing in.

The resistance was there, but he continued gently until he reached her last line of defense. He held her ass with one hand and used the other to support her back.

He kissed her nipples, then lowered his hand to grip her hips, slowly thrusting in and breaking her ultimate defense.

His dick slid in, and her moans, filled with emotion, escaped her mouth. A smile appeared on her lips as she felt Klaus's manhood now inside her, coated in blood.

This signified their union, and as such, they were forever tied to each other.

'Finally, I have also become his. I will love him just as my sisters love him,' Nari promised, feeling Klaus's heartbeat beneath her hands.

Chapter 687 - 687: A Paragon Vs a Great Calamity (3) [18+]

"Aaaaahhhh!"

Both Klaus and Nari moaned as he released his star juice into her, making the damsel on his lap shudder, feeling the warmth spread inside her body.

It was full of energy, and just the sensation was enough to tell him that the energy from it was having some form of effect on her.

She was shocked for a moment there, but remembering Klaus's blood had literally turned her into a spearman calmed her nerves down.

She knew Klaus was a monster, so this was but a normal occurrence. Of course, she would love to get some clarification.

But she wasn't in any position to comment on that, as Klaus was pouring all he could gather into her for a full minute before the last of his essence was deposited within her.

The moment he pulled his thickness out of her, Nari looked down at it and licked her lips.

"Go ahead," Klaus said, allowing her to play with it for a while. When she was done, she looked at Klaus, and a smile appeared on her lips.

"That was amazing," she muttered, her gaze already fixed on the still-hard dragon, ready to go another round.

"You're going to enjoy this for years, so don't get too hungry," Klaus teased, making Nari smirk.

"Don't get cocky. Having a phoenix as a wife should be something you cherish," she retorted, puffing out her chest.

Of course, Klaus just smirked at her words.

"I have an Elf and a Supreme Human; what makes you think you're one of a kind?" he replied.

"But there can only be one me, so get that into your head. If you see another phoenix and even try to raise an eyebrow, I'll burn both of you alive."

"Tsk..." Klaus chose to let her have her moment while he turned his attention to the ladies who were eagerly waiting for their new sister to be added to the Paragon mark.

Nari is about to join them. The moment she did...

They would receive Paragon points and more, so they were ready to welcome their new sister with open arms.

[Weirdos], Klaus called out, making the ladies stop everything they were doing just so they could wait for Nari to be added to the paragon harem.

"What are you still waiting for, Klaus? Quickly add Nari to the Paragon mark," Ohema said the moment they heard Klaus's voice inside their minds.

[You all should just relax. The Phoenix isn't going anywhere.]

By the time everything was said and done, they would take over and ensure Nari spent the entire night with them.

They wouldn't let her just have it easy. They just wouldn't. So they will ensure the Phoenix gets the best welcome she couldn't have expected.

Thankfully, the paragon mark doesn't happen immediately. He releases his load in them like before.

Now that Klaus could determine who gets the mark and when it happens, he just wanted to get things settled first.

"Don't take too long," Lucy said, glancing at the three ladies around him.

"We should be in there," Anna added.

[You not being here is for the best. The Phoenix is crazy. She's already started threatening you guys. Personally, I think you all should gang up on her and give her a good beating. But she is your sister so do what you want.]

But a word of advice: be gentle with her. She won't hurt any of you, but I can already see her locking you all up somewhere.]

They laughed.

Klaus looked at Nari and smiled.

A while back, he only saw her as a friend. But now, he couldn't help but look at her in a new light. He can feel how much he loves her, and he can also tell how much she loves him.

"I'll be adding you to my secret society now." He snapped his fingers, causing Nari to look down at the burn that appeared below her belly.

The moment the tattoo appeared on her skin, the ladies swarmed her, making the great calamity widen her eyes in surprise.

Klaus just smiled, lay on the bed, and waited for her to be welcomed by her sisters.

An hour later, they were done, and Nari glared at Klaus with eyes filled with injustice.

"Why didn't you say something?" she asked.

"They would have spoiled the fun. Now, seeing how you went from shocked to all other emotions, I couldn't have asked for more.

You were once a robot; now, I can see the human in you," Klaus laughed.

"You..." Nari jumped on him and started pounding his chest, making Klaus laugh at her childish display.

After a few seconds, she lay on his chest and started rubbing him.

"Klaus, do you think I will ever go crazy again?" She asked.

Now that she had started experiencing all these emotions, she recalled all the chaos she had unleashed years ago.

Back when the ice people appeared and tried to take over the rule of Earth, Nari single-handedly paid them a visit and melted large chunks of ice.

It was devastating, and even after the battle, to this day, the ice people fear her. She is like the bane of their existence.

Fire and ice don't really go hand in hand with most. So they fear her.

And it wasn't just them.

Naturally, everyone fears her, for she is terrifying to them.

"You are still crazy. There is no doubt about that. However, you now have emotions and can recognize when someone is in pain or scared. So, I believe when the craziness surfaces again, you will become aware of it and stop yourself.

But even if you don't, I am here, and so are your sisters. They will help you adapt well. I believe you have nothing to worry about."

She nodded, feeling a little better. The crazy fire queen had earned her name from her handiwork, so there was no telling if she would continue to live up to that name or not.

"Then, do you want to spar with me?" she asked, smiling.

"You're still too weak to spar with me," Klaus laughed, knowing what awaited him was devastation. But sparring with her was something he planned on doing, so he knew it had to be done soon.

Nari stood and sat on him. Slowly, she positioned his dick at her entrance and sank down onto it. Thus began their marathon, which would last the entire night.

By the time daybreak arrived, Klaus had made the crazy fire lady climax countless times, leaving her passed out in the end.

Klaus had to use his bloodline powers as an elf to keep going.

He looked at her sleeping body, covered in sticky fluids, and smiled.

"I'll be taking her away now," Queenie said, appearing out of thin air and landing beside Klaus. She looked at the sleeping dragon and smiled.

"Shower and relax; you still have dozens of honey ladies to pleasure, so restore your energy as quickly as you can."

She picked Nari up and glanced at little Klaus again before vanishing.

Klaus chuckled and went to shower. After that, he headed to a training room and began to cultivate while waiting for the day's events to resume.

He was much stronger than before, so he didn't need to sleep after sex.

After recovering for a few hours, he went to find Old Lu, who handed him his inner disciple trial.

Chapter 688 - 688: Blite Mountain

The Blite Mountain was one of the many strange events and changes that emerged when the apocalypse descended on Earth.

Just like the fire region Klaus entered months ago, where he killed those five fire beasts, the Blite Mountain is a zone for lightning monsters.

Only lightning-type monsters and beasts reside there.

It's located somewhere in the Austria Union, where Overlord Isaac resides.

It was once a forbidden zone, but after Overlord Isaac cleared it due to its danger, it became a place for lightning cultivators to practice.

However, three weeks ago, reports reached the academy that three Tier 9 beasts had taken residence there and were continually attacking the humans training in the area.

The War God of that region and the warriors kept holding them back, but the beasts only seemed to grow more furious and aggressive by the day.

This was why, when reports reached Old Lu, he gave the mission to Klaus to handle it.

Currently, Klaus is en route to the Austria Union, where he will be meeting with the War God and the military leader of that region to address the threat.

Of course, Old Lu had already informed them that Klaus would handle the threats, but out of respect, he would first formally inform them.

Klaus saw no problem with that, so, taking Old Lu's jet, he left to quickly clear the mission and become an inner disciple.

Not that he needed it—he is already above the inner disciple standards, as he currently has seven sovereign cores.

But he liked the academy and wouldn't just live there because he didn't benefit much from it.

After a few hours of flying, he reached his destination, where, from a distance, he saw a young man in a military uniform and another wearing armor waiting for him.

About ten soldiers stood behind them.

"Welcome to the Austria Union, Klaus. It's good to have you here," War God Henry said with a polite smile, extending his hand for a handshake.

"It's great to be here. I never really visited anywhere aside from the forbidden zones in the Northern Union," Klaus replied, being his usual self.

Naturally, he is always smiling unless provoked.

"This is General Nazz. He is in charge of the military affairs in the region," War God Henry said.

"Nice to meet you, General," Klaus said, shaking his hand firmly.

"Why don't we take this to the headquarters? We would like to report a few things before you can get down to business," War God Henry suggested.

The three and ten soldiers flew toward a tall, majestic building in the distance.

A few seconds later, they arrived and were seated in a room. War God Henry gestured for General Nazz to begin the presentation.

He projected an image of a beast that brought a smile to Klaus's face the moment he saw it.

"This is a Diamond Scale Brute Elephant, but from the smile on your face, I can tell you already knew that," General Nazz said with a smile.

"Of course. I faced a beast like this before but couldn't win simply because it was just too monstrous with its defense."

"Indeed. This beast has incredible control over the earth's elements and, to some extent, can even transmute them into metals.

We tried several times to break its defense, but we couldn't. However, that is just one monstrous aspect of it.

Aside from the defense, it also has a lightning affinity that allows it to wield a powerful form of lightning. We just could not keep up with that.

Then there is the Lightning Canine. As you can see, this beast is very ugly but also very monstrous.

It has a poison affinity, too, and aside from the lightning it can wield, it also has a strange skill that allows it to phase in and out of existence.

As for the last beast, we believe it's the leader of the three simply because it's at the peak of the Tier 9 stage and rarely attacks us.

So, we only know of its appearance, but even then, it has never appeared in its humanoid form, so we really don't know anything about it."

The image of a Third Eye Jaguar was projected. It was huge, and Klaus could tell it had mutated from the pattern on its body.

This makes it a powerful foe.

"So, from this, we can assume that the beasts are there to allow their leader to break through to the Tier 10 stage," Klaus said, and the two inside the hall came to the same conclusion.

It's already clear now.

The three beasts currently cooped up inside the Blite Mountains are not friendly in any way, and from what Klaus saw in the images presented to him, they are savages.

"Then I guess the faster they are taken care of, the better for everyone," Klaus said, and War God Henry nodded. General Nazz also agreed.

"Very well. I will be going now. The quicker I get this done, the faster I can move on to the next mission," Klaus said as he stood up, and the two with him followed.

"The Blite Mountain can be reached using a shuttle. Though flying there would be ideal, we cannot do that, considering the weather there can sometimes be unstable."

They got into a shuttle and left for the mountain. Klaus had already made plans to end the battle as quickly as possible.

The task he wanted to embark on is much more challenging than this, so he wouldn't be spending too much time there.

After 45 minutes of travel, they stopped.

When Klaus stepped out of the shuttle, he immediately felt the lightning energy in the air. As an elemental overlord, he could sense even the tiniest bit of elemental energy around him.

This also means he can use the tiniest elemental energy in the air.

"No wonder the beasts chose this place. The lightning energy here is incredibly strong, even from this distance," Klaus remarked.

The War God and the army general who accompanied him nodded in agreement.

"They are in the inner section of the forest," General Nazz said. "You have to be careful. They are dangerous and deadly."

Klaus nodded. "You can come watch if you want. This will be ending faster than you think."

Klaus started moving away, and War God Henry and General Nazz followed him.

They would be lying if they said they weren't curious about watching the young man who single-handedly slaughtered an entire alliance of thousands.

Naturally, they wanted to see if what he had shown in the news was true.

After moving for four minutes, Klaus felt a presence approaching him from deep within the mountains. He smiled.

Chapter 689 - 689: Killing Efficiency

"You two might want to wait here. They are coming," Klaus said to War God Henry and General Nazz. They nodded and stopped while Klaus moved forward, halting only when he was meters away from them.

From a distance, he could see a juggernaut speeding toward him, lightning crackling across its body. The trees and rocks are being broken and shattered as the beast moves toward him.

He stood his ground as the beast closed in.

ROAR!

It came to a stop about a hundred meters from Klaus and let out a thunderous roar. Klaus didn't move. He simply stood there, making it clear he had no intention of leaving.

Perhaps because the monster had now evolved into a beast, it understood Klaus's arrogance.

In response to his clear arrogance and annoyance, the ground beneath Klaus gave way, causing him to fall.

Suddenly, the earth solidified again, attempting to trap him up to his neck. However, Klaus vanished and reappeared a few meters away from the beast.

It was a quick attack, but to Klaus, this was nothing.

He had now mastered the Astra Moving Step technique to the 3rd stage—the Void Step. This was part of the reason he was able to open the void.

However, using the void and opening it to use are two different things. For this small and weak attack, he didn't need to exert much effort, as the beast wasn't particularly fast to begin with.

So, using the void, he moved and appeared away from the attack.

The beast, having missed its chance to attack, charged at Klaus again. This time, it wanted to crash him to a pulp, but Klaus stood his ground, much to the shock of War God Henry and General Nazz.

Klaus remained motionless as the Brute Elephant barreled toward him.

BOOM!

The diamond-scale brute Elephant thrust its tusks at Klaus, aiming to impale him. However, before that could happen, Klaus blocked the attack with just one hand.

The speed and force behind the charge created a powerful shockwave that rippled out several meters. It was a powerful head-on collision, but he stood there unmoving.

Klaus smirked and then pushed the brute, sending it flying backward.

'Looks like my physical strength has reached a new stage. Brutes won't be able to do anything to me if I fight using my bare fists.'

The Brute Elephant was a perfect example. It was thrown aside like a ragdoll.

"Tsk," Klaus smirked as he stepped back, effortlessly evading a lightning attack that came from his side.

He turned to see where the attack came from, only to meet the gaze of one of the ugliest-looking beasts he had ever encountered.

"You're ugly, bro," Klaus couldn't help but remark.

The beast clearly didn't take kindly to such a negative remark about its appearance.

However, with a mouth that seemed to open wider than it should, revealing three rows of small, razor-sharp teeth, it wasn't exactly sending the right message about its "handsomeness."

It moved, fading in and out of existence, and suddenly appeared before Klaus, its massive jaws widening to clamp down on his thigh.

However, Klaus swung his leg with precision, and like striking a ball, the ugly Lightning Canine was sent flying. By the time it hit the ground, Klaus was already there to greet it.

He landed another powerful kick, and this time, the canine felt the pain as a few bones broke from the attack.

War God Henry and General Nazz were dumbfounded by what Klaus was doing. They could see what was happening, but they couldn't comprehend how he was doing it.

It was as if he was teleporting between attacks.

But even if he were moving at such an incredible speed that it appeared like teleportation, how was he able to block a head-on collision from the towering Brute Elephant, which stood many feet above him?

They simply couldn't find the words to describe it.

Klaus, however, didn't have time to explain. He was focused on testing his skills, and so far, the beasts were proving to be far too weak for what he had planned.

He decided to finish them off before their boss arrived. He wanted to see what such chaotic beasts were truly capable of.

"You all can die now," Klaus said coldly as he raised his hand.

"Annihilation Ice." The temperature plummeted as a dark mist of ice materialized in the air. From the mist, two five-meter-long, razor-sharp dark spears of ice emerged.

"Elemental Infusion: Golden Annihilation Lightning." He snapped his fingers, and the two dark ice spears were instantly bathed in crackling golden lightning.

"This is overkill," Klaus, who had calculated the outcome of the battle even before it started, knew there was no escaping the spears.

He was using a very powerful energy source, so naturally, all his attacks were much more potent. He looked at the two beasts now speeding toward him and snapped his fingers.

The spear shot at the two, and before they could even realize how it happened, they were pierced through and through, ending them in the quickest and most efficient way possible.

They died, and Klaus, who was awakening the aura of death, felt their deaths, which gave him a strand of clarity into how to cultivate the power of death.

It wasn't something new, considering everyone who wants to become a god must know death. In fact, death is a cultivation stage one must go through if one wants to keep progressing.

However, what made him special was the fact that he would not only know death, he would become death itself, for that is the power he had inherited during the trial.

He went through the 25 cycles of death, marking him as the heir of death. He was the first person in history to go through all 25 cycles of death and inherit the mark of death.

Such a power, now hidden within him, was more than enough to make him turn immortal before even attaining immortality.

With the power of death, he wouldn't be afraid of dying.

If he were to realize this power, he must first die a couple of times, and to do that, he must know what death feels and looks like.

But to achieve that, he must first kill a lot of people since that is the easiest and fastest way to know what death looks like and feels like.

Killing the two beasts was a wake-up call. He could tell that much, so he planned to kill more. Perhaps one of these days would be when he would awaken it.

When that happens, he can easily die and resurrect in his own right, for the heir of death has control over death, so death doesn't affect him.

Klaus waved his hand, and the bodies of the two beasts floated toward the war god and General Nazz, who nearly jumped back in fright.

"You can have these two. Absorbing their cores will come in handy. Now, if you'll excuse me, I will be going after their leader. Just wait for me here."

The two nodded like children, watching Klaus disappear deeper into the mountains.

Chapter 690 - 690: First Contracted Beast

From the multi-dimensional cube, Klaus discovered that mutated beasts are creatures with unlimited potential. They are hybrids with blood from two different beasts.

They can also be tribrids if they have bloodlines from three different places. And there can be more than three or even four.

Of course, not all mutants were special.

Most were subpar, mainly because of the bloodlines from which they were built. But if the bloodlines they were made of were from two powerful beasts, then their output would be monstrous.

In this instance, Klaus was about to meet one such beast.

The jaguar he was about to encounter, according to the data obtained from the multi-dimensional cube and the image he saw, he got to know that it was a beast from three different bloodlines—or at least that was how it was supposed to have been formed.

It was a jaguar with patterns and features of a panther and a third trait that could only have come from a serpent.

If these three traits were combined, he could tell this tri-breed was a monster among monsters.

So Klaus wanted it.

If it rejected him or didn't have an affinity with his blood, he would simply kill it and move on. But he sure hoped he was right.

Klaus moved deeper into the mountain, where the lightning was very intense, and the energy in the air was thick with power.

He loved it because the deeper he went, the more he could absorb the essence and the higher his chances of increasing his strength.

When he was 300 meters away from the heart of the lightning, he came to a stop when he felt the aura directed toward him.

It was from a demi-beast with a humanoid beast body and a beast-like head. Lightning danced around its body, and just looking into those intense blue eyes was enough to tell Klaus that this beast was a true warrior.

He can tell it isn't a weak opponent when engaged in combat with it.

[That is one powerful beast there, brat. I have to say, your world is very small compared to most worlds out there, but the potential it is hiding is something I cannot even understand.]

The senior's words made Klaus smile.

He had thought the same. Though he could easily kill monsters and beasts several stages above him, he had fought enough to know that the monsters and beasts weren't weak.

This meant the potential of Earth was great. The only thing holding them back was the awakening.

Once that was over, humans could start awakening their bloodlines, or those who already had but were locked would become unlocked.

That would unleash this hidden potential. He can already see a lot of hidden potential.

'I wonder if this will go well or not,' Klaus sighed and transformed into an elf. This was the only way for him to determine if the beast was compatible.

He looked at the beast and sign.

"I know you are smart and can realize you are not strong enough to face me. So be wise and stay where you are.

If you meet my expectations, I will make you an Overlord beast, meaning you will become a beast among beasts.

But if you fail to meet that, I will decide whether or not to kill you. You have a higher chance of surviving if you don't attack."

Klaus spoke as he moved closer.

When he was 200 meters away, a golden thread, invisible to the eye, shot from his eyes and merged with the body of the beast.

At once, Klaus felt a multitude of things that made him smile despite the demi-beast being ready to attack the brat who was treating it as if it were nothing.

Klaus sensed the hidden potential of the beast and its possible evolution paths. He saw what it would become should he go on with his plan.

He knew how to accomplish many of these paths. He knew how to make it grow and possibly jump through the gate like a carp, finally becoming a dragon.

Klaus saw it all.

He saw how to make it gain new mutations and how to set it on the path of becoming a true overlord among beasts.

Klaus saw so much potential that he laughed out loud like a maniac. What he saw and what he could do put him in such a mood.

[Is it good, brat?] The senior wanted to know. Klaus smiled and shared what he had seen with him.

[This is...holy. This is awesome. And come on...how can one person's bloodline be this powerful? Just where did the Star Monarch bloodline come from?] The senior was dumbfounded.

'No need to be jealous, Old Man. I spent eight incarnations working toward that ninth, so of course, it had to be the best, and I made sure it was the best.

Now, I have the perfected version, so it's only a matter of time before I start commanding an army of Celestial beasts.

Who could stop me by then?'

[I can only imagine that sight.]

'Don't imagine it, Senior. I will make it a reality.' Klaus turned to the mutant beast and nodded at it. He was more than happy to give it his blood, but first, he must check something.

"You have reached the standards to evolve. Now, I'm not asking you to follow me now and help me fight my battles. I am already strong enough to fight my own battles.

What I want from you is your dedication and determination to grow and become someone I can rely on. I want you to rise to the stage where, when the time comes, you will stand by my side and face the chaos with me.

So, I will ask once, and before answering, remember how your two guards died and imagine dying like that—a very pitiful death.

So imagine that and give me a good answer. Your potential is something I cannot watch go to waste.

So I ask, do you want to become my contracted beast and fight with me when you are called upon?"

Klaus's question was the most inspiring thing any beast with a conscience would accept. But that would depend on how much they truly understood reason and could reason on their own.

To many, killing Klaus would be their next move. But those are just too stupid. True beasts can reason and analyze stuff.

The Mutated Jaguar looked at Klaus and kept staring at him for three full minutes before giving its answer.

"I will accept your offer on one condition."

"And that is?"

"You will help me kill a Tier 10 beast...specifically, the Blue Streak Cheetah. It's a lightning-type beast, and the only thing I need from it is the heart and core."

"Just that?" Klaus raised an eyebrow.

If that was all, then he was ready to accept the offer. The Star Monarch bloodline could not be forced on the beasts. It had to be accepted.

Similarly, the beast or monster could not take it forcefully; it had to be given willingly.

"Yes, just that."

"I accept your offer. So, why don't I send you somewhere for now? I was meant to kill you, after all, so you better be out of here."

"Fine."

The jaguar and Klaus vanished into the cube.

