

Paragon 751

Chapter 751 - 751: Kaden, the 8th Incarnation (3)

Klaus sighed, hearing his words.

"What happened?" Klaus asked.

"You see, the secret we found was one the heavens had prepared for billions of years. It wasn't even meant to exist.

So we had to destroy it. But destroying it without benefiting isn't something a paragon does. We are greedy bastards," Kaden laughed.

"So we destroyed it, and it was Pickle Berry who did.

I never planned to go directly against the heavens, knowing that would mean my death. But I had to do that one day, Pickle Berry would come out whole and much more powerful.

She sacrificed four lives for me. Giving one of mine isn't something I will complain about. So we attacked, she and I, along with my army, attacked, and for 100 years, we fought and killed millions.

We rose to the heights, and when we saw this weapon they were creating for us, Pickle Berry smiled and bid me farewell.

That was the last time I saw her until I exploded my core, destroying everything, including the Pool of Secrets."

"Pause right there and answer this question first," Klaus raised a finger. "I thought we paragons don't die."

"Indeed, we only become one with the paragon stars. But I died, and it was the reason you wouldn't be able to recover my memories," Kaden laughed, making Klaus raise his brow.

"Don't worry. I know the memories are a way for you to grow, but I had to die to stop the heavens from creating armies from the secrets collected from Void.

That is not something we can go against. So my death justifies that. However, that also means my memories died with me."

"Then how come I am talking to you now? You just told me your story, so how is that possible?" The conversation was getting technical, and Klaus could see that.

If his memories were indeed gone for good, then how did he learn about his 8th incarnation?

"All of this is possible because of Pickle Berry. I died, but I wasn't taken by the heavens. I became one with the paragon stars before exploding my core along with my soul body.

The price was my memories. But in all my life, one person has been with me, and that was Pickle Berry. You are here with me now because of her, and you will always need her if you want to see me."

"You linked your memories with her, so as she recovered her past, so would you," Klaus managed to arrive at this deduction.

"It looks like you aren't stupid. That's good, and yes, knowing I would die, I entered reincarnation and used my soul body as the channel between the cycle of reincarnation and reality.

It was a dangerous thing to do, but since you are here, it means we succeeded... Yay!"

"This bastard," Klaus shook his head. "Now, how about you tell me what this Pool of Secrets is and why we nearly died destroying it."

"Before you know about it, what can you tell me about the Void?" Kaden asked.

"I know the Void is an infinite expanse where nothing is as it appears. Everything is formless, and it doesn't have a pattern to it. It's basically nothing."

"You are right. But your answer is just the bits. You see, the Void is everything. It's the moon, the sun, the planets, galaxies, universes, and everything. It's within it we and everything exist."

Klaus frowns.

"Are you saying the Void is outside of this world like it exists outside of the universe, and that the universe can be found within?"

"Yes. The Void is everything, and it's within this everything we can find everything. I don't know if it makes sense," Kaden asked.

"Somehow..."

"Then let's not get too deep. There is time for that later. Also, Pickle Berry knows more than I do, so it's only a matter of time before you get acquainted with the knowledge of the Void.

But it's everything, and it's from it that we have creation, which is life, and destruction, which is death. Then we have time, space, light, and everything else.

The laws came from it.

It was from it we have universes, worlds, suns, and moons. It has everything.

Now, something that gave us creation, destruction, the laws, and all others is bound to contain many secrets—secrets like how to comprehend the laws, heaven-shattering techniques, secrets beyond the heavens, and many more.

So imagine the heavens finding a way to capture this secret and using it to create beings that will possess these secrets.

We could not allow that to happen. So Pickle Berry entered to do two things: first, steal as many secrets as she could before entering reincarnation.

Second, it was to ensure they never found a way to create yet another pool after I destroyed it. And we succeeded, for Pickle Berry has been born.

It means she succeeded in destroying the Pool of Secrets." Kaden smiled.

"Tell me, which incarnation are you?"

"I am the last," Klaus and Kaden smiled broadly.

"So we succeeded. Pickle Berry succeeded, and even all nine of us succeeded, for your time has come. This is great. This is great, very great." His laughter was filled with mocking aimed at the heavens.

"We succeeded. This is good."

"Hello, Mr. I don't have all day, so can we get moving?" Klaus could tell Kaden was happy, and strangely, he was smiling without even knowing it.

"You should be happy, for this is something you and your allies will need. Pickle Berry is the key to everything that will lead to the Awakening of Your World."

"How so?"

"It's because, in your seven incarnations, your world survived, but you didn't. I am not saying you died. You didn't die. However, your heart died.

I shouldn't be telling you this, but you were one messed-up sicko back in your seventh incarnation. It was in that life that we saw what hatred could do to us.

We let our hatred get the best of us, and by the time we recovered, the damage had already been done. So you are here because we wouldn't want a repeat of that."

Chapter 752 - 752: Kaden, the 8th Incarnation (4)

The first time his anger got the best of him was when he tried to kill Kate Duncan back in the academy.

It was a mistake he would have regretted. Thankfully, that didn't happen.

Even then, if he had somehow survived the heavenly tribulation, it would have set him back several years.

So he knew what Kaden said wasn't false claims.

However, hearing one of his incarnations lost it and went berserk, Klaus was rather shaken.

The sly Kaden just smiled at him.

After a while, Klaus recovered.

"Tell me everything," he asked in a tone that wouldn't take no for an answer.

"But that is not possible, at least the telling you everything part. However, I can tell you something that will help you when you finally remember that time." Kaden got serious.

"Basically, the seventh incarnation was our first time experiencing world awakening, so we didn't really know how much the heavens wanted us dead.

It was then we realized they wouldn't hesitate to kill billions just to get to us.

Bear in mind that we were very powerful back then, but we weren't the most popular, mainly because of our nature.

We weren't popular, not because we were a Paragon. Nobody knew that; however, they hated us because of the kind of existence we were.

You will find out about it later because even I don't know.

But what I am meant to tell you has something to do with the moment it all went to shit.

It seems our hatred is our strength.

Whenever we fight using that hatred, nothing can stop us. Of course, we have a fix for it, but because we weren't really the popular kind back then, we couldn't fill our lives with love like we did in the past.

So it went to shit when friends and comrades started dying. You know the rest.

We lost control, and when it was all over, we lost, for everything was gone. We lost our hearts, and that was what made us forever hateful.

We hated everything to the point of hating our existence. It took many years, hundreds of thousands of them, for Yuying to fix us up.

But even so, the aura of hatred was already created, which means our future would have to deal with that aura.

Now, I am telling you this because your world awakening may not be as you expect, so please, when that time comes and you sense it, don't resist.

Resisting is the last thing you want.

"Let it flow, and when it's finally out, point your weapon at the heavens, for they are the ones you should hate, not the tools they are manipulating.

Leave the tools to your soldiers, your friends, and your lovers. They are your strength, so don't restrict them. Your target should be the heavens.

They say the Heavenly Dao is fair and just, but that is a lie, and you will know soon." Kaden took a big sigh, watching Klaus clench his fist.

"Tell me... This hatred was because I lost someone dear to me. Someone close to my heart," Klaus asked, but Kaden just smiled.

This smile was enough to tell him what he wanted to know.

"No need to look down. You are here because you went against the heavens and successfully rescued your lost companion. You should be happy about that."

"Well, I don't feel that enthusiastic. And I didn't win all by myself; I had help from a friend of yours," Klaus said, now remembering he hadn't even asked his benefactor what his name was.

"Oh, are you talking about Jkan? That bastard really kept his promise? However, expected. May his soul rest in peace."

Kaden smiled despite the situation he was describing.

"He didn't die, you bastard; I saved him," Klaus said, finally getting a name.

"Good for him. The last time we met, he was going to go to the forbidden universe and wait for my return, despite my giving him a task to fulfill for me.

Looks like he didn't die there and returned in one piece. Good for him."

"It's been over a million years, right? So how is he still alive?" This question had been bothering him for a while now.

He knew immortality meant never dying of old age. But living over a million years isn't something that can easily be fathomed.

So then, how does it work?

Kaden smiled, knowing he had managed to distract Klaus from the discovery that he had lost control and nearly caused a disaster for himself and the future versions of him.

"When you get to the immortal stage, you must first go through three levels of immortality called the First, Real, and Sage. These stages are where most immortals get stuck.

However, the moment you pass that stage, you become a True Immortal. The rest depends on whether you want to chase after the seven levels of immortality and become a demigod.

But the moment you become a True Immortal, death by natural age is something you wouldn't have to worry about.

"Some can even sleep for millions of years. It may sound bizarre, but beings from our first incarnation still live to this day".

"That is wild. I only lived as far as the First Immortal stage in the 4th incarnation, but I killed gods and even a Supreme," Klaus bragged.

"Congratulations on your achievements," Kaden laughed, causing Klaus to smirk.

Back then, they feared him. The title Renegade Immortal was the bane of most gods. Even he killed a Supreme, someone above a god.

That was something very wild.

"A question, though. If there are beings still alive from our many incarnations, then won't they recognize us and nip us in the bud once and for all?"

"Haha..." Kaden laughed. The question is rather funny yet serious.

"They wouldn't recognize us until after we become demi-gods and start ascending to the god stage. It was also the reason why we hadn't tried ascending before.

The moment the stolen memories are returned to them, they will attack, and ascending to the god stage can take years, so better be prepared."

"I shouldn't have asked," Klaus sighed. Knowing all this made him wonder just what he did wrong to these people.

"You will know soon enough, so why not?" Kaden smirked.

"Now, you have to go back. The ritual is almost complete. Remember, even though Pickle Berry is young and not that powerful, listen to her and that figure in your soul." Kaden gently touched Klaus's shoulder.

Kaden was talking about the senior inside his soul.

"They are your greatest allies." He let go, and Klaus opened his eyes back to the real world.

Immediately, as he did, his eyes landed on a little girl with silver hair hovering before him. He tried to adjust his eyes to the light, but before he could, a silver light shot from the little girl's eyes and entered Klaus's forehead.

He fell back and passed out.

The little girl formed a hand seal and pointed her little finger at him, shooting about another light into his body.

A beam shot from him, parting the clouds.

Chapter 753 - 753: Is She Like Our Daughter

Klaus's ladies were waiting for him when he left that morning, just saying he would return in the evening.

Naturally, Hanna told them something was wrong with him, so they used the Paragon Mark, and truly, they could tell he wasn't alright.

But they allowed him to go so they could plan what to do when he returned. They are his women, so making him feel good is their responsibility.

However, eight hours later, they sensed a powerful fluctuation in the air, which caused them to look into the distance.

Naturally, Queenie saw it was Klaus, so she used the Paragon Mark to vanish. His sisters did the same, shocking everyone present.

Hanna gritted her teeth, not having such an ability. This made her realize what had to be done to get her share, for she could tell every last one of Klaus's ladies became different after spending their first time with him.

Luckily, Kathy was fast, so she picked her up, and in a few seconds, they closed the distance.

Queen Lunara and Old Lu also left, leaving the safety of the camp to General Dane and War God Henry.

When they arrived, they saw Klaus sitting in a lotus posture with a powerful beam of light bathing him.

Strangely, hovering before him was a little girl, not more than five years old.

When they arrived, they saw she was forming hand seals. After a few moments, she pointed her finger at Klaus, making a green spell diagram appear beneath him and on his forehead.

The little girl was drained, so she fell.

Instinctively, Queenie moved and caught her just in time for whatever was happening with Klaus to start.

His body was covered in green scales, causing the space around him to start warping as if space and reality were not stable there.

Queenie and the others moved back, distancing themselves from Klaus for a moment.

"What a cute little girl!" Lily said, staring at the beautiful, small face now sleeping peacefully in Queenie's arms.

"Where did she come from?" Anna asked, causing everyone to turn and look at Klaus. They really didn't know where the small young girl came from.

Klaus never told them he had any small child somewhere, so this was shocking to them.

"Where was the snake around his neck when he left?" Nia asked, forcing the ladies to turn and look at Klaus again.

Like she said, the snake was no longer there.

"You don't think this little girl is that snake," Lucy said. The ladies turned and looked at each other before Lily gently pulled down the collar of the silver gown the little girl was wearing.

"No way. She is the snake." Her expression was one of shock. On her chest are silver scales just like the ones on the snake Klaus brought back yesterday.

"How can a Tier 1 snake take on human form and a good one at that? Just who is this little girl?" Lulu commented, looking at her sisters and then the sleeping little girl.

"Why don't you ladies pay attention to her rank again?" Queen Lunara said, making them sense her rank once more.

"Wow, she is already Tier 4. I could swear the snake Klaus brought yesterday was a Tier 1. Just how did she become Tier 3 in less than a day?" Lucy asked again.

"More importantly, we all saw her form hand seals, right? Just how can a little girl do that?"

The question being asked kept making the ladies wonder just where the little girl came from.

"You all are asking the wrong question. We all know this little girl was the snake Klaus brought yesterday. The question should be who she is to him," Nari smiled.

"Is she like our daughter?"

Her sisters looked at the beautiful sleeping faces, and a lovely smile appeared on their faces.

"She looks lovely. I wouldn't mind her calling me Mommy," Lily said.

"I call dibs on Mama." Nari wasn't taking no for an answer.

"Relax, since I was the one who held her first, I should be the Mama; you ladies can take Mommy and the others." Queenie laughed, but she had no plans to hand the little girl over to any of her sisters.

"You all are weird." Suddenly, a voice spoke, sounding like Klaus.

They turned, and indeed, they saw him smiling at them but still seated in a lotus posture.

"Klaus..." Their faces brightened even more.

"Queenie, my love, can you hand her over for a bit?" Klaus said, and Queenie flew toward him. She gave her to him reluctantly before flying back.

When Klaus held her, Pickle Berry opened her eyes and looked at him. This made the ladies wonder if she was just faking her sleep.

"Are you ready?" Klaus asked, and Pickle Berry nodded.

"Very well." He sat her down in front of him and formed a hand seal, making an identical spell circle appear beneath her.

"I will form the connection now," Klaus said, and Pickle Berry nodded. A few seconds into the process, Klaus touched her forehead, making the two of them enter a trancelike state.

Five minutes later, Klaus opened his eyes, but this time, Pickle Berry passed out.

"Queenie, take her away. I will be here for a while, so look after all." He paused and looked into the puppy eyes that were looking back at him.

"You all should look after her but don't spoil her. Also, don't make my mom aware of this development." Klaus smiled, knowing how his mom would react.

The ladies nodded, and without even wasting time, they flew away, leaving only Old Lu and Queen Lunara.

"Uncle Monk, I will transfer their training regimen to you. Ensure they start training from tomorrow. I will take over when I return." Old Lu nodded, and Klaus formed a hand seal, transferring his plans for his team to his Uncle Monk.

Old Lu nodded toward Queen Lunara and flew away.

"You can come closer. I will be sealing this place, and you wouldn't want to be on the outside." Queen Lunara didn't hesitate and flew close to him.

Klaus waved his hand, and a tool that looked like a painting brush appeared in his hands. He then started drawing in the air. A few minutes later, many runic marks appeared.

He formed a hand seal, which formed them into one large rune. He channeled his energy into it, and it created a dome around them.

The moment he was done, he closed his eyes and fell back.

Queen Lunara was quick, so before they could land on the ground, she caught him.

Thus, Klaus would spend the next month resting in the arms of a queen.

Chapter 754 - 754: The Secrets Stolen (1)

"This place is..." Klaus muttered right as he appeared in an empty space. The place was completely dark, and the only light was him.

He was the only thing visible there.

He looked around for a while, but he saw nothing. Walking around, he could tell the place was completely empty.

So he sat down and started to wait.

When he passed out, he was tired, so he decided to give his body some rest. Maybe by then, he would be able to see something worth paying attention to.

However, a day passed, yet there was nothing there to see.

However, he didn't say anything and just remained there. Three days quickly passed, and before he knew it, a week went by, yet he remained rooted in the same spot.

Meanwhile, a week had passed on the outside.

Old Lu was using the plan Klaus gave him and started training the teams. He started with normal routines, but as time went by, he started giving them missions like hunting missions.

Initially, it was against the remaining monsters that were under the command of the Flame Lava Lion. They were the reason why the triplets used their combined skill and nearly caused havoc.

However, within two days, the rest were eradicated.

He picked them because they were the closest to the destroyed camp, but aside from that, it was his way of training the fire elemental warriors.

They lived in a lava-infested region of the badland, so that helped them train, kill, and gather fire-type cores.

He was doing a good job so far.

On the other hand, Klaus's ladies took a break from their training and instead dedicated that to taking care of Pickle Berry, who, just like Klaus, had also passed out.

Using the harem connection, Oheme was tasked with buying stuff meant for little girls. This was their first trial at having a daughter who was too old for her appearance.

They hadn't communicated with Pickle Berry yet, so they were happy having a daughter. A week passed, but she hadn't woken up.

"I wonder when she will wake up," Lily said with a glint that said she couldn't wait to meet Pickle Berry.

"Me too," Anna was the same. The rest of the ladies also nodded.

"Klaus called her Pickle Berry. Would that be her name?" Lulu asked, thinking of the rather unusual name Klaus picked for the little snake girl.

"We should probably come up with a new name," Nari suggested.

"No," suddenly, a small and sweet voice entered the conversation, "I like Pickle Berry."

"She is awake," Lily giggled, looking at the silver-haired snake girl with silver eyes and hair. Her hair was perfectly combed, and she was now clad in a more comfortable gown.

"Where is Big Brother?" Pickle Berry asked, letting Lily help her sit up on the bed.

"Big Brother, as in Klaus?" Anna asked.

"Yes. Where is he, and how long was I out for?" Surprisingly, the little girl, who was not older than 5, was able to form sentences better than one would expect.

"He is not yet back from his cultivation," Queenie said, making Pickle Berry sigh. It was as if she knew what had happened, so she looked at every last face.

"I will go help him now, and then after, we can play." She closed her eyes and took a meditation posture.

"Is it just me, or is she too old for her age? I feel like I was talking to my ancestor," Nia said, causing her sisters to nod. Indeed, just now, they all felt like they were talking to some ancient immortal ancestor.

"Still, we have a daughter, so I am okay with that," Nari said, still obsessed with the idea of finally having a daughter.

Her sisters knew it was a phase. She knew nothing about emotions until about a month ago, so it was only natural for her to feel this way.

But even without that, she was just too happy to have someone they all could obsess over.

"She said we would play after she helped Klaus, so why don't we get ready?" Queenie said, and the rest of her sisters nodded.

Lulu, on the other hand, felt that the meaning behind the little girl's words was much more profound. Just now, when she entered her soul sea, she saw something, something that shook her heart.

So she knew her "let's play after" words meant different things from the way she sounded.

The ladies went to get ready, leaving only Kathy and Hanna, who were equally obsessed with the small snake human. A few minutes after the ladies left, a green mark appeared on Pickle Berry's forehead.

Inside her soul sea, she appeared behind Klaus and gazed at his meditating back; a small smile appeared on her face.

"It seems you are not lazy this time around, Big Brother," Pickle Berry said, causing Klaus to open his eyes and turn back.

"I knew it was your soul sea." Klaus hugged the little snake girl, who giggled and curled in his arm. Klaus brushed her head with his hands, making her smile.

"How are you, Brother? The last time we saw each other, you gave the heavens the middle finger and died. It's good to see our plan worked.

Though I know this is your incarnation, I know you are the same person."

"I am fine, Pickle Berry, and yes, I am not Kaden, but I met him, and I have to say, he is one interesting dude."

"But I am more interesting than him," Klaus laughed, knowing Kaden would take offense considering his source of information is Pickle Berry.

"You are the combination of all nine of you, so it's only right to be more interesting. However, now that I am here, the heavens will be very pissed.

But they are about to have a nasty welcome."

An evil smile appeared on Pickle Berry's face as she waved her hand.

The moment she did, the light started appearing in her soul sea. Then, one light fell on a giant stone with a drawing of a giant body.

Written atop it was "Unbreakable Titan Body."

Another appeared, and on it was a drawing of another giant but with six hands, "Giant Asura Body."

Soon, hundreds and thousands of stone tablets like that started appearing in her soul sea, making Klaus and Pickle Berry burst into evil laughter, one that would make the heavens bleed.

"The mission was a success, Big Brother. Operation Make the Heavens Bleed was a success. Now, we create our own army, and this time, we must succeed in destroying them."

Chapter 755 - 755: The Secrets Stolen (2)

Millions of years ago, a beautiful snake came up with a crazy idea.

"Big Brother, I think the only way to ensure the heavens truly bleed is by taking their most prized possession. They took your mother from you, and though you claim you're fine, I know you aren't.

So why don't we take something from them?"

"That will be a suicide mission, you know that, right?"

"I know, Big Brother, but you also said one day, the happiness we so very much crave must be protected, and from my calculations, entering the Pool of Secrets is the only way.

From what I know of the Void, anything it spawns comes in one. Meaning there wouldn't be a second one out there.

If we allow the heavens to succeed, giving this heaven-defying physique, universe-shattering Body Constitution, and such terrifying techniques to their minions wouldn't be easy for us.

So we might fail, but our chances of winning are also very high.

You have me, and we have the thousands of transformed heavens' chosen and even the Paragon guards. I say we have a shot at winning.

I might not appear in your next incarnation, but before the ultimate is born, I will be out, and that is when we will make the heavens truly bleed."

"The future me is going to be pissed if he finds out I won't be leaving my memories behind."

"No need to look down, Big Brother. I saw your life, know all your techniques and secrets. Since your memories are getting wiped out, I will become your memories, and when I awaken, you can have them back."

"You really have everything figured out?"

"I do, Big Brother. Without me, you would've been long dead."

"That is true, but no need to be smug about it."

"I must send my ladies off to reincarnate on the Paragon Star before this mission. I don't want the heavens interfering with their reincarnations after I am gone."

"They will be pissed."

"They'll have their chance in the future. Plus, if we succeed, their future will be terrifying. Imagine giving the additional class, constitution, and many more."

"That will depend on your next incarnation and my succeeding. But in the end, we can only try and succeed."

"Very well. Let's do it."

"To the future then."

The beautiful snake laughed, raising her wine glass. Years later, the heaven door, said to be guarded by a celestial beast, broke down. Legends have it that when the gate came down, the heavens shook.

Then they started to cry blood, for their most prized possession was taken from them when Pickle Berry took a dive into the Pool of Secrets.

Now, standing before Klaus is the same snake, but very young yet incredibly intelligent. Her smile says it all.

"You are evil, Pickle Berry, but I love evil," Klaus laughed.

"That you do, Big Brother. If you didn't love evil, you wouldn't have that wind girl in your harem," Pickle Berry laughed.

"Who are you talking about? Lily? She is actually very sweet," Klaus raised his brow.

"I guess we shall see," Pickle Berry laughed.

Klaus wanted to ask more, but he knew the first rule of reincarnation: never ask someone about your past if you don't want to die hearing it.

So he dropped it, and thus he started talking about the main subject.

"So this was what you managed to steal from them," Klaus asked, and Pickle Berry nodded.

"These were the only ones I managed to take before the heavens intervened. That was when I executed the plan and wiped the Pool out of existence."

"That is great then. I guess they wouldn't be happy teaching them to the Earthlings," Klaus smiled.

"Indeed. But there is also nothing they can do. I may have found a way to help the humans learn anything you want them to, and the heavens wouldn't be able to do anything."

"How so?"

Pickle Berry waved her hand, and a stone tablet moved and appeared before them.

"This is the Supreme Sculpting Art. It's one of the most profound techniques I managed to take from the pool. Basically, it allows you to sculpt these stone tablets with the writings on them.

But what makes it even more profound is that the carving will contain the true essence of the technique, meaning comprehending it will have meaning.

It wouldn't be any random sculpture. No, this carving will hold the essence of the technique, and the best part is it will be imbued with the Paragon Star energy, meaning the heavens wouldn't have control over it."

Pickle Berry smirks.

"But this technique is more than that, and after you are done learning it, you will come to understand that merely sculpting a sculpture of, let's say, a demi-god can harness such power of such a demi-god, provided you can withstand the backlash from the sculpting."

"I see. Then this is going to be a good one," Klaus laughed. "However, I now have the Star Monarch bloodline, and its effect is very powerful. It basically gives them a second class."

"Then this will even be overly great. Making them learn a new Physique or constitution would not only improve upon their past selves, but with your blood, they would have more than one strength to fight.

Imagine having a Titan and a Stone Demon in the same body or merging the two into one, making it a Stone Titan. There are so many ways this can be utilized.

We just have to plan it well. But before that, you must learn the Supreme Sculpting Art."

"Okay. But would you stay here and keep staring at me?" Klaus asked, knowing even with his hivemind, it would take a couple of days to master the technique.

"Who wants to stare at you for days?" Pickle Berry laughed. "I will be on the outside having fun with my mothers. They are obsessed with me."

"Just don't let them spoil you. I don't want you to become lazy anytime soon," Klaus laughed.

"I am a five-year-old with memories of a Sage Immortal; spoiling me is the last thing you should worry about. They need me."

"You do you. I will focus here first."

"Then good luck, Big Brother." Pickle Berry left her soul space and went back to the real world, where she would become the young, incredibly old little girl everyone would come to love.

Chapter 756 - 756: Pickle Berry

The moment Pickle Berry left her soul sea, Klaus started comprehending the technique. For now, that was all he could do, for he wasn't really going to let this rest any longer.

With these treasures and his Star Monarch bloodline, the heavens won't know what hit them.

Meanwhile, Pickle Berry opened her eyes. The first thing she saw was different shades of eyes staring at her.

"I am done." She opened her arms, letting Lily rush in like a caring mother.

Her sisters could only let her have her chance now and later take over. They will each share the adorable little girl.

"You are cute, Pickle Berry." Lily raised her up, spinning her around. Pickle Berry also laughed, enjoying the moment.

After a while, they settled down under a large tent with Pickle Berry getting passed around. She wasn't against the idea.

However, she was paying attention to every last one of them.

Nari, Hanna, Kathy, and Lily were the ones she was keeping the most attention on.

"So you are a snake, Beast," Lily asked, and Pickle Berry nodded.

"I am just like her." She pointed at Kathy, "I am a divine beast."

"But how come you have a perfect human body?" Anna asked.

"That is because I was born a true beast and had three evolutions already." The ladies turned and looked at each other.

What they don't know is that when Klaus left with her and placed his blood on her head, she started her evolution.

So while Klaus was away talking to Kaden, she underwent three evolutions.

Of course, she had yet to grow her second head, but for now, she is only a one-headed snake.

"Then, do you have any cool abilities?" Nadia asked. They've already established that Pickle Berry is no ordinary five-year-old. This means she is just like Klaus, who seems to know a lot about everything.

They don't act their age. It was like they were some old immortals.

So they are starting to figure her out, and perhaps, that will give them a good understanding of Klaus.

"I can manipulate space. In other words, I have an affinity for the Space Law" Pickle Berry smiled, saying that.

She knew the moment she made them aware of her abilities, they would be dumbfounded. Even she was shaken when she awakened them.

Now, looking at their faces, she could tell they were indeed blown away.

"No need to look shocked. I am just a five-year-old, so I can't do much with my abilities." She smiled, "However, Big Brother is a different story."

"Does it mean you and he can share abilities?" Hanna asked.

"No. I can share my abilities with him, but unless he chooses to, I cannot use his abilities. Not that I will need to; with him having my abilities, it will be enough."

"Then can I share my abilities with Hanna too?" Kathy asked.

"Of course. You can even go as far as allowing her to use your class, soul weapons, and anything you possess."

"And I presume you have the way to do that," Hanna raised her brow.

"It's only natural," Pickle Berry smiled.

"You sound just like Klaus," Queenie couldn't help but say. Looking at Pickle Berry is like looking at Klaus doing his things. It just looked the same in all aspects.

"Big Brother is the best, so I can only be like him," Pickle Berry smiled.

"Tch, who is the best? All that brat knew was doing shameless things always," Lucy smirked, knowing she wouldn't have said that if Klaus were to be around.

Pickle Berry just smiled and looked at the Divine Beast.

"If you want, I can help you become more connected to her. She is special, and while she is much weaker than you, becoming one with her will benefit you greatly in the long run.

However, after you become one with her, if you get another beast companion in the future, you won't be able to do the same with them.

Also, you wouldn't be able to break from her. You are forever linked."

"Let's do it."

Kathy didn't even think about it since she always wanted to be more connected to Hanna.

"Very well. I will need 9 Tier 10 beast cores and a secure place that won't be disturbed for the next 24 hours."

Queenie pulled out the cores and created a translucent dome around the tent they were in.

"You two should lie down side by side." She gestured forward, making Kathy and Hanna lie down side by side.

"Before we start, do you want the sharing to go both ways?" she asked, and Hanna nodded. This way, she can let Kathy wield her abilities while also wielding hers.

"Then, let's get started." Pickle Berry formed a seal, making a spell circle appear beneath Kathy and Hanna.

The ladies stepped back, watching the small snake girl do her magic. They could only stare in wonder, for the abilities and knowledge she was showing them weren't ones they could fathom.

She set down the nine cores in a star formation, and using her fingers, she started drawing in the air, instantly causing runic marks to show.

She also started sweating as she drew the symbols.

After a while, she stopped and formed a seal. Right when that was done, the cores dissolved and turned into two star-shaped marks that merged with the two ladies.

Immediately after that, their bodies were lifted up, and the process started.

"It will take 5 days, so we can let them remain like this while we go out. I want to see the outside world and meet Big Brother's mother."

The ladies turned and looked at each other. Klaus had told them not to let her see his mom, for he knew she wouldn't allow her to go one his mom's get her hands on her.

So, saying she wants to meet her is a little conflicting.

However, looking at the cute little girl made them want to reconsider her offer.

"Don't worry about Big Brother. We will be back and start training before he gets back."

"Very well," Queenie, being the strongest, chose to make the decision for them.

"I will go inform Old Lu." Nari vanished, appearing beside Old Lu and frightening him.

"We are taking the little girl to meet Klaus's mom; we will be back in five days. So look after the two ladies cultivating in the tent."

Nari didn't even wait for him to respond and just vanished.

"I liked the old her more," Old Lu muttered, but he couldn't deny them. Since they are taking care of the adorable snake, he saw no reason to stop them

They left using Queenie's jet.

Chapter 757 - 757: Meeting Klaus's Mom

Klaus's mom moved to Moomville, and since then, she hasn't left. It was also the main reason why Ohema hadn't come with the ladies on this training mission.

She was left behind to spend time with her and keep her company while Queen Lunara was away.

Of course, she wasn't complaining simply because Ohema really enjoys spending time with Klaus's mom.

She wants to know more about the brat, and since his mom is the sweetest, she doesn't mind entertaining her.

At the moment, they are seated beneath a white tree the Moon Borns brought with them while having tea.

"Your hair needs a redo," Klaus's mom said, looking at the perfectly made hair of the beauty beside her.

"Mother, you literally fixed my hair two days ago. Maybe we should wait a week before changing it." Ohema couldn't help but laugh.

Sometimes, she envies her sister, who is away training. At least they wouldn't get their hair done every single day.

"You can always look your best," Klaus's mom shamelessly said, knowing that getting her hair done wasn't much of a hassle regardless of the strength of the being before her.

She is that adorable, and all Klaus's women like her.

"My sisters should probably come soon. Otherwise, I will become your styling doll before I know it," Ohema said, making Klaus's mom laugh.

They keep talking while sipping their tea. Suddenly, a jet came to a stop atop the new palace built for the Queen of the Moon.

Of course, this made them the 9th Union on Earth. But they still called themselves Moon Borns. That is just by the way.

The moment the jet arrived, the ladies started appearing out. After a few seconds, they all walked out.

Klaus's mom giggled when she saw this lineup. It was like getting delivered beauties, each boasting great hair for her to play with.

She became ecstatic.

"We have a surprise for you, Mother," Queenie said, walking toward Klaus's mom. After closing this gap, leaving only a meter between them, she stopped and smiled.

This made Klaus's mom raise her brow, waiting for what they had for her.

"Surprise." The ladies parted, making the little silver-haired girl and Klaus's mom's gazes meet. Klaus's Mom looked at the small lady, and her raised brow rose further.

"Hello, Grandma, I am Pickle Berry, Big Brother Klaus's daughter."

The ladies face-palmed hearing Pickle Berry's introduction. It was totally opposite to what they had planned.

On their way, the plan was to call her Grandma, but instead of saying Big Brother, she should instead say Daddy.

Of course, Pickle Berry nodded, but now, staring at the beauty who is the mother of her Big Brother, she couldn't go through with the plan.

But then, before they could perhaps say something, Pickle Berry jumped into Klaus's mom's arms, buried her face in her chest, and started sobbing.

This one wasn't one they expected. The sobbing part wasn't one they expected.

If only they knew the day Kaden's mother died, Pickle Berry saw everything. She saw how a single mother faced odds that she just couldn't handle, yet in the end, she managed to isolate her son from the dangers.

Kaden's tragic backstory is similar to Fruity's. However, Kaden was 16, while Fruity was 7. Also, instead of being found by monks like Fruity was, Kaden was just sent away with the hope that he would survive.

When his mother used her life force to speed up the activation time of the teleportation scroll, its area of effect also increased.

Pickle Berry was pulled into the teleportation, and so she was pulled away with Kaden. This means she saw the sacrifice Kaden's mom made.

And now, looking at the identical copy of such a brave yet selfless woman, she couldn't help but get emotional.

It was also the main reason why she lost composure and made a mistake in introducing herself. The ladies watching this couldn't help but sigh in their hearts.

Klaus's mom, on the other hand, was doing her best to calm the lady who, before she knew it, was fast asleep in her arms.

They moved inside and laid her down.

"Who is this adorable little girl?" Klaus's mom asked, using her fingers to comb Pickle Berry's long silver hair.

"Klaus's daughter," Lily giggled, making her sisters smile.

"I don't mind having a granddaughter." Klaus's mom, of course, was as shameless as ever. But this time, she was very serious saying that.

"She looks adorable."

"She indeed is adorable, but she is just like Klaus. They all seem to be older than their age." Queenie smiled, watching the adorable face now peacefully sleeping.

"I should probably prepare a nice meal for her. She looks skinny."

The ladies left the room, leaving the little adorable snake child to sleep. However, the moment they left, she opened her eyes and stood up.

She sat down and entered her soul sea, where she appeared before Klaus, who was still comprehending the Supreme Sculpting technique.

She moved and hugged him from behind, making Klaus blink a few times.

"Mmm, Pickle Berry, weren't you the same person that said she was going to spend time with the ladies?" Klaus said, but the small girl wasn't letting go.

Klaus sighed and let her have her moment. A few minutes later, she spoke.

"Big brother, I saw her..."

"You saw who?" Klaus asked, turning to look at her small, cute face.

"I saw your mother." She smiled, though she looked very emotional.

"So they took you to meet her, huh?" Klaus smiled, knowing the chances of this small girl coming back to the Badlands would be very slim.

"She looks the same. She is very beautiful and sweet. The last time, I just watched from the side, but watching and touching her now, I really am happy. I want to stay with her."

"Hey, young lady, you have your own mother, okay? Stop trying to steal mine." Klaus pulled her little ears, making her giggle.

"Too late, mister, she is already cooking. If I were you, I would hurry here. You wouldn't want your mother to forget about you after getting to meet the adorable me."

Pickle Berry smiled and vanished from her soul sea, making Klaus chuckle.

"Your funeral, not mine." He went back to learning the technique.

Chapter 758 - 758: She is Adorable

"Pickle Berry, what an adorable name," Klaus's mom said, feeding the little girl who was letting herself get spoiled. She was seated on her lap, eating the food.

"Pickle Berry is more like the name of a fruit, but it indeed sounded amazing." Anna shook her head. The name given to the little snake girl sounded funny yet unique in a way.

"So, do you want me to do your hair for you after you are done eating?" Klaus's mom asked, and Pickle Berry nodded.

"I want my hair done by Grandma."

Klaus's mom laughed, hearing her call her Grandma.

"Since Klaus is your big brother, then you can just call me Mother. Calling me Grandma makes me look old.

Though I don't mind being called Grandma, " she laughed. Then she turned and looked at the faces of the ladies inside the dining room.

"I wouldn't mind being called Grandma at all."

The ladies blushed, understanding where her mind had just wandered.

"How about you ladies, do you want a makeover?" she asked.

"Can we say no?" Nia asked.

"Probably not," Klaus's mom smiled, making the ladies accept their fate for the week they would be staying.

After Pickle Berry finished eating, they moved out and started spending the day, knowing full well it would be five days long.

But the small snake girl seemed okay spending time with the lady who wanted nothing more than to keep holding the adorable silver-haired snake girl in her arms.

"So, Pickle Berry, you said you want to learn some things. Care to share what you want to know?" Klaus's mom asked, now sitting under the same tree she and Ohema were under before the ladies arrived.

"I want to know more about Big Brother. I want to know more about when he was growing up," Pickle Berry replied, and the ladies opened their ears to hear about their shameless husband.

"Then you better listen," Klaus's mom started.

"Your big brother was one lazy bum growing up. He didn't know how to eat, bathe, or even brush his teeth.

In fact, at the age of five, when every other human child was running around the house, he would just stay in bed, sleeping his lazy bum off.

That shameless bastard."

Queenie and the ladies exchanged looks and giggled.

"However, he was sweet. Whenever he was awake and around the house, you couldn't help but love him.

He wanted to become a combat medic so he could save the warriors who put their lives on the line so we could live in peace.

He would sit beside his dad's leg, holding onto his knee, and say, 'I want to heal people, Papa. I want to help the heroes.'

His dad was a warrior, you know, so he always wanted to make sure his kind was okay"

The ladies smiled at the thought, and Pickle Berry's eyes sparkled with admiration. This was a rare moment for her to get to know Klaus from when he was a kid.

Kaden had told her about his childhood, but she knew the bastard had lied about a lot of things. So, learning about him from his mother was indeed very touching.

So far, she had learned a thing or two about her big brother.

"He used to follow me around the house with a toy medical kit, patching up the walls and chairs like they were wounded soldiers.

One time, he even tried to bandage a bird because it looked 'too tired.' It flew away before he could finish, and he cried for hours."

"Awwww," a few of the girls chorused while Nia tried to hold back her laugh.

Klaus's mom just laughed. She herself was enjoying the trip down memory lane. Klaus's childhood was adorable.

"But while he was this lazy and adorable kid, he all changed when his dad died—"

"Went missing," the ladies corrected unanimously. Klaus's mom smiled. She knew Klaus still believed his father was alive and out there waiting for him to find him.

He even made his ladies aware that his father was alive and would find him, so at the back of their minds, he was still alive.

"Thanks for the correction, ladies. But like I said, Klaus changed when his father went missing, and we were kicked out.

Overnight, he changed from a lazy kid to a man who wanted to protect and take care of me. He became a man, and soon, his dream of becoming a medic was gone, and now he only wanted to become a warrior."

Klaus's mom smiled again, but the ladies could see the pain behind her eyes. Klaus, indeed, had changed overnight, and that broke her as a mother.

"Do you know he stopped schooling just so he could start working and provide for the family? I am really proud of him for that, though it's painful whenever I remember that."

Pickle Berry sighed and asked, "Big Brother really did that?"

Klaus's mom nodded proudly. "He did. And at that moment, I knew he would never return to the adorable and lazy him."

Everyone nodded and mentally imagined his adorable side. Klaus's mom saw that, so she knew what to say next.

"He might act cool now, but he was a total crybaby back then. But he is the pride and joy of every mother, so, at the end of it all, he is the man he is now because of the circumstances that happened to him growing up."

"It sounds like Big Brother grew up faster than he should have," Pickle Berry said, and the rest of the ladies, including Klaus's mom, nodded.

"However, he has many amazing and adorable stories I can share with you all. One time, he got stuck trying to climb the pantry for sweets."

"Tell us! Tell us!" The girls wouldn't let that story go. Klaus's mom smirked, but she told them no.

"He managed to pull a chair to the counter and tried to climb, but halfway up, he slipped and landed head-first in a basket of onions. He cried so hard he couldn't smell anything for days." She laughed so hard she had to wipe tears from her eyes.

Even Pickle Berry was on the verge of rolling on the floor.

"But all jokes aside," Klaus's mom said, smiling fondly, "he grew into someone who makes us proud. Lazy or not, he's got the biggest heart. And now, it looks like that heart has grown even bigger... seeing how many of you it holds."

The room fell into a soft silence, full of warmth and laughter.

Pickle Berry looked at the smiling faces, and she couldn't help but smile, too.

Chapter 759 - 759: Conversation with Queen Lunara

Two weeks had passed since Klaus entered Pickle Berry's soul sea.

The first week was spent doing nothing; however, after Pickle Berry gave him the Supreme Sculpting technique, he started comprehending it, and it had already been five days.

The past five days had been all about him learning the technique. Thankfully, his comprehension speed is faster than one might think, so he was making headway much faster.

As for his ladies, they had spent the past five days doing all kinds of things with Pickle Berry and His Mom.

They went on a shopping spree, making sure Pickle Berry did all she wanted to do before going back.

Though she knew spending more than the five days they had set wouldn't cause any damage, they didn't want to be away when Hanna and Kathy woke up.

So, after spending five days with Klaus's mom, they left and went back to Monsterland.

Hanna and Kathy woke up a few hours after they returned, and as Pickle Berry had said, the two ladies became even more powerful.

They then joined Old Lu's training, with only Pickle Berry, Queenie, and Nari sitting on the sidelines. They could only watch.

Another week passed, making it three weeks after the great battle. Klaus was still not back, but Old Lu did his best, giving the warriors the best training.

Klaus left him all he needed to get the job done, so he did just that and then more.

However, when the month came to an end, Klaus finally smiled as he opened his eyes. He was shocked to see he was lying on Queen Lunara's lap when he woke up.

"Great seeing you awake. Now, can you sit on your own?" The queen most definitely didn't want to keep the conscious Klaus on her lap anymore.

Klaus smiled and sat up.

"Thanks for taking care of me."

She nodded before asking the question she had wanted to ask a month ago. She didn't even wait for him to settle down first.

"Who are you, Klaus? And don't shamelessly lie to me." Her question was simple, yet the answer she was expecting could not be said easily.

"You will be shocked to know I am just a human being like you are and nothing else," Klaus said, still smiling.

"And who will believe that?"

"Probably those who knew what was best for them. But I have a feeling you still want to find out even though it's dangerous." Klaus didn't know why he was feeling that way, but the urge to tell her his secret was the only thing he was feeling.

But he knew better.

"You can keep your secrets, but tell me, why did you tell me not to kill the snake when we were fighting it?"

"That was because had you killed it, you wouldn't be sitting here with me now. That battle shouldn't have happened, yet it did, and in the end, you, Queenie, and Nari nearly fell for it," Klaus sighed.

If he couldn't tell her his secrets, he could at least make her feel better.

Quenching her curiosity can go a long way.

"Then can I know who we fought against, or would that also be bad for me?" the queen asked.

"I don't know what you can handle, but for now, know that whatever danger we face is a result of several decisions that happened millions, if not billions, of years ago.

This world is not simple.

The people in it aren't simple, either.

This also means the dangers within it aren't as simple as you might think. So for now, relax but be very observant; I am sure you will pick up a thing or two."

The queen sighed, knowing she most definitely wouldn't be learning anything about the brat anytime soon. But she also wouldn't want to know something that would put her in danger.

She is the queen of an entire race. Doing the wrong thing can doom her entire race, so she wouldn't be reckless just because she is hungry to discover forbidden knowledge.

"Now that you are awake, what next?" the queen asked. "We all didn't expect a Tier 11 beast to be hidden here all this time. This means we shouldn't believe in any data gathered using our satellites.

So what is your next move, Klaus?"

"It's very simple: I will continue with their training while we wait for the time to go after the Tier 11 monster arrives.

After that mission, we will know just what we will be dealing with," Klaus replied.

"How so? Our satellites are only finding what is meant to be found, and while we can boldly say the situation on Earth can be handled easily, the same can't be said for the moon.

The seal will break soon, and the chances of them descending on us are very high when that happens. So what is your plan really?"

"Nothing can be hidden from you, huh?" Klaus smirked.

"Very well. I plan to kill the Tier 11 monsters, as we discussed a few weeks ago. I will absorb its core when it is down, which will help me break through. Then, I will have my tribulation and become a sovereign."

"How would that help us?"

Klaus laughed.

"The moment I become a sovereign, finding the hidden dangers will be simple, for I have the highest chance of forming a soul body, and the moment I form a soul body, my senses will be amplified greatly.

This will allow me to find them.

As to whether we will go after them or ally with them, only time will tell."

"I see." The queen didn't want to say his plan was hanging on a maybe.

If what Klaus just said was the case, then it means he wouldn't only be putting everyone's life on a maybe, but he would be doing so with the thinking that he will succeed.

What Klaus didn't tell her was that the only reason he wanted to break through was because of the body that would be left behind by Tier 11.

He already has six powerful blood essences. One was from a powerful phoenix race, while the last five were from Monarchs, beings from a forbidden universe.

The moment he gets the body, he plans on creating his first perfect warrior using the Paragon forge.

He planned on making this creation a being with great affinity for the Void.

If his calculations are correct, locating the Tier 11s, regardless of their ranks, will be simple.

The plan was to ensure they were located and then dealt with.

It wouldn't be long until the awakening arrived, so he would speed things up a bit.

Chapter 760 - 760: Carving the Luminary Diagram

After the conversation with Queen Lunara, Klaus went back to Pickle Berry's soul sea when he felt she was calling him.

For some reason, he can enter her soul sea at will, just like how he enters his. It was as if everything about her had now been linked to him.

When he arrived, Pickle Berry was standing before a rather large, towering stone tablet. It was diamond in color, and the energy around it was just too divine.

"This is where we start everything, Big Brother," Pickle Berry said, turning to face him.

"The Luminary Diagram," Klaus read the name.

"What does it do?" he asked.

"Why don't you touch it and find out? Though we can't send it outside, you can touch it when in here. It's also the best way to understand what we are dealing with," Pickle Berry said.

Klaus nodded and walked toward the stone tablet.

When he placed his hand on it, every last bit of information about the tablet flowed into his mind, making Klaus widen his eyes.

"That is..."

"I call it the Potential Awakener," Pickle Berry laughed.

"How about Limit Breaker instead?" Klaus also gave his name, but the little snake girl wouldn't back down.

"I wouldn't allow you to name anything or anyone again. I most certainly did not like the name Pickle Berry at first, but after going through many life-and-death situations together, I grew to like it.

So, I wouldn't let you name anything else. What? Would the next best thing be to named orange or mango? You are done naming anything ever again.

This means the name for this tablet is Potential Awakener."

Klaus laughed, hearing her reason. It seems having her memories was a good thing for her this time. Klaus most certainly didn't know why someone was named Pickle Berry.

But now, looking at the seriousness on her face, he could tell why. The name is perfect for her.

"Potential Awakener it is," Klaus accepted the name with a smirk.

But the stone tablet they are naming isn't something simple.

Klaus brought the warriors to this zone to help them break their limits and awaken their hidden potential through combat.

However, this stone tablet houses a simple yet complex diagram that does just that.

It basically allows anyone who can comprehend the Luminary star patterns inside the diagram to unlock hidden talents and hidden potentials and perhaps gain clarity.

It basically makes everything easy for everyone.

"This changes everything. It can make them powerful." Klaus said.

"Indeed, Big Brother. However, you wouldn't have to worry. This diagram only gives one 24 hours to comprehend the patterns they are given.

If they fail, they will be given a different one. But if you truly paid attention to the information, you also noticed that the patterns that will be presented will not be repeated.

So, since you have a forest full of monsters and beasts, make it so that those who complete their tasks well will have a chance to comprehend the diagram.

For now, at least.

There are many others, like the rare physique, that you can give to them.

Through their battles and their achievements with the Luminary Diagrams, you will be able to learn more about them and give them the physiques based on their combat style, techniques, skill sets, affinities, and many more."

"Looks like you are very experienced in this field," Klaus smiled.

"I once took charge of the training of 10 thousand warriors. Incredibly powerful warriors.

Just one of them can lay waste on this planet with a snap of their fingers. Yet I took charge of their training and made them into beings worthy of facing the armies of the heavens.

Warriors of your world should be happy they have me. Sage Immortal Pickle Berry is a blessing to your morals"

Pickle Berry puffed her small chest high, making Klaus burst into resounding laughter.

"You look funny," Klaus said, making Pickle Berry glare at him.

"You do know that back then, I was able to wipe your face on the floor, right?"

"That was then. Now, I can send you to the moon with a simple glare."

"And I can trap you in here for as long as I want." Pickle Berry just wanted a win here, but Klaus didn't back down.

"Grow up faster; then we can talk about who is the strongest."

"Tsk, you are too annoying." The small snake girl didn't say much and just moved away from her soul sea.

When she opened her eyes, she was on Lily's lap.

"No need to look surprised, Pickle Berry. You were twisting your face like someone was annoying you, so I wanted to ensure you were fine."

"That bastard. I want him dead." Pickle Berry clenched her fist.

"Just say the word, and I will get it done." Lily, of course, was being a good big sister.

"You can't, Big Sis. The bastard is Big Brother. I don't think a million of you can do anything to him," Pickle Berry said with a smile.

Lily just smiled, knowing she was right; the bastard couldn't be killed even if there were thousands of her. She could only sigh.

However, right when she was done making sure Pickle Berry was all right, the space cracked, and Klaus, along with Queen Lunara, walked out.

It then closed behind them.

Crack.

Everyone stopped what they were doing and started to watch the two up in the air. Klaus smiled at everyone and flew away. Soon, he was at the destroyed camp.

He retrieved a rather thin sword and gestured downward, raising a large mountain of ice from the ground.

"You all should look away," Klaus said to the curious warriors who followed him.

"I repeat, you all should look away." Immediately after he said that the clouds had formed up ahead, Queen Lunara waved her hand, and a large barrier appeared between them and Klaus.

This blocked everyone's view.

"Tsw, looks like you can only watch but can't do anything about it," Klaus muttered, staring at the heavens.

Then, 26 copies of him appeared, each holding the same sword as him.

"Let's get to work." The 26 copies moved alongside him and started carving the large chunk of ice. The moment he started, the heavens started roaring, but there was nothing they could do.

Klaus used one mind for each clone, allowing him to control all 26 clones while sculpting alongside them like crazy.

Five hours later, the Luminary Diagram was carved, and as he expected, the profound divine energy one would expect from something that profound surrounded it.

It took another hour. Afterward, the ice turned into a solid jade diamond.

He created a large dome around it with only one entrance before moving away. His mission to create a heaven-defying army was on track to become a reality thanks to the stolen records of the heavens
